

M'SWINEY DIES AFTER 74 DAYS OF HUNGER STRIKING

physicians had abandoned all hope of saving his life.

MacSwiney was the second Sinn Féin hunger striker to die in jail.

Michael Fitzgerald had died in the Cork jail on Oct. 17 after a hunger strike of sixty-eight days.

FITZGERALD'S DEATH HAS BEEN END.

News of the death of Fitzgerald seemed to have a depressing effect upon MacSwiney.

His weakness was more marked from that time.

On Oct. 18 it was announced the lord mayor had a slight cold.

This was followed by a statement that symptoms of scurvy had developed.

On the following day a special physician was called in to consult with the lord mayor.

The Sinn Féin threatened to capture the United Kingdom in disorders if MacSwiney were permitted to die in prison.

For weeks protests poured in upon the British government.

Crowds, muttering ominous threats, paced the streets about Brixton jail.

Political sympathizers in various parts of Great Britain made plans to harass the government if their champion were permitted to die with the stigma of imprisonment upon his memory.

The wife and sisters of MacSwiney pleaded in vain.

The attitude of the government will take toward MacSwiney's death was indicated by the action of a military inquest at Cork which held Michael Fitzgerald's death to be "wilful suicide."

Mrs. MacSwiney, the wife, was said to be on the verge of prostration.

The long strain of waiting for her husband's death, after she had been convinced that he would not be released, told heavily on her strength.

She was reported to be ill late Sunday.

The Rev. Father Dominic was detained at the prison for nearly an hour after MacSwiney had died.

On leaving the jail at 8:27 o'clock he was followed by a large crowd.

MacSwiney, the two sisters, Peter MacSwiney of New York, a brother, and O'Brien.

M'SWINEY CHARGED WITH SEDITION

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The charge on which Lord Mayor MacSwiney was convicted and for which he was sentenced to two years in Brixton prison was sedition.

The specific accusations against him were that he had in his possession a copy of resolutions passed by the Cork council pledging allegiance to the Irish republic and also a copy of a secret cipher of the British police in Ireland.

Prosecution was based on the defense of the realm act.

Upon conviction by a court-martial and sentence, MacSwiney refused to eat.

He informed his judges he considered the court illegal and without jurisdiction.

Business was suspended.

Homes were draped in mourning.

Prayers for the repose of the late lord mayor's soul were said in the churches.

An effort to lower the flag on city hall to half mast was frustrated by British troops.

Soldiers occupied Mansion house, the official residence of the lord mayor.

BRITISH PRESS SLIGHTS STORY

LONDON, Oct. 25.—British newspapers, which had gone on a "news strike" because of the MacSwiney family's embargo on information to British press men, continued their story today to from one to two columns.

This was confined mostly to a history of MacSwiney's former prison record.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Joseph Louwisch, Jewish teacher, who sought protection in a Y. M. C. A. when pursued by a mob of angry women of his race last night, was in seclusion today.

Women in the mob said they intended to avenge the death of Louwisch's bride who committed suicide shortly after he divorced her.

Some of the women said Louwisch sent some here ten years ago, recently sent to his sweetheart.

Two days after the marriage he obtained a divorce on the allegation that his wife was a Bolshevik and a believer in free love.

The woman committed suicide.

Women who chased Louwisch charged the bride had lost sight of the good looks she possessed two years ago and that Louwisch was disappointed.

None of the participants was held.

Charles H. Lanier, age 70, signed by mark and unattested; 297, Herbert Hogan, no birthday given, correct first name is Herbert; 331, William H. Copland, correct name is Copeland; all according to a report of an expert investigator, on which Chairman Sullivan bases his suit.

AY WOMAN SIGNED IN APPLICATIONS

The report of the investigators states that in the First precinct of the Fifth ward there are at least 111 registration applications that were apparently made out and signed by Cora Warwick and are undated, some of them being given on the expert's report as follows: No. 69, John Burhardt; correct name is Burhardt; 255, Richard Hixball, correct name is Higbough; 263, Adam Gansway, name is Gansway; 284, John Brown, no age or birthday given; 323, Carl Benner, shield, no first name signed; 435, John Ivy White, another blank given name of John Ivory White; 336 (pencil number), Edward Trabue; 105 (pencil number), Nook Albert; 31, Walter Lyles, no signature whatever; 343, Elijah Finley, apparently written by Cora Warwick, signed by her and another person.

The report of the investigators of the First precinct of the Fifth ward, indicates there were a number of registrations that bear September registration numbers, although they are dated and sworn to after the date of that registration.

Some of the registration applications of this class, according to the report of the investigators on which the suit is based, are: No. 176, William H. Alexander, dated Sept. 13, notary Cora Warwick; 138, Henry Robinson, date Sept. 10, notary Cora Warwick; 112, Otis Nunley, Sept. 13, notary Cora Warwick; 26, Robert Hatch, dated Sept. 14, Cora Warwick, notary; 33, Roscoe Newell, date Sept. 11, Cora Warwick, notary; 302, Porter Graves, Sept. 14, witnessed by Cora Warwick and another party, and bears a September 4 registration number, but is dated Sept. 14; 11, William Cowherd, Sept. 9, Cora Warwick, notary, and the above signature appears to be in the handwriting of Cora Warwick.

The investigators, in their reports on the First precinct of the Fifth ward, say there are a number of the September registrations that appear to be in the handwriting of Cora Warwick, including the signature, that are undated, and in numerous instances the witness blank are not filled out except as to the signature of the witnesses.

Application No. 138 of First precinct of the Fifth ward, made out in the name of Nellie Ray, "seems to be the handwriting and signature of Cora Warwick and there are no witnesses," according to the expert's report, now in the hands of Chairman Sullivan and on which part of the suit is based.

The reports of the investigators are voluminous and hundreds of other examples of reported illegal registrations are filed.

Efforts will be made Tuesday to show that at least 600 registrations in the First precinct of the Fifth ward are illegal and should be purged from the official registration lists.

SURENESS OF REPUBLICANS WANES DAILY

Franklin D. Roosevelt, William G. McAdoo, and many others of national repute, who have been pounding hard on the league as the leading issue of the campaign.

"Who have the Republicans had here to offset these speakers?" is asked.

DISSATISFIED WITH SPEAKER ALLOTMENTS.

Much of the opposition to the personnel of the speakers' bureau has come from the various chairmen of the county organizations, who are dissatisfied with the allotment of speakers.

For instance, the Eleventh district, Hiram Johnson is popular, and could do wonders there in the way of coralling votes, they say.

It is understood appeals have been made for the California Senator to speak in Marion, or some other town of the Eleventh district, while he was on his speaking tour, but the appeals were ignored, apparently, for nothing has been seen of Hiram in those parts.

LACK OF HARMONY
IN FIRST VOTERS' CLUB.

Another place where discordant notes have been struck by Republicans, resulting in destruction of the "harmony" of the State organization is the Young Men's First Voters' Republican Club.

This department is under the direction of Stanley K. Mower, a young man from downtown, who, according to the older heads around the Hotel Severin, has had little experience in politics.

In the closing days of the campaign the results of the ineffective work of the young men's department are becoming more and more noticeable.

Especially are the methods of organization, or rather lack of organization, of the head of the bureau becoming the butt of severe criticism of the bosses who are becoming nervous lest they lose their hold on many votes.

According to one who knows, Mr. Mower's methods of organization are not the sort that take well with the county chairmen of the State, nor with the young men whom he is being paid to corral for the Republican party.

METHODS ARE QUESTIONED.

This man gives an outline of the manner of organizing a county, adopted by the bureau head.

He arrives in a county seat, goes to the county chairman and tells the chairman who he is.

The chairman accepts Mower into the party council, and they proceed to confer on who would be a good young man to have as head of the first voter's organization in this particular county.

They select a young man, whom they think would be acceptable, and go to him.

But this young man was a former servant man, and he is for the League of Nations, so they can't have him.

Then they pick another, who will accept the job, after much coaxing.

The county chairman, doubtful of the bureau head's real position, goes to the expense of calling State headquarters to corroborate Mower's identity.

Having selected a county chairman for the first voters, thus saving the many first voters of the county the trouble of picking their own leader, Mower takes the first train out of the city, leaving the new official entirely at sea as regards his duties.

Such methods are not in line with the procedure of the "old heads" in the political game and the results, now becoming noticeable, are the predictions of many that they are not gaining the young men's votes.

Regardless of all the fiction, the heads of the Republican State organization are predicting the success of the Republican ticket at the polls Tuesday, Nov. 2.

But all the while, the older politicians are shaking a little for fear that they have overstepped a few important matters in organization during the early days of the campaign.
