

Indiana Daily Times

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA.

Daily Except Sunday, 25-29 South Meridian Street.
Telephones—Main 3500, New 28-351

MEMBERS OF AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS.

Advertising offices: Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, G. Logan Payne Co.
New York, Boston, New York, Burns & Smith, Inc.

IT MUST BE a real hardship for a man who spends as much time out of his office as Mayor Jewett to lose his overcoat!

OH WELL, fortunately there is no "overhead" attached to feeding those rats or it might cost more than $2,000,000 a year.

BUT WOULD MR. LEMAUX be talking so much about street car extensions were he not grooming himself to run for mayor?

IF WARREN T. MCCRAY had disavowed Goodrichism as assiduously in the campaign as he is doing now his path might have been smoother.

STANLEY WYCKOFF declares he is not talking as an official in his latest ranting about food prices and the suspicion continues that he is still press-agenting for the profiteers.

Illegal Tax Fees

More than a year ago the Times called public attention to the disgraceful manner in which attaches of the county treasurer's office were robbing taxpayers who were unfortunate enough to allow their taxes to become delinquent.

Following an expose of the methods then in vogue the State board of accounts issued warning that fees illegally collected under these methods would be charged back against the treasurer.

Edward G. Sourbier, who was treasurer at that time, has now agreed to pay over more than $2,000 illegally obtained while he was in office, through the continuation of a practice that has long been in vogue in Marion County.

Unfortunately, there appears to be no method by which the persons from whom these illegal payments were exacted, often with insults and under duress, can be reimbursed without great cost and inconvenience to them.

But this unfortunate circumstance should not prevent a practical application of a long learned lesson.

No more such illegal fees should be collected in the county. Ralph Lemcke, present treasurer, continued the illegal collection of fees from the day he went into office. If he has ceased this grab it has only been within the last few weeks.

The Times never believed that Mr. Sourbier accepted a penny to which he did not believe he was entitled. At the time the illegality of the collection was made public he declared that he had been advised by Martin Hugg, his attorney, that he was entitled to these fees.

More recently it appears that Mr. Sourbier has accepted other advice than that he says he obtained from the attorney who later became a director of the Indianapolis News, for announcement is made that Mr. Sourbier has agreed to return the money charged against him by the accounts board.

It is probably too much to hope that this action by the board will end the pernicious fee grabbing that has so long prevailed in the treasurer's office. Easy money has a lure that some officials do not appear to have sufficient conscience to withstand.

But there is a statute in Indiana that opens the way to the impeachment of an official who knowingly extorts money from a citizen.

For more than a year after it became known that extortion was being practiced nothing was done to stop it.

It may be even longer before an end is put to this disgraceful mulcting of citizens, but that end will surely come.

Some day, some citizen with a trifle more jealousy of his rights than another will take steps to bring erring public officials to justice.

Cause for Reflection

A considerable part of the population of Marion County will derive a little satisfaction from the fact that the Northwestern avenue bridge muddle has at last reached the stage where public officials are interested in it.

The bungling that has marred the attempt to improve the Michigan road will always remain a black spot in the history of Marion County. In a community less given to partisan politics and more zealous of its treasury, the waste and mismanagement that has attached to this bit of road improvement would mean defeat for the adherents of the administration responsible.

In Marion County a long and suffering public has learned to shrug shoulders and take the unsatisfactory detour.

For many months the Michigan road, with a good pavement split by lack of a bridge, will continue to be closed to the public. The seriousness of this is enhanced by the fact that there are too few methods of entering Indianapolis from the north and west even with the Michigan road open.

No one who is compelled to drive the several miles around this empty bridge site will do so without reflecting on the foolish blunder of county officials who built a road to both sides of a river and made no preparations for crossing the water.

True Sportsmanship

Recent press dispatches show that the British are fitting out an expedition to survey and chart the northern part of the Weddell seacoast and to penetrate 1,200 miles of Antarctic territory hitherto not explored. This certainly shows true sportsmanship. The average man, with winter now coming on, is perfectly willing to let this exploring party go not only to the northern part of the Weddell seacoast, but to take all the other part, pre-empt the land, handle ice there the year round and become rich if possible.

Sometimes it looks almost ridiculous that good money is utilized in this manner and were it not that a generation ago Alaska was considered a "white elephant," the conclusion might be safe. However, the spirit which initiates the exploration of some far off distant land is the same spirit that hundreds of years ago caused America to be explored.

It is a peculiar fact that the Anglo-Saxon alone has the ability, possesses the vision and exercises the energy necessary to look into the odd corners of the earth. In return for all these experience, there have been many disasters, but out of them also has grown an empire which boasts that the sun never sets upon it.

It is fortunate that following this spirit there is such a civilization that in times of emergency like the late war causes those in far distant communities to contribute their money and even their lives to the perpetuation of the tight little island that generations before sent out its hearty children.

This is an example of giving and growing rich, for England has given many illustrious sons and daughters to her colonies and those children have caused her to grow rich indeed.

Sylvia's Failings

So much has been said of Sylvia Pankhurst and her naughty ways that it seems a waste of paper to comment upon them. However, after all she represents a class of people whose ideas, although embodied in the gentler sex, are incompatible with our civilization and unfortunately she is subjected to prison and to harsh treatment until those ideas are eradicated. It is sad that some one who is a daughter or a sister or a wife should of necessity be thrown into prison. Indeed, it is almost unthinkable to the average American that any woman whose life is morally good need even get into the hands of the law.

Sylvia Pankhurst attempted to do by radical means what the American women have done by a dignified appeal to the sense of justice of our legislators. She served a term in prison for the burning of a beautiful landmark under the guise of working for equal franchise in England. Such a thing was absurd and unnecessary. The women in America obtained the franchise and still preserved the respect due their sex. After England granted women the right to vote, Miss Pankhurst chooses the Communist party, gets in touch with a revolution in Russia, becomes connected with a seditious publication and is again put under police supervision. Apparently she prefers to ally herself with radicals rather than work along slower lines and exercises a rational and conservative influence for good.

She is but a misguided girl. The ideas she entertains are ideas held by misguided men, but who, being men, are not so spectacular as she. They live in an age of reason and of respect for the other person and these principles, after all, are uppermost in the formation of a state. The old saying that those who live by the sword shall die by the sword is illustrated in the lady. She desired to live in an extraordinary atmosphere of nonconformity and the answer always of the community to such a desire is the prison bars.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing the Indiana Daily Times Information Bureau, Frederick D. Baskin, Director, 1216 Irvington, D. C. This office applies strictly to information. The bureau cannot give advice on legal, medical and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic troubles, nor to undertake exhaustive research on any subject. Write your question plainly and briefly. Give full name and address and enclose 2 cents in stamps for return postage. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

APPLE BUTTER RECIPE.

Q. Will you give a recipe for apple butter as soon as possible? D. B. H.

A. The Department of Agriculture recommends that you measure the apples, wash, slice into small pieces, and for each bushel of apples add four gallons of water, boil until fruit is soft and put through fruit press or rub through a sieve. To the pulp of each bushel of apples add two gallons of cider that has been boiled down to half its original volume. Bring to a boil and add twelve pounds of sugar and cook until almost of the desired consistency, add spices, cinnamon and cloves to taste. When the butter is thick as desired, place in hot containers and seal immediately.

GLASS DISINTEGRATES.

Q. I am curious to know if glass disintegrates when buried in the ground. K. H.

A. The Bureau of Standards says that glass would slowly disintegrate when buried in moist soil. The action on the glass would be due primarily to water and alkali. The disintegrating action would vary with the composition of the glass and the conditions of the soil that obtained in the soil. This action would probably be extremely slow with any glass, and it would probably be centuries before some glasses would be completely disintegrated.

DESERTER'S RELEASE.

Q. Is it true that, if a soldier deserts the military service of the United States and remains in the country two years after the expiration of his enlistment, he may apply for a deserter's release? W. A. T.

A. The War Department says that the period necessary for a deserter to be absolved of punishment is five and not two years after the expiration of his enlistment.

TO KEEP NUTS FRESH.

Q. Tell me the best way to keep nuts from drying after they are shelled. L. G. R.

A. Nuts should be kept in a cool, dry place. By covering them with clean, dry sand they may be kept fresh and plump all winter.

HOSPITAL BANDAGES.

Q. What has been done with all the hospital bandages prepared for the war, but not used? H. R. E.

A. The War Department says that a million dozen roller and more than 2,000,000 compressed bandages, together with 2,250,000 one-ounce packages of absorbent cotton have been disposed of recently, the sale netting more than $1,000,000.

THE APOCRYPHA.

Q. What are the books of the Apocrypha? C. T. R.

A. The Apocrypha consists of Esdras, Esther, Book of Wisdom, Ecclesiastical, Baruch, Daniel, Prayer of Manasses, Tobit, Judith and Maccabees.

HARVEST AND HUNTER'S MOON.

Q. When is the harvest moon, and when the hunter's moon? N. P. M.

A. A September full moon is called the harvest moon, while the October full moon is called the hunter's moon.

CASTOR OIL IN U. S.

Q. How much castor oil is used in the United States? N. E. T.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that the normal annual consumption of castor oil in this country is more than 2,000,000 gallons. The castor beans are imported from India, China, the West Indies and South America and crushed in crushing plants in this country. Imports of the oil are small.

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING.

Q. When was Thanksgiving day first observed? C. K. B.

A. Thanksgiving day originated in the New England States in 1621. After the first harvest, Governor Bradford made provisions for a day of fasting and prayer. In 1623 a day of fasting and prayer in the midst of a drought was changed to a day of thanksgiving because of the coming of rain during their prayers. This was observed annually and soon spread through the New England colony. In 1817 New York adopted it as an annual custom. In 1864 President Lincoln appointed a day of thanksgiving, and since then the Presidents have issued a Thanksgiving Proclamation.

A FEW CANNIBALS LEFT.

Q. Can you go to Africa and be safe from cannibals? A. E. M.

A. The greater part of Africa, particularly South Africa, is civilized and extremely up-to-date in as far as its cities are concerned. The only cannibals now found in Africa are in the extreme central jungle regions, which are practically unexplored. Africa today has many large and flourishing cities, and also a large white population.

A NUMISMATIST.

Q. What are the names given to coin collectors and stamp collectors? F. A. B.

A. A specialist in coins and medals is called a numismatist, while one who collects and studies postage stamps is known as a philatelist.

HAS NO VICE PRESIDENT.

Q. Who is the present Vice President of China? K. C. D.

A. The office of Comptroller of the China is vacant.

TO RENEW GLOSS.

Q. How can I prevent painted surfaces from losing gloss in winter weather? J. O. K.

A. The Bureau of Standards says that to renew gloss, rub to a flat finish and apply a coat of good water-resisting varnish.

THUNDER AND LIGHTNING.

Q. Do thunder and lightning storms always pass in the same direction? F. P.

A. The Weather Bureau says that in the United States they do generally move from a westerly to an easterly direction, but that they may occasionally move in practically any direction.

LEGAL TENDER LIMIT.

Q. Is it true that pennies need not be accepted in amounts larger than 25¢? F. L. A.

A. Pennies are legal tender only up to 25 cents. This is also true of five-cent pieces. Subsidiary silver coins, such as 10-cent pieces, quarter dollars, and half-dollars, are legal tender for amounts not exceeding $10 in any one payment.

SOME DEATH RECORDS.

Q. What were the dates of the deaths of Miles Standish, John Alden and Priscilla Alden? W. L. S.

A. Miles Standish died on Oct. 3, 1656; John Alden, Sept. 12, 1687, but we find no record of the death of Priscilla Alden, although it is known that she died before her husband.

HOROSCOPE.

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

SUNDAY, NOV. 14.

In the morning of this day Uranus rules in benefic aspect, according to astrology. The Sun is friendly in the evening.

This should be a time favorable for the clergy since the planetary government is supposed to open the mind to good impression and to make it responsive to inspiring minds.

Uranus is in a place believed to quicken the subconsciousness so that all its psychic powers may become active.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of travel and change that assure success, but they may meet with business worries that can be eliminated by hard work.

Children born on this day are likely often to change their occupation, but they will probably be always fortunate. Girls have the forecast of marriage to an elderly man or a widower.

MONDAY, NOV. 15.

Jupiter rules strongly for good early today, according to astrology, but Mars is in evil aspect.

The configuration is favorable to all sorts of enterprises that involve initiative and resourcefulness. Manufacturing is subject to a favorable direction of the stars. Persons whose birthdate it is have the forecast of an active and successful year, in which money will greatly increase. Young widows will marry.

Children born on this day will have the power to go through life in high and important positions. They have the augury of great success. Girls should be safeguarded against unhappy marriage. For many of these subjects of Scorpio marry men who are old, and repent ever afterward.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

A New Serial of Young Married Life

By Ann Lisle

CHAPTER XXVII.

"I have rather monopolized Mrs. Harrison," agreed Anthony Norreys amiably when Jim came to challenge him as we sat talking after Virginia's dinner.

"But for the matter of that I rather monopolize you, lad. I'm an old hulk that needs fine young craft to carry it."

You do that for my work. Your wife has just promised to do it for my charity. She's going to let me establish an endowment fund at the Canteen—we're going to dole out 'banana splits' and cake and pudding."

"I'm not sure Anne will continue canteen," replied Jim darkly and ungraciously. "It's fine work—but I don't see that my wife is essential to it. It went on without her for a number of years."

Terry broke in, and as is always the case where he is concerned, Jim at once became peaceable and good-natured.

"Your dope's all wrong, Jim. The idea is to relieve the veterans who have stood the strain for years by having the reserves come in. Every time Mrs. Jimmie has to serve at the dinner hour you can count on me to share your lonely seat on you on your own—old chap."

Jim flushed and stirred uneasily, glancing at me almost in embarrassment at Terry's words. And that told me that what he had done on the one evening I was on canteen duty was by no means so innocent as spending the time with Terry. I wondered if Terry knew—and was at one and the same time trying to secure my freedom for him and to make sure that Jim didn't take too lavish a portion of freedom for himself.

I look back on the evening, I wonder why I wasn't overwhelmed by the burning jealousy that usually overtakes me when I find myself questioning whether Jim is making use of his great fascination and charm for women. Was the faith in myself these subjects of Scorpio marry men who are old, and repent ever afterward.

Phoebe broke in as suddenly as Terry had done.

"I want to work at a canteen, too. I've nothing to do with myself and the days are so long."

"A worthy motive!" commented Virginia dryly.

If I don't care if it is or not, I'm lonely. I guess the boys are, too—so far from home and with the excitement of fighting all over. I'd like to meet 'em—make a few friends. I don't know anyone in New York."

"That's gracious of you, Phoebe," said Virginia—still in the dry, dead tone so different from her usual curt decisiveness. "My friends—Jim's friends will appreciate being counted as nobody."

Copyright, 1920.

(To Be Continued.)

GETS BIG TURKEY IN 'WHITE HOUSE'

Harding Practically House-bound After Rain.

POINT ISABEL, Tex., Nov. 13.—Almost impassable roads following a 24-hour rain, led Senator Warren G. Harding practically stranded on Point Isabel today.

Fishing was made impossible by the heavy north wind which has raged two days. The President-elect had planned a day of golf in Brownsville, but roads in this part of Texas are unsurfaced and a slight rain makes them exceedingly slippery and mired in spots and it was doubtful whether Harding would venture the trip.

Whether Harding gets any outdoor exercise or not he has the prospect of a big turkey dinner. The Chamber of Commerce of Cuero, Texas, sent him a mammoth gobbler in a crate modeled in the form of a miniature White House.

Harding has let it be known he will not enter territorial waters of any other country on his Panama trip. The American minister to Venezuela, Preston M. Goodwin, extended the President-elect an invitation to visit Venezuela and Colombia, but Senator Harding indicated he would not accept.

Plans for the departure from Point Isabel next Wednesday are complete. Leaving at 10 a. m. the party arrives in New Orleans at 10 a. m. Thursday, Nov. 18. Harding will go to the Chamber of Commerce for luncheon and a speech. The party sails for Panama at 3 o'clock.

This is Girl Scout week in Indianapolis. If you desire to assist the girls in obtaining a budget fill out the following coupon and mail it with your check to Edwin J. Wuensch, Fletcher American building.

..... Check

..... Cash

Herewith, $.....

..... Pledge: To be paid before Nov. 1, 1921, as follows:

.....

Name

Address

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....