

CITY HIT LIGHTLY
BY DAMAGE SUITS

Bad Pavements Cost Philadelphia $540,000.

Comparison of the amounts paid out on judgments in damage suits arising from injuries to citizens because of faulty pavements and other causes for which the city government is responsible in Indianapolis, with a report of the legal department of Philadelphia, published in a recent dispatch, shows Indianapolis in a very favorable light.

Philadelphia, according to the dispatch, paid out $540,000 last year and expects to pay $200,000 this year for injuries to citizens which are traceable to holes in streets and sidewalks, faulty catch basin lids and the like. The legal department of the city of Indianapolis had to pay out $6,200 last year and the year before and expects to have to pay $10,000 this year on like judgments.

Dixon H. Bynum, assistant city attorney, acting as city claim agent, said the total asked by persons who say they have been damaged because of holes in streets and sidewalks will be between $150,000 and $200,000 this year.

FAVOR UNIFORM CONTRACT PLAN

Credit Men Directors Outline
Commerce Needs.

The following statement, expressing the sentiment of a recent meeting of the directors of the National Association of Credit Men, which is advocating a uniform contract that would restrict the possibility of cancellations of orders, has been issued by the Indianapolis Association of Credit Men.

"Common sense, not sentiment, emphasizes the need of a strong business conscience as the foundation of an increasing and enduring commerce. History vividly shows that many nations passed entirely out because of the lack of honor and good faith in their commercial policies. This blunder must be avoided by America. Its business conscience must be the controlling quality of its merchants and in all transactions good faith and honor must be preserved. The contract when entered into without conditions should be executed by both parties and to repudiate such contracts by either party is a violation of the principles and is frequently very dishonorable."

"The cancellation of orders when they have been placed in good faith and so accepted should never be indulged by a merchant who places honor first, and has respect for the business conscience."

"Returning merchandise received in agreement with orders without the consent of the shipper provokes disorders in business. The loss of time involved is one of the abuses that affect the business conscience and violates the principles of good faith. These abuses have been too common recently and to the extent that faith in business conscience is severely strained. Because of these abuses, business has hesitated, industries have stopped. Let us agree to contracts and defending good faith, which have prevented these conditions in a large measure and saved much of the waste and disorder which have so seriously affected the business men."

"We appeal in the strongest terms to buyers and sellers for a defense of their honor in the contractual relation. We urge that in the business conscience of every temperament and every tendency that might bring us under criticism and reflect seriously on the sterling qualities of America's business men."

HAD NERVOUS BREAK-DOWN

But Health Restored to Texas Lady
Who is Now Well and Strong,
Able to Do All Her Housework and More.

Rosebud, Texas.—Mrs. Annie Lange, of R. F. D. No. 4, this place, writes as follows regarding her experience with Cardul: "Some time ago I had a nervous breakdown of some kind . . . I was very weak, and so nervous. It all seemed to come from . . . trouble, for at . . . I had fainting spells and suffered a great deal, but more from the weak, trembly, no-account feeling than anything else. I knew I needed a tonic, and needed badly."

"I began the use of Cardul, to see if I couldn't get some strength, as I new of other cases that had been helped by its use. I felt better . . . soon saw a great improvement, so kept it up."

"I used seven bottles of Cardul, and can say the money was well spent, for I grew well and strong. Now able to do all my house work and a great deal of work besides."

If you are rundown, weak, nervous, and suffer from the ailments peculiar to women, it is very likely that Cardul will help you, in the way it has helped thousands of others, during the past 40 years.

Take Cardul, the woman's tonic.
