

VOLUNTEER AID FOR CHEST DRIVE

Many Report for Service in Community Effort.

Stirred by reports of the wonderful success of the community fund drive in Detroit, which reached a total of $1,600,000 Saturday noon, the organization work for Indianapolis Community Chest drive which will start Monday is now going ahead at full speed.

Volunteers wanting to work on the many teams which are being organized under the supervision of the generals are pouring in from all sides. According to Charles Coffin, director of the drive, at least 350 people have volunteered on their own initiative to work. Four generals, Fred Hoke, William J. Mooney, Robert Lieber and Henry Campbell, met today at noon at the Chamber of Commerce to make final division and assignment in the team organizations which are being built up under them. At a meeting of the board of directors of the Community Chest, the appointment of John Smith as general and as a member of the drive committee along with the other four generals was approved. Mr. Smith is expected to meet with the other generals at noon today.

WILL ACCEPT ALL CONTRIBUTIONS.

"Somehow or other the impression has gotten out that the Community Chest drive will be aimed at only those who are able to give large amounts," says William J. Mooney, one of the generals, at the meeting yesterday noon. "We will gladly receive a dime or any amount of money that any one wants to give. The motto of the drive as has been laid out by Mr. Coffin, is 'Help Fill the Community Chest.' This doesn't mean you have to fill it by yourself. We want every one to consider that we want their subscription."

"Factories, workshops and office buildings will all be canvassed." At the meeting yesterday it was brought out that the Cadillac Motor Company at Detroit gave $25,000 to the Detroit Community Chest fund. A record team in Detroit, which consisted of five business men, canvassed thirty people on Friday and secured $80,000.

Work in the speakers' bureau, under the leadership of Jesse Hanft, who is assisted by Edward W. Hunter, business manager of the Advertising Club, is being rapidly put in shape.

SPEAKERS ASSIGNED TO THEATERS.

Four-minute speakers have been assigned, starting tonight, to the following theaters: Colonel, Park, Ohio, Bialto, Circle, Keith's and Crystal.

Those who have been assigned to duty from those who have volunteered are as follows: Albert Stump, V. E. Fields, Fred Chance, Merle Sidener, Leo Kaminsky, Earl T. Hites, Orin Jessup, the Rev. N. S. Siskerman, A. Lowell, J. R. Raub, Dr. C. A. Rector, Alex. Scott, C. G. Askin, J. M. Greenlee, Charles Trank, A. H. Webber, F. G. Braden, H. A. Hussman and Paul J. Maas. An organization of 150 Boy Scouts starts tomorrow morning distributing Community Chest posters over the city. Merchants are urged to assist the boys in getting these posters in the most conspicuous places possible.

Women Efficient in Banking Life of Indianapolis

Miss Henley Holds Down Job of Assistant Cashier in National City Bank.

Although women are doing most everything nowadays that would have shocked grandmothers highly, it isn't every woman who can claim the distinction of holding down the job of assistant cashier in a national bank in a city as large as Indianapolis. But Miss Josephine M. Henley is "holding down" that job in the National City Bank, and judging from all appearances seems to be doing it very effectively and thoroughly.

A long time ago some self-appointed authority gave out a little law all of his own that men were the natural mathematicians and women the language students. However, Miss Henley came along and upset all the nicely calculated tables of statistics proving his theory. With amazing aptitude she discusses stocks, bonds, mortgages and such intricate banking matters. As far as the adding is concerned she does figures in interest with one ear on her caller and the other on her work before her.

Woman prejudiced man saunters into the bank to be directed to Miss Henley's desk. He remarks impressively that he didn't ask to see the stenographer. He is then informed that Miss Henley is next in order to the president of the institution and of course if he doesn't care to do business with her it's all right to the bank. He swallows his traditional antimony toward the inferior sex and is ushered into Miss Henley's desk.

The importance of her position rests lightly on Miss Henley, who laughs and jokes like a "human being." The dignity of having a desk right next to the president does not seem to impress her materially, nor does the fact that she has her name and position on a sign upon her desk.

"Ever since I was a little girl I have always wanted to be in a bank. There was nothing, which seemed more wonderful to my imagination than to be a part of an institution like a powerful bank.
I never thought that those dreams would really come true. But when the opportunity came for me to really work in a bank I felt it was a perfectly wonderful thing."

Miss Henley, who has been with the National City Bank for eight years, has been acting in her present capacity for over a year.

Wedding Cake Proves Fatal to Grandmama

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Nov. 23.—Wedding cake and a dish of ice cream served following the wedding of her grandson, barrow, both of Lake Bluff, caused the death of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Kiam, 66 years old, at the home of her son, Fred Hilly, 617 Prospect Avenue, Lake Bluff, Monday.

To The Patrons —of the— Indianapolis Water Co.

The Indianapolis Water Company has filed its petition with the Public Service Commission, asking for a small increase in water rates.

The increase sought will amount to only a few cents per month to the average domestic user, but however slight, it will affect all of our many customers and we take this method of acquainting our patrons with the conditions which necessitate an increased revenue to this Company.

The Indianapolis Water Company, as a public utility, is obligated to provide the City of Indianapolis, its people and its enterprises with a sufficiency of pure water for domestic, industrial and municipal purposes. Its duty extends not only to the Indianapolis of today, but to the Indianapolis of tomorrow as well.
Fulfillment of this obligation to serve means a constantly increasing investment in pumping capacity, filtration facilities and street mains to safeguard the future of a thriving and prosperous City.
Upon the efficient functioning of this Company depends not only the convenience of our people, but also the protection of property, against fire and, to a degree, the health of the community.

Reasonable Rates

The "reasonable rate" which a utility is entitled to charge for its product is one that will meet the actual costs of operations, including taxes, protect the physical properties as against depreciation and pay a reasonable return upon the fair value of the properties used and useful in the enterprise. The "reasonable return" that a utility should receive is a rate of return that will induce capital to enter the business—that will enable a utility to attract the additional capital needed for street main extensions and other additions to the property.

The present schedule of rates as allowed by the Public Service Commission gave this Company approximately $125,000 annual increased revenue. This amount was required to provide a reasonable return upon the property after meeting an operating expense based upon the experience of the year 1919.

During the year 1920, however, this Company encountered the same upward trend of costs which has wrought havoc with all forms of domestic, commercial and industrial enterprises.

Increased Taxes

Not only have materials and labor advanced, but State, County and City Taxes have risen to unprecedented heights.

The City, County and State Taxes of the Indianapolis Water Company for the year 1920 will amount to $244,000, as against the sum of $157,897.49 for the year 1919.

This marked increase in taxes, exceeding $86,000 for the year, could not have been anticipated by the Public Service Commission in its order last fixing water rates.

We wish the public to appreciate this fact—that the Public Service Commission after investigation allowed us additional revenues for the year in the amount of $125,000, and unexpected increased taxes for the year have absorbed over $86,000 of this relief.

Other costs have aided in practically wiping out the total additional revenues to which the Commission found we were entitled. During the year our Company has been favored by an advantageous coal contract and has not been compelled to pay the peak prices which have obtained during recent months. When this contract expires we will encounter much higher coal prices—even if we are able to secure suitable coal at the prices established by the Special Food and Fuel Commission.

Betterments

During the year 1920 this Company has expended $320,000 in additions and betterments to the property. The requirements of the City for the year 1921, if properly met, will involve a further investment of about $600,000. To protect against a shortage of filtered water during the summer months we propose to begin at once the construction of a ten-million-gallon storage reservoir, which will cost about $285,000. This heavy investment will mean protection to the public, but will not add to the revenues of the Company. We should expend, also, during the year over $200,000 for street main extensions.

The extensive betterments planned will require additional capital, which must be secured at the high interest rates prevailing and can only be secured upon a showing of satisfactory earnings.

Every citizen is directly interested in seeing this Water Company keep abreast of the City's splendid growth. The Company appreciates the important part it must play in the progress and development of the City of Indianapolis. It seeks in its present petition only such added revenues as are required to enable it to maintain the high standard of service which has attended its operations.

The average increase asked of domestic users is only a slight increase per month.

We hopefully ask the co-operation of our patrons in the matter of the pending petition. Very respectfully,

INDIANAPOLIS WATER COMPANY.
