

GIRL SCOUTS AID IN SEAL SALES

Distribute Windshield Stickers to Auto Owners.

Various troops of the Girl Scouts in Indianapolis and Marion County are co-operating with the 1920 Christmas Seal sale, under the auspices of the Marion County Tuberculosis Association, according to announcement today by officers of the local anti-tuberculosis association.

One of the most important tasks that they have accomplished in assistance of the seal sale has been the distribution of the Christmas seal automobile windshield stickers. Few autos in the city now do not have displayed on the lower corner of their windshield the emblem of the annual Christmas fight against the white plague.

Among the troops of the Girl Scouts which have been giving all their time to the seal sale are: Troop No. 1, Mrs. George M. Reeder, captain; troop No. 10, Mrs. H. E. Hayward, captain; troop No. 25, Miss Noodles McCord, captain; scouts from troops Nos. 1, 2, 10, 25, 27 and an unnumbered troop just organized and captained by Miss Eliza Pike. All of the scout troops in the city have co-operated splendidly with the 1920 Seal sale in this and other ways, according to Mary A. Meyers, executive secretary of the tuberculosis association.

Heart Disease Given as Cause of Death

Special to The Times.
LA PORTE, Ind., Dec. 1.—Heart disease was assigned as the cause of the death of Miss Gertrude Travis, 22, following an inquest conducted by Coroner Lewis.

The body of Miss Travis was found in a bathroom and owing to the fact that there was a cut on the girl's chin and a letter found addressed to a man in Chicago, it was at first believed she had committed suicide.

Coroner Lewis said he believed the cut was caused by falling against the bath tub.

Steer Buried Under Six Tons of Debris

Special to The Times.
GREENSBURG, Ind., Dec. 1.—Being buried under six tons of debris and coming out of his experience unscathed was the experience of a 1,200-pound steer at the Ira Miller farm six miles northwest of this city yesterday. Men were engaged in putting fodder in the barn when the barn door gave way. The steer was directly under the falling debris. It took some time to dig him out but, when free, the steer got up and sauntered away as if it was an everyday occurrence with him.

Mrs. Housewife, Do You Know?

1. What is covin?
2. What is a simple test to tell whether hot deep fat is at right temperature for frying?
3. An old-fashioned way to bring up a low coal fire?

(These questions will be answered tomorrow by the Housewife.)

ANSWERS TO YESTERDAY'S QUESTIONS.

1. A Scotch kettle is a broad, shallow iron kettle which is the best to use for deep frying.
2. If more baking powder is used in cake than the recipe calls for the cake will be dry and inclined to be tough.
3. The old-fashioned way to wash blankets without rubbing them on a board was to work the soapsuds through the blankets with a wooden pounder. This is a good suggestion for you if you have no washing machine.—Copyright, 1920.
