

G. O. P. FACTIONS CHORTLING AT ACES IN HOLE

Each Believes It Has the Trick to Swing City Control.

While the Jewett-Lemcke wing of the Republican party in Marion County is planning to clinch its hold on the organization for the city campaign next year through a gerrymandering move, the anti-Jewett faction is preparing to block them.

The Jewett-Lemcke crowd has been quietly laughing up its sleeve at the assertions of the anti-Jewett faction that they are going to seize the city organization when the new city chairman is named in the spring because they have had this gerrymandering in reserve.

The anti-Jewett faction is laughing just as heartily, and as quietly, at the administration outfit because it must depend on the anti-Jewett faction to put through the gerrymandering, if it is put through at all. The anti-Jewett faction has no intention of falling into the trap.

Realizing only too well the strength of the anti-Jewett faction, the Jewett-Lemcke leaders cast about for means of increasing the number of precinct committeemen who will be loyal to them in the election.

of the city chairman. He gets to choose the inspectors in the city primary and general elections.

In a tight election a set of inspectors versed in the game the way it has been played often in this city, can swing the final results one way or the other with little trouble, providing no Federal officers are being allied.

The Jewett-Lemcke control was almost broken last spring when the Marion County Republican committee was reorganized and Dr. E. E. Hodgkin nearly defeated Harry Hendrickson, the present county chairman. Dr. Hodgkin is still one of the anti-Jewett leaders. The anti-Jewett faction has been working steadily toward victory in the city reorganization ever since that time, not even letting up during the recent presidential campaign when they kept their ranks intact through the Harding Club, which had headquarters at the Hotel English.

The only way the anti-Jewett faction can be successfully opposed with this time, the administration faction is said to believe, is to increase the number of precincts in Indianapolis and thereby the number of precinct committeemen. The present city chairman has the power to choose the committeemen to represent any new precincts created within jurisdiction during his term. The administration claims that many of the present precincts must be split in two because of the congestion due to the women voting, as was noted in the presidential election.

Any new committeemen appointed naturally would be administration men, County Treasurer Ralph Lemcke being the city chairman.

Here is where the anti-Jewett faction gets gleeful. The city council is the body which must change the precinct boundaries. The anti-Jewett faction has a majority in the council. What the council is likely to do with any ordinance for this purpose sent to them by the administration forces, is best expressed by President G. G. Schmidt, himself the chief opponent of Mayor Jewett in the legislative body.

"Just let them send up such a measure and see what we do to it," Mr. Schmidt stated.

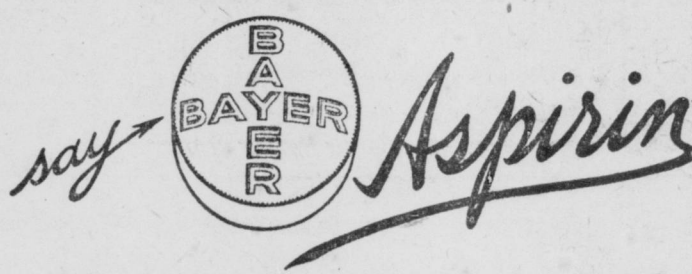

It was pointed out to Mr. Schmidt that the administration men are saying that the council will not dare refuse to increase the number of precincts because public sentiment will so generally and so urgently demand it.

"Just let them try that, too," was Mr. Schmidt's reply. "The Jewett administration has been so responsive to public sentiment itself, particularly while it has been blocking the establishment of the sub market desired by the women of the south side and particularly while the board of works was trying to force through the resurfacing of many streets on which poor people had their homes, regardless of the fact that prices were $11 a front foot as compared with the $3.50 or normal times."

"This little move is one of the clever things I'm quite sure the administration is not going to get by with."
