

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION TO CLEAN ITS SLATE

Chairman Tells of Effort to Dispose of Important Cases
by End of Year.

MANY APPEALS HEARD

All important cases now pending before the public service commission of Indiana will be disposed of and a virtually clean calendar will face the commission Jan. 1, 1921, according to Ernest I. Lewis, chairman. The commission hopes to dispose of about forty cases by the end of the present year. Mr. Lewis said, leaving approximately 100 small cases, some of which have not been filed long enough to be heard and new cases which may be filed between now and the last of December.

Some of these cases also may include those on which rehearings must be held. Should only this amount of cases be left before the commission the hopes of the chairman will have been fulfilled and it will be considered a clean slate.

With the present commission, under the chairmanship of Mr. Lewis, assumed its duties May 1, 1917, 634 cases were awaiting action. On Jan. 1, 1918, this number had been reduced to 324 cases. Jan. 1, 1919 there were 143 cases pending before the commission, and the body has been disposing of an average of 100 cases per month, with 141 cases pending now, to be disposed of before Jan. 1, 1921.

Decisions are still pending with the commission on several important cases on which hearings have been held. Among these are the decision on the Indianapolis Street Railway Company's petition for authority to charge 2 cents for transfers, and for increases in rental rates paid by interurban companies using the city lines and terminal facilities; the petitions of the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Company and the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction Company; and the Interstate Public Service Company; the first two for higher rates in the city of Indianapolis, and the latter for increases in general rates. A petition is pending also before the commission, filed by the Union Traction Company of Indiana, asking for higher fares on the Broad Ripple line.

Decisions, following hearings which have been held, are also to be handed down by the commission, on the petition of the Indianapolis Water Company, for an increase in rates; as well as similar petitions by the Richmond Gas Company, South Bend Electric Light and Power Company, Indiana Power Company of Indianapolis, Terre Haute Gas Company, Terre Haute Water Company and Terre Haute Electric Company.

The present year has been an exceptionally strenuous one for the commission, according to Mr. Lewis. Due to the reconstruction period following the close of the war, and the accompanying readjustments, hundreds of petitions from utilities that were trying to survive after the war, have been received and of course have had to dispose of them as quickly as possible. Especially were hardships encountered by the smaller, and by many large utilities, due to the serious coal situation.
