

Empty Booze Jugs Found in Wake of Talks Against Rum

Charwomen at Capitol Find Evidence of 'Stores' in Law-making Citadel.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Some "dry" Congressmen simply must have their liquor. Discoveries nothing short of amazing to the uninitiated, made by charwomen cleaning up Capitol offices preparatory to opening of Congress, this morning show that consistency is not always a virtue, especially in matters of whisky.

Senate lawmakers, be-frocked and full of speech, make tirades against the evils of liquor in the halls of Congress, but as these new discoveries prove, it does not lessen an appetite for whisky, so easily appeased after their mask of congressional decorum is torn off, and they retreat to the privacy of their secret closets.

For forty Senators and Congressmen who stocked up before the advent of the "terrible drouth" stored some of their private stocks in their Capitol office hiding places. One Senator, well known for his "dry" spellbinding, has stored in his own sanctum, away from the rabid mob, five barrels of Kentucky bourbon.

Some Bourbon, that fellow, they say.

Some of the other fifty have almost as much, but scarcely any of these "wet" enthusiasts acts in private and "dry" apostles in public, have less than ten cases of bottled whisky goods on tap, with plenty more in warehouses to replenish the stocks.

Only One Superman in U. of California

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 10.—Only one "superman" has been found among the students of the University of California, examined by the physical department, according to Prof. Frank Kleeberger. Professor Kleeberger ascribes the failing of perfect physical specimens to the cessation of military training.

Walter McGinty, a sophomore in the college of mechanics, is the "superman" at the university this year. He is not connected with any of the athletics of the institution. Eight other students registered high grades.
