

Annual Exhibition of Paintings Will Open New Year's

Many Hoosiers to Display Works at John Herron Art Institute.

Special Exhibitions—Works by American artists, ten pieces of sculpture, four—Week days, 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.; Sundays and holidays, 1 p. m. to 9 p. m. Admission—Sundays and holidays free; other days, 25 cents. Children and teachers are free.

The thirty-sixth annual exhibition of the recent paintings by modern American artists will open at the John Herron Art Institute on New Year's day, and will continue through the month of January. In the collection, which contains more than fifty paintings by prominent painters, there is one painting each by the following Indiana artists: T. C. Steele, William Forsyth, Otto Stark, J. Otis Adams and Clifton Wheeler. At the same time a group of ten pieces of sculpture by modern sculpturists will be on display.

The pictures are hung in the east gallery and the adjoining alcove, with groupings of the works by the same painter. The artists who are represented in the exhibition are: Ernest Lawson, Theodore J. Morgan, George Lawrence Nelson, Edith C. Phelps, William Scott Pyle, Charles Reiffel, Jacob Richard, Guy C. Wiggins, Margaret W. Huntington, Irene Kahn, Anna Lynch, Mary Nicholson, MacCord, Frederick C. Frieseke, Frederick M. Grant, George M. Brewster, Robert Henri, Childre Haslam, John F. Carlisle, Charles F. Egan, Henry W. Rancier, Gilbert Gaul, Charles W. Hawthorne, Wayman Adams, Harry Leth-Ross, Valery Vytell, William Wendt, Sidney M. Wiggins, Charles M. Woodbury, Cornelius Boker, Elton Case, Randolph La Salle, George, Gertrude Pike, Will Howe, Fouth, Daniel Garber, Lucio Harrath, Aldro T. Hibbard and Eugene Higatus. Mr. Carlisle, whose "Portuguese Villa, Cape Cod" is on display, formerly was a student in the art school of the institute.

LOCAL WOMAN LOANS PAINTINGS.

Mrs. John N. Carey of this city has loaned fifteen paintings by American artists from her private collection. Other local persons who have contributed to the exhibition are Dr. E. Victor Keefe, Miss Lucy M. Taggart and Eli Lilly.

The sculpture pieces are by: Jesse Cohen's "Hospitality," John K. Daniel's "The Combat," Laura Gardin Fraser's "Baby Goat," Leo Friedlander's "Bacchante," Gaston Laubach's "Woman's Head," Albert Lamb's "Penguins," Emory P. Belcher's "Don," Katherine Beecher Stearns' "Dancer With Symbols" and Marion Karp's "Magdalena." "Torn Linen," by Frieseke, is one of the outstanding pieces in the exhibition. This large painting, which is strikingly realistic, is considered one of the artist's best works, having been exhibited with favorable comment in a number of eastern cities. Frieseke, who studied under Winslow, Lawrence and Stuart, has works in the Luxembourg Museum of Paris, the Metropolitan Museum of New York, the Art Institute of Chicago, the Art Museum of St. Louis and the Detroit Art Institute. He was awarded the Potter-Palmer gold medal in 1910 prize at the Chicago exhibition. In November he was awarded the gold prize at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, the silver medal at the St. Louis Exposition and the gold medal at the Chicago exhibition. One of his notable works, "Yellow Room," owned by Mrs. Carey, is also on exhibition.

ARTS WORKS SHOWN.

"Chordland," a typical work of William W. Brown, known as the "western" realist, is attracting attention in the gallery. Weidt, who was born in Germany, came to the United States at an early age. As an artist his work is a remarkable example of self-teaching. He has his works placed in the National Arts Club of New York City, the Chicago Art Institute and the Cliff Dwellers' Club of Chicago, as well as in numerous art museums and clubs in the western states. He was awarded the bronze medal at the Pan-American Exposition held in Buffalo in 1901, the Kahn prize in 1904, and honorable mention at the 1904 St. Louis Exposition.

One of the group of American painters known as "the younger set," who has been pleasing mode of presentation, is Ernest Lawson, who has five canvases on display at the institute. Of these four are the property of Mrs. Carey. The outstanding characteristic of all the artist's works is strength and vigor combined with beautiful colors. He shows a fondness for depicting landscapes of green and yellow combinations and for making bridges his study. Lawson, who sent a large group of his work to the institute for exhibition in February, 1916, is not a stranger to the patrons of the art galleries. His canvases are owned by the National Gallery of Washington, D. C., the Brooklyn Institute, the Metropolitan Museum and the Montclair Art Museum. His work shows restrained evidence of his two years study in France. It is also obvious to the connoisseur that he was a student of John Twachtman. He was awarded the silver medal at the 1904 St. Louis Exposition, the gold medal from the American Art Society of Philadelphia in 1907, the gold medal at the Panama-Pacific Exposition and the first Hallgarten prize in 1917.

M'CRAY SPEAKS AT GREENSBURG

Says He Will Demand Efficiency in State Affairs.

Special to The Times.
GREENSBURG, Ind., Dec. 31.—Governor-elect McCray addressed a courtroom full of farmers at the closing session of the Decatur County Corn Show here Thursday night. He took for his subject, "The Model Indiana Farmer," and spoke on the progress of the farmer who runs his farm on a business basis. Breeding of high-class live stock was also touched upon by the Governor-elect.

Referring to his coming administration Mr. McCray committed himself to a business-like administration and said he would conduct the affairs of the State in the same manner he had conducted his farm, demanding efficiency from every department. He said he hoped to be as successful as a Governor as he has been as a farmer. The hearty cooperation of the Decatur County people was asked in his new work.

Quits a stir of mirth was caused when the Governor-elect was asked by Ed Hancock to come to Greensburg and he replied he did not see how he could spare the time, since he would leave behind in Indianapolis so many of his worthy constituents, who wished so much to talk with him about those things which are within his power at this time to give.
