

ESCAPES FARM; COPS GET HIM

Winfield James' Experiences in Law Violations Cover
Long Period.

"It's cold turkey to get away from the penal farm, but I was a fool for drinking whisky after coming to Indianapolis," declared Winfield James, 45, as he sat in a cell in the police headquarters today. "I got a double cross on my appeal bond on my second blind tiger case, and I paid $75 for the signing of that bond. They kept me thirty-two days on the penal farm when my time was only thirty days."

James, three times convicted of operating a blind tiger, escaped Sunday night from the Indiana State Farm and came to Indianapolis. James was arrested at the "Pine" hotel, 1214 North Alabama street last night by Motor Police Division and Landers. When James saw the police enter the hotel, he fled to his room, but they were too close on him and he was arrested.

Bad luck has followed James since April, 1918, he declares. The case was convicted in city court of operating a blind tiger and Special Judge Fred Bonfield fined him $50 and costs and sentenced him to serve thirty days on the Indiana State Farm. The case was appealed and the Indiana State Court, William H. Walle, signed the appeal bond. The appeal was withdrawn after bond and the sentence was withdrawn.

James was at that time proprietor of a restaurant on Massachusetts avenue, and whisky and automobile tires were in his place. These tires, it was said, were some that had been taken from freight cars in the Big Four Railroad yards in Brightwood. James said he served more than fourteen of the stolen tires in his restaurant.

Last fall Sgt. Ed Helm called a number by telephone and said "send me two dressed chickens to 25 North Noble street." The "chickens" arrived and Sergeant Helm arrested James, who drove in an automobile in which was found two bottles of whisky. James was found guilty of operating a blind tiger and fined $100 and costs and sentenced him to serve thirty days on the Indiana State Farm. The case was appealed and Fred Lutz signed the appeal bond. However, on Jan. 3, this year, the appeal was withdrawn after James had been convicted of operating a blind tiger a few days before that date.

Sergeant Deeter arrested James on the charge of operating a blind tiger while the appeal was pending, after the case was appealed and a squad of police raided James' house on Christian street and captured thirty gallons of "white man" whisky. On that charge on Dec. 30 Judge Walter Pritchard found James guilty and fined him $200 and costs and sentenced him to serve 180 days on the Indiana State Farm. James' appeal bond was $1,500. The case was appealed and the appeal bond was signed by Fred Lutz and John W. Corydon. The case was set for trial Monday in Criminal Court.

The records show that the fines on the two recent blind tiger convictions had never been paid.

Records of Criminal Court show that James' case was set for trial Monday, but was continued because the defendant was at the Indiana State Farm.

G. Hog Did Not See His Shadow Till Afternoon

Now Actions Depend Upon
What School of Thought
You Follow.

There are two schools of thought in "groundhogology," according to J. H. Arrington, meteorologist at the United States Weather Bureau in Indianapolis. One school sets forth the theory that if Mr. Groundhog emerges on the morning of Feb. 2 and sees his shadow, a ducks right back into his nest and stays there for six weeks. Not seeing his shadow at the first peek, he comes all the way out, stretches himself, and then proceeds to break his winter fast, no matter if the sun breaks through the clouds the very next minute.

The other school adherents declare that Mr. Groundhog is shy all day Feb. 2. That is, he may not see his shadow when he first steps out and may start about, proud in the consciousness that he has brought spring to a winter-weary world, when all of a sudden, because of a flick and deceitful sun, he sees his shadow right there beside him—then the stuff's all off. He knows he's made a mistake and immediately goes back to hibernate until well along in March.

Mr. Groundhog peered out early and there was no shadow to greet him. He came out, looked around, to make certain that his eyes had not deceived him and then stayed out, according to tradition, but along in the middle of the afternoon the sun broke through the clouds.

So, all ye who follow the dictates of Mr. Groundhog may govern yourselves according to doctrines of the school in which you are enrolled.

Case of Much Wanted Man Pushed Ahead

The case of Carl Fearnought, 25, arrested at the home of a relative at 3331 Central avenue, yesterday on the charge of vagrancy and being a fugitive from justice, was continued in city court today until officers from Atlanta, Ga., can reach this city. Fearnought, police say, is wanted at Atlanta in connection with a hold-up of a man named Priest, who was robbed of a watch and furs valued at $500.

Detectives Reilly and White who made the arrest, say that O. C. C. postoffice inspector at Atlanta, also wants Fearnought in connection with the investigation of three postoffice robberies in Georgia.

MYSTERY SCENARIO FORTUNE SLIPS AWAY—AND WIFE TOO

Stoker, Back at Boiler, Wonders Whether Mate Was Really Author or Only a Check Writer

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 2.—A fortune made writing scenarios has slipped away from Stoker, back at boiler, wondering whether mate was really author or only a check writer.

His wife, whose mysterious influence baffled Foster, has disappeared, leaving him with three small children to care for. He never knew how much or how little she had, Foster said, until last October, when she was found dead in a rooming house, a victim of a mysterious poisoning.

Foster does not care if she never returns, he said. She left him bankrupt—and firing a boiler. Bankruptcy records show that Foster was forced with bills totaling $14,000 worth of clothes he never knew she bought or wore.

He never knew whether she actually wrote a scenario, but he knows she had large sums of money last May and June. It dwindled rapidly, until last October, when she was found dead in a rooming house, a victim of a mysterious poisoning.

"We were sitting in the Cozy Theater last May," said Foster, "when the name, 'Eva H. Foster,' flashed on the screen. The picture was 'The Bramble Bush,' and I believe Corinne Griffith was the star. I laughed about it at the time and never dreamed it might be my wife. She had never told me she was writing scenarios. A few days later she came into the garage and worked until 2 p. m. On account of the nature of the business in certain offices a few of the janitors work from 5 to 9 a. m. and from 4 to 8 p. m.

The custodian states that these janitors do other things than cleaning, such as running errands and putting away books in various offices. It would seem that these janitors should not perform any other service than that for which they are hired, in view of the numerous complaints that have been made as to the inadequacy of their service in the past.

Whenever they are not busy doing the routine work they might be giving their attention to the various public documents used by the citizens and members of the bar so that these documents and records might be as free as possible from dirt and dust. The condition of these documents is one of the greatest sources of complaint and unquestionably could be corrected.

REQUISITION. The custodian, who is paid a salary of $1,500 a year, has charge of the janitors and is well versed in the maintenance of the building. He has held this position for three years. Needless to say, like most of public officials, he had no previous training for the work. Among other things, he purchases the materials and supplies used in the maintenance of the building. He is supposed to be approved by the county commissioners, but this requirement is not regularly complied with. It is obvious that a centralized system of purchasing would be a great improvement to the county and would cut down tremendously the number of requisitions.

The custodian fully realizes many of the weaknesses of the present system and seems very anxious to put his work on a sounder and more business-like basis. If it meets with the approval of the county commissioners it will be possible to arrange for a group of buildings and to meet with the custodian, go over his problems with him and suggest better methods.

It is likely that the county might save considerable money if they should employ a few well trained and broadly educated men, who has had experience in operating and maintaining buildings. The county at the present time is not paying sufficient salary to secure such a man.

The report also found that the basement of the courthouse is commonly used as a loading place, especially in the winter months. The report suggested that the cooperation of the police be used to prevent congregating in the basement.

The problem of comfort stations was discussed. The county commissioners have already arranged for a restroom for women at the courthouse.

$250,000 Damage Suit Results of Red Raid

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Alleging "inhuman treatment" and conspiracy which resulted in the death of her husband, Mrs. Mary Marcinak of Passaic, N. J., today filed suit in the District Supreme Court for $250,000 damages against Attorney General Palmer and Anthony Caminetti, commissioner general of immigration.

Mrs. Marcinak, in her brief, relates a story of "inhumanity and cruelty" on the part of the agents of the Department of Justice which, it is claimed, accompanied raids on "reds" early last year.

How many perfectly well women do you know? Isn't it true that in order to keep up with the march of progress the endurance of a woman is often strained to its utmost, and the tax upon her physical system is in many cases greater than she can stand. Headaches develop, and nervous irritability attacks, dragging down sensations, and other painful ailments peculiar to women. The reliable remedy when a woman gets into such a condition is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as for nearly half a century it has proved the natural restorative for these troubles.—Advertisement.

BLAMES DIRTY COURTHOUSE ON SPOILS SYSTEM

ing dirty and insanitary conditions at the courthouse.

The report was no sooner read at the meeting of the county council than Councilman Albert T. Newby rushed to the rescue of Benjamin S. Peirce, custodian of the courthouse. Mr. Newby stated that he "suddenly appeared" at the courthouse several days ago and made an investigation of the conditions and claimed he was surprised at the good condition, considering the age of the building. In the face of the Tracy report Newby contended that Custodian Peirce was doing the best he could.

The council took a few seconds in which to pass a resolution thanking Mr. Tracy for his investigation of Court-house conditions.

Mr. Tracy stated in his report that there are 91,050 feet of office space in the courthouse and one-third of this amount is in the fourth floor. He found that the fourth floor is used only a little by the public, as most of the records are kept there.

COSTS MORE THAN 15 OFFICE BUILDINGS.

Janitor service cost only $12,353.18 for 1919, while janitor service for 1920 probably will reach $15,300, which is a part of a total courthouse employees' expenditure of $21,500 for service and supplies.

Mr. Tracy stated in his report: "Figuring the cost of cleaning per square foot of office space in order to make a comparison with the cleaning cost of office buildings, we find that including the fourth floor, the cost for 1919 is 15 cents per square foot and for 1920 17 cents per square foot; not including the fourth floor, the cost is so rarely used, the cost for 1919 is 17 cents per square foot and for 1920 20 cents."

The present cost of cleaning a square foot of space in the courthouse is 15 cents, but in recent years it has been going higher. With the present cost of labor costs going down, it is not likely that the cost of cleaning office buildings will go higher. Considering, therefore, the character of the county courthouse as a building and taking into consideration the fact that most of the rooms are large as compared to the rooms in office buildings, the cost of cleaning seems to be higher than it ought to be.

This investigation came about largely because frequent complaints have been made in regard to the janitor service. It is true that considerable improvement has been made in the last few months, but there is still great room for improvement.

Much better results should be obtained from the amount of money being spent. Without making odious comparisons with other buildings, it might be interesting to point out that the city hall is kept in quite a clean condition at a cost of 18 cents per square foot of office space. The city hall, of course, is a comparatively modern building.

In discussing the janitor force at the courthouse Mr. Tracy reported as follows:

The janitor force consists of twelve colored men and three colored women. They are employed by the county commissioners and not by the custodian, who has supervision over them. They frequently deal with the county commissioners directly instead of through the custodian, who is their superior. This is not a good practice. The man who is to direct these janitors should have more to do with their hiring and should have the responsibility of maintaining discipline among them. Some of the janitors are advanced in years and are capable consequently of only a degree of efficiency.

Various rooms are assigned to the janitors to be cleaned. These divide the basement between them. Four take care of the first floor, three to the second, three to the third and one to the fourth floor. They are paid a salary of $85 a month. Most of them report at 5 a. m.

and work until 2 p. m. On account of the nature of the business in certain offices a few of the janitors work from 5 to 9 a. m. and from 4 to 8 p. m.

The custodian states that these janitors do other things than cleaning, such as running errands and putting away books in various offices. It would seem that these janitors should not perform any other service than that for which they are hired, in view of the numerous complaints that have been made as to the inadequacy of their service in the past.

PRaises SHEET METAL BRANCH

Contractors' President Speaks at Convention.

That the auxiliary to the Sheet Metal Contractors' Association of Indiana has a larger membership than any like organization in the country was set forth in the address of Joseph C. Gardner, president, at today's session of the second annual convention of the association at the Denison Hotel.

The auxiliary is an organization of journeymen and salesmen affiliated with the sheet metal trade in Indiana.

Mr. Gardner touched on an overheard expense statement and said that the sheet metal trade is in a large city and help the apprentice system a great deal. He urged the contractors to encourage young men in their employ to attend these schools.

An address of welcome was delivered by J. B. Reynolds, general secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and the response by Mr. Gardner.

The afternoon program included the reports of officers and reports from local associations, a question box conducted by the president.

Bloodless, thin, anemic people should try the refreshing tonic powers of a good alternative and blood purifier. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a standard remedy that can be obtained in tablet or liquid form.

Muncie, Ind.—"When I had a severe cough, night sweats, loss of weight and appetite, I tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took it faithfully for about 40 days, and gradually I gained; the cough disappeared and I put on flesh and got strong again. I have had no cough since, for 14 years."—Mrs. Lucy McCoy, 512 E.
