

GOVERNORS OF STATES REPORT BUSINESS GAIN

Up-Grade Tendencies Prevail in Different Quarters of United States.

OPTIMISM IS KEYNOTE

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Business throughout the country is on the up-grade.

Governors of representative States today wired that the industrial outlook in their respective States is optimistic. The worst of the depression is past, they said.

Just at present there is much unemployment in Pennsylvania, and the slowing down of industry, but there has been some improvement in the textile trade and lighter manufacturing, Governor Spruell of Pennsylvania declared.

"I do not expect the depression to continue and feel that within the next few months we will be going along in a groove and progress will be made," Governor Blaine, Wisconsin, said.

A number of factories there have reopened and the State employment bureau is receiving more call for help than for several months.

"Although Arizona has suffered from the depression," said Governor Campbell, "the situation is improving."

"That is a clear violation of the law," declared the court, and Simpson was fined $1 and costs.

Charles Wengard explained that he owned a small automobile which had been parked in front of 24 Kentucky avenue to make room for a truck to unload coal and that the small car was never used but that he was arrested for failing to display licenses on the small automobile. The charges were dismissed.

Howard Howe told the court he had had his automobile only two weeks and admitted he had not obtained a license. He was fined $1 and costs.

"Citic" Long said he did not own the automobile he was driving, but had just repaired it for an insurance company and was taking it to the owners when arrested. Dismissed.

George Clegg said: "Judge, I just neglected to get a license." He was fined $1 and costs.

George H. Amt said he could not run his closed car and used his open machine to drive downtown. His closed car, he said, had a license. He showed receipts for licenses for both cars.

John Shelton pleaded guilty and was fined $1 and costs.

Charles T. Simpson said he had the license on his car and had the 1921 license under the seat when arrested. "That is a clear violation of the law," declared the court, and Simpson was fined $1 and costs.

MANY EXCUSES OFFERED COURT Original Ones Explain Lack of Auto Licenses.

Some original excuses were offered in city court today by persons who were charged with failure to display automobile licenses. Special Judge John P. Robbins heard the cases.

Charles Wengard explained that he owned a small automobile which had been parked in front of 24 Kentucky avenue to make room for a truck to unload coal and that the small car was never used but that he was arrested for failing to display licenses on the small automobile. PACKERS' BILL IS BLOCKED IN THIS CONGRESS

Federal Control Problem Likely to Be Left for Next Session.

COMMITTEES AT ODDS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Whether there will be legislation for governmental regulation of the packing industry at this session appeared problematical today.

The House Agriculture Committee, of which Representative Haugen, Iowa, is chairman, has materially changed the House "K. K." bill and will send it back to conference.

Whereas the Senate bill created a special commission to regulate the packers, the Haugen bill would put control under the Secretary of Agriculture, with an added proviso that livestock men come under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

It was the decision of House leaders that none of the governmental agencies should be created at this time and that all additional work deemed necessary should be left to existing governmental bodies.

If the conference can succeed in getting together to the extent of reporting out a single bill reconciling the differences between Senate and House, the packers bill may be passed at this session. Otherwise it will be relegated to the incoming Republican Congress.

BARNETT SAYS BOOZE IS NOT HIS PROPERTY

room in the lower part of his house in Fifteenth street where I could have space to exhibit my merchandise to persons who wished to buy. I paid him $7.50 a month rental for the room. I had the house and started to rent to me, some time ago I sold the contents of one trunk, and the other merchandise was in that room when the police made the raid.

I was arrested and taken to the police house in my life until the police took me up there yesterday. The man who ran out of the back door and escaped from the policeman who shot at him, was the man known to me as John Brown.

ATTEMPTED BY SHOOTING. Barnett went to the residence on Fifteenth street after I stored the merchandise there because I had no occasion to do so. When I heard the shooting yesterday I stepped from the room where I had my merchandise stored into a vacant room across the hall and looked out of the window to see who was shooting. I was in that room when a man entered and started to shoot at me. I saw a search warrant. Mr. Brown told me he owned the house.

Samuel J. Barnett was released on a bond signed by Nathan Bowman, 1633 Ashland avenue. The bond was for $2,500.

"I had planned to move my merchandise from the house today," Barnett stated. "I had planned to move my merchandise from the house today, and was to have obtained possession in sixty days and was to have had the use of the garage on Central avenue today, and planned to move my merchandise from the Fifteenth street house to the garage."

"Besides Mr. Brown did you ever see any other men at the Fifteenth street house?" Barnett was asked.

"Yes," he answered. "I saw two other men, but I never saw more than one man besides Brown in the house at the same time."

The police regard the raid as the most important that has ever been made in Marion County. The amount of whisky captured is the largest ever brought to headquarters after one raid. Lieutenant Cox's report shows that there were 141 quarts of whisky, four barrels each containing fifty gallons of whisky, three barrels each containing about thirty gallons of whisky, many empty jugs, sixty-seven empty bottles, twenty-two empty tin cans of the four and five gallon size, seven full barrels of mash from which whisky is manufactured and fourteen barrels each about one-third full of mash, a gallon of coloring material, two testing glasses and three traveling bags, one of which contained what the police say are fake government bottles in bond revenue stamps.

The arrangement of the bill was clever and original. The still, a fifty-gallon type, was as large as any ever captured here. The still was on top of a gas range and the mash in it was boiling and bubbling. A large copper tube led from the top of the still through a window into the bathroom, where the condenser, a brass can filled with copper tubing, was found in the bath tub. Cold water was running in the bath tub to cool and condense the liquor.

The men who operated the still, the police say, would color the "white wash" corn whisky, bottle it in bottles bearing the labels, "Glenmore Whisky, guaranteed to be pure natural whisky, bottled in bond, Glenmore Distillery, Owensboro, Ky." The permit for medical use on the back of the bottle was "Permit K. R. 25."

The stamp across the bottles resembled a revenue stamp and said "Tax Paid." The permit for medical use was "Permit K. R. 25" and red ink was used to make the permit look like a revenue stamp.

Many extra labels and fake stamps were found and brought to police headquarters by the who have.

this war, we can't find a way to rid ourselves of all this we will be pretty stupid."

"From my intercourse on the other side I should say that sentiment is very strong to find a way to decrease the burden of armament. I believe they would welcome an invitation to a conference."

Rear Admiral Sims revealed himself at odds with Secretary Daniels and other high officers when he expressed the belief that in the future aircraft will play a more important part in naval warfare than great battleships.

DENY U. S. FINANCED KERENSKI AGENTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Denial was made today by the State department of charges that the United States Government has financed agents of Kerenski.

State department officials stated that the Russian embassy here closed out contracts of the Kerenski government after the fall of the Kerenski government and were made to the embassy it was at the time when it was impossible to tell whether Kerenski or the Bolsheviks were in power.

What Will Anyone Know About Today's Act 50 Years Hence?

History repeated itself in the State Senate today when an appropriation of $1,000 for a monument on the grave of former Governor Asahel P. Willard at New Albany was appropriated.

Fifty years ago yesterday exactly the same appropriation was made, and no one knows what has become of it. Attention was called to this fact by Senator Roscoe Kiper of Boonville, who read the following paragraph from the "fifty years ago today" column of an Evansville paper yesterday:

"The State Legislature appropriates $1,000 for a monument to the late Governor Asahel P. Willard."

A similar appropriation was made for a monument at the grave of former Governor Michael C. Kerr.

WINNES JURORS IN FIST FIGHT

Sheriff Puts Stop to Battle in Juryroom.

HARTMAN, Ky., Feb. 4.—A fist fight in the jury room today broke up the jury of Dr. H. C. Winnes, charged with murder in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Anna Parsons school teacher.

Those cases which could be cured and therefore admitted to service, as a judge, in the prevalence of these diseases among the new recruits.

Developed mental defects. This is very important since an army of judges have saved a good many of these boys.

(A good deal of this certainly was preventable.)

Digestive diseases. Pulmonary tuberculosis. Tuberculosis of other organs than the lungs.

"Surely the State can do something for institutions which will prevent some of this at its source."

The council is representative of hundreds of Hoosier women, as various organizations over the State are affiliated with it, including the Indiana Federation of Clubs, Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Woman's Relief Corps, Ladies of the G. A. R., Woman's Press Club, Indiana Federation of Business and Professional Women, Parent-Teacher Association and Indiana Indicators of Progress.

Mrs. Edward Franklin White of Indianapolis is president of the council.

The body is taking up questions of vital interest to women in a serious manner, urging the women of the State to use their influence with their respective legislators in regard to such bills.
