CHILDREN GET HOOVER LETTER

Message Conveys Thanks for Gifts to Relief.

Herbert Hoover, chairman of the European Relief Council, has written a letter to the school children of Indiana thanking them for the interest and generosity toward the fund for starving children of central Europe. The letter has been put into the hands of teachers to be read to the children, who have donated more than $3,000 to the Hoover fund.

"American children who give in this national collection will have the satisfaction of knowing that in millions of homes in Europe they will be held in reverent love and gratitude," wrote Mr. Hoover. "For unless we save the children until the next harvest multitudes of them will certainly perish. In normal times these European children who are suffering are very much like our own American boys and girls, ambitious for learning and with the same capacity for relaxation in sports and social contact as our own children."

"On behalf of these helpless children please thank the Indiana boys and girls who are donating themselves."

Special music was provided by a mixed quartet under the direction of Charles F. Hansen. An orchestra of twenty-five pieces gave a concert preliminary to the regular program.

It was announced that Dr. Arthur W. Evans of Wales, nephew of Lloyd George, British prime minister, will speak next Sunday on "Our Country, Our World—Today, Tomorrow." Women are invited to attend Feb. 28. The series of meetings closes Feb. 27, with an address by Bishop William A. Quals.

WIFE 'TRADED' FOR $500 LOT

Woman Charges Husband Signed Formal Contract.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—Marie, 20-year-old wife of Eric Johnson, was sold to their butcher, Berger Peterson, for a vacant lot valued at $500 by her husband, she charged today.

The transaction was drawn up in legal phraseology by a Chicago attorney, she said.

Police unearthed the alleged "sale" when Johnson, in an attempt to retrieve his wife, went to an apartment where he was beaten, police said, by Gus Peterson, the butcher's brother.

The men were arrested for disorderly conduct.

Johnson told police that his wife had run away from Rockford, Ill., with the Peterson brothers, Berger, Peterson and Mrs. Johnson were arrested by police during a raid on a hotel. It was then that she told the story that Johnson agreed to relinquish all rights to her for the lot. All four are in jail.

CHILD DANCES WAY TO FAVOR

Petite Leona Meyers Stars in Hewes Program.

With the dainty airiness of a golden, gauzy butterfly, petite Leona Meyers danced her way into the hearts of the huge audience that witnessed the fifth anniversary program of Mile. Theo Hewes' School of Dancing at English's last evening. There is no doubt but what Indianapolis art lovers support their home folk, for the theater was filled to its seating capacity.

The baby ballet, made up of tiny tots from 3 to 7 years of age, brought rounds of applause from the spectators as the little dancers, with unconscious childish grace, tripped through pretty numbers.

Little Miss Meyers, who looked about 5, together with dainty Mabelle Sherman, made a tremendous bit in the number, "Cupid and the Butterfly," where Miss Leona, as the coquettish butterfly, showed promise of future dramatic ability as a danseuse.

One clever bit that brought rounds of applause was the unique and pleasing pantomime, "The Gossips." Five young colored girls, in colorful frocks and quaint bonnets, flitting their fans, gave a realistic interpretation of the number.

Mile. Hewes, in what was one of the most artistic and finished dances on the program, "The Death of the Swan," was warmly greeted by her friends. Her movements were graceful and satisfying and she was forced to repeat the number.

She also gave another solo number, "Rainbow and the Bubble," which was her own creation and was decidedly artistic. The feature called "Vanity" was dramatically given by Mile. Hewes, assisted by M. Ferdon.

"The Torch Dance," requiring dexterity together with muscular strength by those taking part, was out of the ordinary and brilliant.

All the numbers were worthy of comment. Although the cast was made up of amateurs, with the exception of Mile. Hewes, it was devoid of awkwardness, speeding along with surprising smoothness.

The Indianapolis Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Raymond S. Decker, who also designed the scenery and light effects, gave excellent support in the handling of the musical settings.

An interesting fact concerning the program was that Mile. Hewes originated, created and taught all the dances presented with the exception of the Pavlova favorite, "The Death of the Swan."

It was announced that the performance would be repeated on the night of Feb. 20.

The company is composed of the following students of Mile. Theo Hewes: Dorothy Brun, Anna Bassler, Helen Bonner, Laura Bishop, Emma Brink, Irene Carroll, Dorothy Carothers, Margaret Carson, Jane Craib, Margaret Cummings, Agnes Gray, Mary Jane Doherty, Grace Denison, Frances Egan, Maxine Fitzgerald, Martha Jane Fromm, Patricia Ferdon, Dorothy Farley, Maxine Ferguson, Lucille Faut, Margaret Ford, Mary Catherine Garner, Thelma Gahan, Gladys Gates, Gladys Hammel, Elsie Hahn, Margaret Hahlich, Marie Hunt, Dorothy Haynes, Thelma Viola Hase, Martha Hayes, Josephine Hicks, Elizabeth Jackson, Janice Jones, Alice Jones, Helen Johnson, Louis Kennedy, Dorothy Kunkler, Mary Kishoff, Estelle Kirkwood, Irene Lawson, Dorothy Larison, Martha Lundy, Helen Lepkovitz, Hilda Lohse, Ruth Lipford, Leone Louise Meyers, Patricia Mulvey, Wilma Mikesell, Helen Johnson, Lois Kennedy, Dorothy Virginia May, Edna Mansfield, Ortrude Miller, Lillian Markowitz, Margaret McKee, Frances McPherson, Margaret McMillen, Merle Miller, Julia McGraw, Bernadine Nicholas, Bertha Newman, Gwendolyn Piper, Cornelia Pike, Lola Paugh, Marie Phillips, Carolyn Pinkus, Ruth Penery, Lillian Robbins, Juanita Russell, Esther Russell, Eloise Shick, Dorothy Seeley, Virginia Singleton, Minnie Shang, Agnes Stonehouse, Betty Shireley, Rose Schwartz, Mabelle Sherman, Emily Schick-Schmidt, Thelma Simmons, Margaret Smith, Flora Selig, Emma Summers, Edna Strong, Virginia Thompson, Constance Thompson, Kathryn Talkington, Thelma Wabnitz, Flora Wilson, Beatrice Worley, Margaret Winkler, Edna Winkler, Mary Paxton Young, Jack Broderrick, Earl Bixler, Earl Frankhouse, M.
