

GIRL WAS 'BOSS' ON LOEW'S STATE

Ann Dornin Is One of Three Women Architects in Country.

Equally as interesting to theatergoers as the building itself is the fact that a woman supervised the work on Loew's State Theater, which opens at 1 o'clock next Monday afternoon.

Miss Ann Dornin, a native of Norfolk, Va., a graduate of the architectural school of Columbia University and the first among her sex to become a supervisor for an architect, is the woman in question.

Coached in early youth by her mother, who was a designer of fabrics, Miss Dornin took the work more seriously on leaving high school and secured a position in an architect's office in Norfolk, where she learned the rudiments of the game. Finding the field limited, she entered the architectural school of Columbia University, from which she was graduated with one other girl student.

Although backed with a perfectly good diploma, Miss Dornin next found her hardest task, that of convincing some architect that a woman was quite capable of filling a position in his office.

"At that time architects did not feel that a woman would take the work seriously enough," explained Miss Dornin, "and I trudged around New York, week after week, and, in fact, months before I finally secured a position with Thomas W. Lamb, who has designed more theaters than any other architect in the world."

"My position with Mr. Lamb was not an overimposition one at the start, but it meant a great deal, as he began immediately to teach me interior decorating and the manner in which to supervise 'a job.' My first really important job came with the construction of Loew's Metropolitan in Brooklyn, N. Y. Meeting with some measure of success there, Mr. Lamb confined my duties solely to theater work and I have opened many Loew theaters since that time."

Asked if she did not find the task of bossing men rather difficult, Miss Dornin replied in the negative. "To the contrary the workmen on the jobs seemingly try to make my work easier, turning my entire career I have only found one man who was impossible to deal with and who thought that women were incapable of the work entrusted to me. I do not believe he would get along smoothly even among men."

Miss Grace Dornin, a sister of the architect's supervisor, in an aspirant to the movie screen.

On next Sunday night D. W. Griffith's screen version of "Way Down East" will open a limited engagement at the Muncie. Plans have been made to make the local showings of Griffith's latest picture an event of much importance. Two shows will be given daily with the exception of the opening Sunday.

"Way Down East" is being presented simultaneously in New York (in two theaters), in Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, St. Paul, Minneapolis and numerous other cities.

The cast that interprets "Way Down East" is headed by Lillian Gish, and includes Richard Barthelmess, Mary Hay, Burr McIntosh, Lowell Sherman, Craig, Tom Hale, Mrs. Morgan Belmont, Kate Bruce, Edgar Nelson, George Neville, Viva Ogden, Porter Stong, Josephine Bernard, Mrs. David Landau, Patricia Frien, Florence Short and Emily Fitzroy and Myrtle Stuch.

The screen version of "Way Down East" is based upon the simple tale of plain people revolving around the love of David Bartlett and Anna Moore in a New England rural community as originally played upon the stage in the dramatic tale by Lottie Blair Parker for a decade.

A thrilling climax, showing the rescue of Anna by David after her battle through the night with the storm and the great ice jam and the foe on the river, has been universally proclaimed the greatest scene ever seen within a theater in the world's history.

Among the attractions on view today are: William Collier in "The Hotpot," at English; "Take It From Me," at the Marat; Hyams and McIntyre, in "May," at Keltie; string band at Lyric; popular vaudeville and movies at the Rialto and Broadway; "Cute Cuties," at the Park; "The Frontier of Stars," at the Ohio; "Mamma's Affairs," at the Circle; "The Children in the Case," at the Colonial; "An Amateur Devil," at the Alhambra; "Half a Chance," at Mister Smith's; "Brewster's Millions," at the Isis; and "The Western Adventurer," at the Regent.

Two Women on Jury Hearing Bank Suit. GREENCASTLE, Ind., Feb. 9.—Trial in the case of Roscoe White against the Farmers' State Bank of Bainbridge is now in progress.

White, a local farmer, filed suit against the bank to collect money they lost when the Bainbridge Bank was robbed by burglars in December, 1918. The bank refused to make good the $35,000 in Liberty Bonds and war stamps which the burglars obtained, the plaintiff charges.

If White wins the case all the others will be tried, it is said. If he loses, all will be dropped.

Among the jurors are two Greencastle women, Mrs. W. O. Timmons and Mrs. U. V. Daniels, who were on the regular venire. The women answered all questions to the satisfaction of both sides and were accepted, while several men were excused for various reasons.

Woman's Post Bans German Language. Mrs. E. J. Robinson and Mrs. Myron R. Williams were named as delegates to the Woman's Post War Council at the chapter meeting held yesterday in the green parlors of the Y. W. C. A.

The chapter adopted resolutions protesting against the teaching of German in public, private and parochial schools of the State and endorsing House bills 14 and 41 in regard to the kindergarten. Copies of the resolutions are to be sent to the Legislature.

County Seat Fight Is Compromised. CLINTON, Ind., Feb. 9.—The county seat fight, which has long been an issue between this city and Newport, has been settled by compromise.

After a week's campaign more than $100,000 worth of stock has been subscribed by 142 stockholders representing the leading commercial and professional interests of the city.

A Home Made Gray Hair Remedy. Gray, streaked or faded hair can be immediately made black, brown or light brown, which ever shade you desire, by the use of the following remedy that you can make at home:

Merely get a box of Oriz powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in 2 oz. of distilled or rain water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for use and a $100.00 gold bond come in each box guaranteeing the user that Oriz powder does not contain silver, lead, zinc, sulphur, mercury, aniline, caustic products or other derivatives.

It is safe, does not rub off, is not sticky or gummy and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger.—Advertisement.

Ship, Ten Days Overdue, With Crew of 42, Gives Sea Mystery

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Another chapter in the annals of the mystery of the sea was written today, following the continued silence of the American cargo carrier Hewitt, which is now ten days overdue. The vessel of 5,398 tons, gross, carried a crew of forty-two men, was modernly equipped and had a wireless on board. It is owned by the Union Sulphur Company of this city.

On Jan. 20 the Hewitt steamed out of Sabine, Texas, with a cargo of sulphur for Boston, an ordinary eight-day run. It traveled over the regular steamship channels, but has not been seen nor heard of since she left Sabine—has vanished completely as if in thin air—remains of the fate of the U. S. S. Cyclops, which mysteriously disappeared without leaving any trace, with all on board.

In the early morning of Feb. 2 coast guardmen at Atlantic City reported they saw a glaring flash in the Atlantic Ocean, followed a moment later by a tremendous explosion.

The nature of the cargo of the Hewitt has led to fears that the flash and explosion reported by the guardmen may have been caused by an accident to the missing steamer and that the vessel may have sunk before the wireless operator could have sounded a call for help. But no wreckage of any vessel has drifted ashore to an Atlantic port, or has been reported by coast guardmen.

In some quarters the faint hope is held out that the Hewitt may have become disabled by a heavy storm in the Atlantic and her wireless put out of commission, accounting for her failure to reply to repeated wireless calls. It is hoped that the ship may be slowly crawling to some port. Little confidence is placed in this theory, however, as the Hewitt has been eighteen days on her journey and could have made a port before this.
