

MARION COUNTY SURVEYOR BILL PASSES HOUSE

Salary of Official Placed at $4,500, Fees Go to Treasury.

SALVAGE ACT FAVORED

Two bills affecting Marion County were introduced by Representative John L. Benedict, and the other by Representative Frank J. Noll, Jr., were passed, and another, introduced by Representative Benedict, was defeated in the Tuesday afternoon session of the House. One of the bills passed was increasing the salary of the county surveyor, and the other was for exemption of the Indianapolis salvage corps from taxation. The bill, which was defeated was that which provided methods for attacking the truthfulness of a sheriff's return on papers served by a sheriff.

The passage of the bill increasing the salary of the Marion County surveyor to $4,500 a year marked the second salary increase for local officials passed during the day, a bill increasing the coroner's salary having passed during the morning session. Both bills were not included in the Benedict bill abolishing the fee system in Marion County, which passed during the morning session Tuesday, because they were not constitutional offices.

STRAIGHT SALARY

Under the surveyor bill, the official fees given a salary of $4,500 and all fees collected by him shall be turned into the county treasury. He shall receive no additional compensation by per diem or otherwise as county engineer, the bill provides.

The bill, which had gone to third reading, was called back to second reading on a motion to reconsider by Senator Harold Van Orman of Evansville, who moved to amend the bill by striking out the part in reference to trust companies doing a life insurance business.

This amendment brought forth a stormy debate. Friends of the Van Orman amendment insisted that passage of the bill, as it stood, would put thousands of insurance agents out of business and that it would place trust companies in a position to demand of persons making loans that they do their insurance business with them. The amendment was passed 26 to 18.

Immediately after passage of the amendment Senator C. Oliver Holmes of Gary moved that the bill be referred and the bill placed on its passage. Without further discussion the bill was passed, 40 to 1. The dissenting vote was cast by Senator Howard Cann of Frankfort.

The bill providing that the State food and drug department shall pass on all medicines advertised as cures for tuberculosis, was passed to a vote of 21 to 18.

The Senate passed the bill by Senator Harold Van Orman of Evansville, who moved to amend the bill by striking out the part in reference to trust companies doing a life insurance business.

EDITORS ASKED TO TURKEY RUN

Democratic Scribes Get Invitation for Summer Meeting.

Richard Lieber, director of conservation in Indiana, today extended an invitation to members of the Indiana Democratic Editorial Association to hold their summer meeting at Turkey Run State Park. Mr. Lieber pointed out that this park is very accessible, possesses modern conveniences in a wilderness, and as a convention place has few equals in the State.

His invitation to the editors, sent through W. L. Silhark of Bloomfield, president of the association, in part read as follows:

"Permit me to extend an invitation to members of your association through you, as president, that they hold their summer meeting at Turkey Run State Park. Turkey Run is one of the most beautiful spots in the whole of Hoosierland, and I assure you a decision of the editors to gather there this summer will be a great pleasure to members of the conservative convention and myself."

"If not already familiar with the topography and native wooded growth, much of which is centuries old, that makes the place ideal for recreational purposes, a visit will convince the editors, I am confident, of the necessity of more intensive saving of our primitive beauty spots for State parks, in order that Hoosiers to come may find in them relief, quiet rest far from the congested centers of the central cities and their teeming thousands."

"Merely get a box of Oxley powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extra to buy. Dissolve it in 2 oz. of distilled or rain water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for use come in each box. One box will last you for a long time."

"It is safe, does not run off, is not sticky or greasy, and leaves the hair dusty. It will make a gray haired person look many years younger."—Advertisement.

Senate Rejects Amendment for Insurance Business.

The bill permitting trust companies to do a general banking business today is in the hands of a conference committee of the House and the Senate, following its passage by the Senate without the House amendment providing that trust companies may engage in the life insurance business.

The bill, which had gone to third reading, was called back to second reading on a motion to reconsider by Senator

Harold Van Orman of Evansville, who moved to amend the bill by striking out the part in reference to trust companies doing a life insurance business.

The money reached the State department of conservation in a plain envelope bearing the stamp of the Wabash post office. The only writing inside was the words "conscience fund."

Officials are of the opinion the money comes from some one who violated fish and game laws.

The Truth About Indianapolis

BELT RAILROAD

ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-FOUR factories are located on sites along the 15-mile Belt Railroad, which connects the seventeen divisions comprising the five railroad systems passing through Indianapolis. About twenty-five sites, ranging from one-half acre to ten acres, are yet available along the Belt road. Last year twelve new industries built plants on Belt road sites. The company plans an extension when all the sites are occupied.

Twenty-one engines on the Belt Railroad last year handled 240,000 cars of freight, while the engines of the other five railroad systems using Belt tracks distributed and hauled 890,000 cars. Tonnage passing over the Belt tracks in 1920 aggregated 56,500,000 tons. The Belt Railroad was largely responsible for the constant service to Indianapolis industry and commerce when other freight centers in the United States were congested in the past year.
