

PROPERTY FOR WAR MEMORIAL IS NEED—COFFIN

Public Hearing Held on Bills Providing for Site Purchase.

MANY SPEECHES HEARD

Acquisition of the property on which it is proposed to erect the World War memorial and the subsequent construction of the building to be used as national headquarters of the American Legion, would center the eyes of the world on Indianapolis, declared Charles E. Coffin, president of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce, last night at the public hearing on the three Indianapolis World War memorial bills introduced by the Marion County Representatives.

The hearing was held by the committee on the affairs of the city of Indianapolis, and was attended by representative citizens, city officials and members and officials of the American Legion. Representatives Kingsbury, chairman; Cox, Newman, Benedict, Abrams and Noll were the only members of the committee present.

Samuel Ashby, Indianapolis corporation counsel, at the beginning of the meeting, set forth the purposes of the bills. He said there were three measures, the State, city and county bills. The city bill would give Indianapolis the authority to purchase or condemn for purchase the property proposed for the memorial, or would give the city authority to act jointly with the county in acquisition of the property; the county bill would give the county the same privileges, while the State bill would give the State authority to accept the donation of the property for the erection of the memorial.

The exact assessment of the property in the squares between the Blind Asylum and University Park, in which the memorial is to be erected, is $2,253,040, according to Representative John L. Benedict.

STATE GIVEN POWER TO ACCEPT.
Mr. Ashby stated the bills were the same as were passed in the special session of 1920, except with the amendment that the State is given the power to accept the gift of the property, and that any city and county in the State is authorized to act jointly in the acquisition of property for the erection of a memorial.

He said a tax levy of approximately 5 mills would be sufficient to take up the bonds and interest which would be sold in order to pay off the debt on acquisition of the property. The bonds would be for a period of fifty years and the first would fall due in five years, he stated.

With a total assessment in the county amounting to $711,000,000 and a city assessment amounting to $600,000,000, the county would pay one-eighth of the total cost of the memorial, Mr. Ashby said.
---	--

Mr. Ashby introduced the other speakers: Mayor Charles W. Jewett, ex-mayor John W. Holtzman, Dr. Charles R. Souder and Col. L. R. Gignat, commander of Culver Military Academy and State commander of the American Legion. There were no talks made against the memorial.
---	--

AVERAGE TAXPAYER NOT OPPOSED.
The average taxpayer of the State or county would not object to the levy of a small tax for the erection of the memorial.

In the belief of Dr. Charles R. Souder of Indianapolis, who served as a captain in the 11st Infantry, and who saw overseas service, Dr. Souder told the committee he was appearing as a private citizen and not as an ex-service man.

He said there could be only two objections to the proposed tax levy. These objections would be made by the property owners within the two squares to be used, who might say that the acquisition of the property might prevent the development of business. The other objection, he said, might come from the large taxpayer, who would object to any increase in his taxes.

He said the man assessed on $50,000 today and in $1,000 would pay $3 in the fifty years.

"Any service man would gladly have given three times that amount for a glance at the Goddess of Liberty, while they were serving overseas," he said.

SAYS PROPERTY HOLDERS WILLING.

Mr. Holtzman spoke of the willingness of most of the property holders to resign of the memorial.

More men voluntarily entered the service of the United States from Indiana than from any other State in the Union, Colonel Gignat stated. He impressed on the committee members the necessity for having the proper location for the memorial so that it might not have its effectiveness detracted from by surrounding buildings.

Mayor Jewett was the last speaker, and a plea was made by him for immediate action, lest the opportunity to acquire this property for the memorial be gone in two years, when another session of the Legislature will be held.

He said that since the beginning of his administration he had realized the value of the ground on which it is now proposed to erect the memorial and declared he had always thought the ground should be taken over by the city as a civic project.

MEMORIAL STATE AFFAIR.

Mayor Jewett declared the citizens of the State certainly could not object to the memorial being erected in this city, since it is the capital and the city of every citizen of Indiana.

He declared that while Indianapolis asks many things of the Legislature, that now the proposition is different, and that the Legislature is asking the right to give the State something.

The statement advanced by some that the memorial might depreciate property values was discounted by the mayor, and he declared the erection of the building

LEGISLATORS' PAY REDUCED TO $12 A DAY

Economists in House Slash Senate Provision After Seven Attacks.

BILL TO THIRD READING

After seven attempts to reduce the pay of legislators, as set out in Senate Bill

No. 92, introduced by Senator J. Fred Masters, Indianapolis, economists in the House were successful in reducing the amount from $1,000 a year to a per diem of $12 yesterday. Many parliamentary tactics were used in an effort either to kill or to save the bill as it came from the Senate.

The bill was on second reading and an amendment was first offered by Representative Raymond E. Willis, Steuben County, which would make the per diem salary $10. This motion failed.

An effort was next made by Representative Charles E. Dean, Jefferson and Scott Counties, to cut the salary to $600 a year. Immediately Representative Willis was on his feet and stated he would oppose any increase except a per diem of $10, which he thought equitable and just.

COMES BACK TO ECONOMISTS.

Representative Claude A. Smith, Gibson County, who forsook the economists long enough to get through a bill increasing the salaries of Circuit and Superior Court judges, came back "to the fold," as members expressed it, and worked against any increase.

Representative Elmer W. Sherwood, Greene County, was the first member to speak in favor of the salary increase. He declared he had no fear of the people back home if he voted to increase salaries. He said it is an outrage to ask any person to come to Indianapolis and serve for $6 a day.

A motion by Representative Ed E. Youse, Huntington County, to strike out the enacting clause of the bill was tabled on motion of Representative J. Glenn Harris.

OTHER PROPOSALS ARE TABLED.

Representative William R. Jinnett's motion to table the Dean amendment, calling for a $300 a year salary, was successful. Next came Representative George Freeman, Howard County, who has opposed practically all salary increases, with an amendment making the salary of the legislators $300 a year, the salary of the Speaker $5 a day and that of the Lieutenant Governor $1,200 a year.

Freeman's motion was tabled on motion of Representative Jinnett, as was a motion by Representative Henry Abrams, Marion County, to make the salary $1,000 for the term, or $500 a year.

Representative Murray S. Barker.

Boone County, then informed the House he had an amendment that carried a per diem of $12 and, following stirring speeches on economy, the motion was adopted.

Representative Clinton H. Givan then moved that the enacting clause of the bill be stricken out, but his motion was tabled on motion of Representative Harris. The bill then went to third reading.
