

'BRAD' HENNESSY
DIES IN ST. PAUL*Widely-Known Writer Succumbs to Pneumonia.

W. B. (Brad) Hennessy, 55, widely known newspaper and magazine writer as well as a political economist of note, who for the last four years has made his home at 1229 Park avenue, died last Friday night at the home of his brother, Joseph Hennessy, in St. Paul, Minn., according to word received by friends here. Funeral services and burial were held in St. Paul today.

Although he had been suffering from an organic stomach ailment for nearly a year, death was due to pneumonia. He was visiting at the home of his brother in St. Paul when he contracted a cold and the fatal illness followed. Mrs. Hennessy, the widow, will continue to make her home in Indianapolis and probably will return here from St. Paul in several weeks.

Mr. Hennessy was known from coast to coast as a newspaper man of unusual ability. After being graduated from one of the leading universities in this country he went to London, where he spent several years in study and then returned to America. He later made several return trips to London. He was associated with the late William F. McCombs when the latter undertook the management of the Woodrow Wilson campaign in 1912. For a number of years Mr. Hennessy devoted himself to the writing of fiction, under a variety of pen names, as he always was unusually modest concerning his work as a writer. He was an intimate of Eugene Fields in the latter's Chicago days.

During the last four years Mr. Hennessy devoted his time to the writing of articles combating radicalism in this country and, according to his friends, he was the first man in the United States to point out the danger of Bolshevism. Much of his work was done for an Indianapolis labor publication and his thorough understanding of social and economic conditions, as evinced in his articles, led to frequent reproductions. He also contributed articles to the Wall Street Journal and other financial publications.

Although an unusually studious man, Mr. Hennessy also was widely known in sporting circles and likewise enjoyed a wide circle of friends in this sphere. He was a member of the Indianapolis lodge of Elks.

Suspects Are Held

Glass Workers Will

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES.

WEDNESDAY TO BE 'FISH DAY'*Observation Possible Far
From Sea or Lake.

Residents of districts far from either the Great Lakes or coast sources of supply will be able to enjoy fish dinners on national fish day, Wednesday, and even those in the most remote sections may dine on cured or canned marine delicacies. The day will serve to bring home to those at a distance from the fishing grounds the importance of keeping the fleets at sea, for the fishery is a practical school from which come sailors and officers to man merchant and naval ships. In addition these men form an important factor in the wealth-producing class of the country, for every fish taken from the water is new capital added to the wealth of the Nation. For this reason it is well to eat domestic packed fish products. The use of imported goods adds no more wealth to the United States than the use of imported grain. In fact, the fishermen are the farmers of the sea, the one difference being that they reap a harvest prepared by nature which does not require planting.

In addition to being an economic food the plentiful varieties of fish, such as cod, haddock, herring, mullet and the lighter grades of salmon form a most important part in a well-balanced diet.

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES.

She did not regain consciousness until Sunday night.

Visits Sugar Camp

The Nature Study Club, under the direction of Miss Anna Gunther, made a trip to S. M. Hendricks' maple sugar camp, near Southport, Mr. Hendricks showed them the process of making the syrup from the tapping of the trees to the sugar making. An interesting incident of the afternoon was the showing by Mr. Hendricks of an early tax receipt for the sum of 84 cents, paid to the Government for taxes on the present home site. The farm was bought by Mr. Hendricks' father in 1826. An open air dinner, cooked over blazing camp fires, concluded the afternoon outing.

CHICAGO CHURCH*Crossed Wires in Organ Loft Blamed.

CHICAGO, March 7.—The Cathedral of St. Peter and Paul, one of Chicago's most noted churches, is in ruins today, following a fire which is believed to have been caused by crossed wires in the organ loft. Although heroic work on the part of the Rev. Charles P. Street and the Rev. E. P. Sabla saved the sacred vessels and vestments, many valuable relics were destroyed. The church was built in 1852 and was once the center of Chicago's wealthiest and most fashionable district.

STEAM TOURING
CAR TO BE OUTPUT*George A. Coats Perfects New Motor Product.

George A. Coats, capitalist and representative of large steam interests, 1213 Merchants Bank Building, announces that he will manufacture and market a steamperson, six-cylinder steam touring car of 110-inch wheelbase, with electric lighting and starting, to retail at about $1,000. A commercial speed wagon for all light delivery purposes will be built on the same chassis.

It is said the Coats construction embodies several distinct advances which have interested leading steam engineers, and for many months the Coats experimental shop in this city has been visited by steam specialists from all parts of the country, and the operating models have been taken down and put together many times, not a feature escaping critical examination.

It is said it is in the rear axle that engineers and laymen find one of the most fascinating advances in the Coats car—the direct application of the steam to the wheels, absolutely eliminating the geared differential.

In speaking of the car, Mr. Coats said: "The rear axle is the engine—or the engine is the rear axle—whichever way you choose to consider it."

"It is engine, axle and differential function, all in one—the engine in its housing being just about the size of the ordinary rear axle gear case. It is without doubt the most compact engine in automotive practice. The whirling of each half of the axle carries three fixed cylinders, set at 120 degrees apart or one-third the circle. These cylinders are exactly like those of the automobile engine—with poppet valves, pistons and connecting rods. The bore is 3 1/2 inches, stroke 3 inches. The three connecting rods in each half are pivoted to a crank pin integral with the drive shaft of each wheel. At a speed of forty miles an hour the engine is running at the very low speed of 500 revolutions per minute.

"It will be observed that an overlapping stroke is obtained. Before one cylinder is entirely off pressure, another has begun to take hold, and a third is completing its exhaust."

In actual tests, Le said, the Coats car is doing twenty to forty miles on one gallon of kerosene, and, with the Coats steam and water cycle one filling of the water tank runs the car from 300 to 500 miles.

The exhaust steam is taken by return pipe to the condenser, which is located in front of the boiler in the position of the ordinary radiator.

The initial heating for starting is electrical—controlled by switch on the cow board.

The Coats car, completely equipped, weighs less than 1,800 pounds, and has less than forty moving parts.

WASHINGTON, Ind., March 7.—Between $400 and $500 in currency and checks were turned loose to the mercy of the winds on Main street when L. B.

There was a scramble, one bystander chasing a $20 bill a block. An inventory showed all the money had been recovered.
