

KEEPING HOUSE WITH THE HOOPERS

(The Hoopers, an average American family of five, living in a suburban town, on a limited income, will tell the readers of the Daily Times how the many present-day problems of the home are solved by working on the budget that Mrs. Hooper has evolved and found practical. Follow them daily in an interesting review of their home life and learn to meet the conditions of the high cost of living with them.)

"I wonder what the Browns will do?" said Mrs. Hooper as she tied on Betty's bib. "They can't rebuild their house without money, can they? It really worries me as to how they can possibly get started again."

Mrs. Hooper was referring to their next door neighbor, whose house had burned last week, and upon which there had been not one cent of insurance.

"There are only two things he can do," Henry answered. "Mortgage the lot for enough to start building or sell the place and begin life again, just renting a place in which to live."

"Poor Mrs. Brown," exclaimed Mrs. Hooper. "I do feel so sorry for her. She had such a comfortable, well-kept house. I could weep when I look over there and see nothing but a heap of ashes."

"Imagine that man going on all those years with no thought of providing for just such a calamity," said Henry, helping himself to a hot muffin. "I can't understand it."

"He told me he never had money left from his salary each week to pay an insurance premium," added Mrs. Hooper. "But that's nonsense," her husband asserted.

"Oh, I don't know," said Mrs. Hooper. "It takes a great deal of will power to conserve $5 every week for that purpose when there are so many things to be bought that seem absolutely necessary."

"Well, it is fortunate for us that you are never tempted to spend it, Mary," replied Henry, admiringly.

"Oh, but I am tempted," laughed Mrs. Hooper. "and I'd hate to tell you how many times I've very nearly succumbed, and gone out and bought something that some one of us really needed."

"Mother has been pinning for some new dishes for ages, dad," said Roger, "and the insurance money will never be safe until she gets some. I wish grandmother would give her a tea set for her birthday."

"Roger, dear, please don't even hint such a thing in grandma's presence, will you?" exclaimed mother in an anxious tone.

"Oh, no, I'm too polite for that, mother," laughed Roger, "but I do wish it, all the same."

"To return to the Browns and their insurance, Henry," Mrs. Hooper said. "I wish if you get a chance you would speak to Mr. Brown about carrying some on his life. It would be perfectly terrible if anything should happen to him. His wife would be destitute with those two children."

"I certainly will do that," promised Henry, as he pulled on his gloves preparatory to starting for his work, "and I'll tell him how we manage to do it."
