Arkansas Counties, Where 62 Lives Were Lost, Begin Building Back.

HOPE, Ark., April 18.—With the aid of Red Cross workers citizens of Hempstead and Miller Counties, devastated by last Friday's tornado which took a toll of sixty lives, have begun building back. Wreckage is being removed from farms in the two stricken counties and the injured are being cared for, army tents furnished by the National Guard serving as temporary hospitals.

Property damage and crops losses in the two counties swept by the twister will be in excess of $2,000,000, it was estimated.

On the Texas side of the border, at Atlanta, O'Farrell and Avenue, where the damage probably will reach $80,000, the work of building back is under way. Eighty trees, uprooted by the force of the gale, are being cut up and the Bankhead Highway at Shepherd, a little town near here, where the Missouri Pacific railroad suffered a washout, is being repaired. It is estimated that at least a week before the roads, made soggy by the heavy rains, will be in shape for normal resumption of traffic.

ATTACK VICTIM SAYS SECRETARY MAYOR IN GANG

me. I have not found my coat. I have been told by the wife of a man named Wallin that he had been yesterday by telephone to talk over the affair. He denied her that he struck me or kicked me, but did not deny that he yelled "step on him." I don't know who the two men were with Wallin. One, I was told, is named Chapman.

MR. WALLIN GIVES VERSION OF AFFAIR.

Mr. Wallin, who was at his office in the mayor's suite at the city hall as usual today, was asked for his version of the Garden Point affair.

He said that as a member of a party of four he drove to Garden Point about midnight Saturday, after having been at a theater earlier in the evening. After this party had ordered a supper he said he left the main entrance of the building, which was directly at one side of the main entrance, he said he observed six or seven husky men engaged in some sort of a quarrel in the doorway. "I started to push through to my table when two big fellows pushed me aside and rushed on past. I saw them come fellow, I don't know who they were. I afterward was told his name was Miller. I did not hit anybody and had no reason to."

SEVERAL MEN LYING ON GROUND.

He said the quarrelling men went on through the doorway and he also stepped into the doorway. Two or three men lay on the ground in connection with the fight. "There was an automobile drawn up right in front of the door. I stepped out to it and noticed that the driver had a young woman with him and that evidently the men who were fighting were known to him. He was fumbling nervously with his levers. I said to him:

"For God's sake get your party in your car and drive away, or there will not be any trouble here."

"He wanted to know who I was and I told him: 'Never mind who I am; get your party in the car and drive away.'"

"Mr. Wallin said the machine was driven away and that he rejoined his own party, which left shortly thereafter."

U. S.-JAP NOTES BARE 'TENSITY' IN YAP MATTER

unable to follow the American contention. It was plainly intimated that if President Wilson had arrived at such an understanding regarding Yap he differed in that respect from all the other powers present.

"OPEN DOOR" POLICY FOR HER TO DECIDE.

This communication also asserted flatly that the United States reserved entirely the matter of deciding whether the "open door" policy would be pursued as regards allowing other powers "free and unhindered access" to the island for cable purposes.

"Nor is the imperial government alone and unsupported in their interpretation of the decision," said the Japanese reply, "for they are in receipt of authentic information that the governments of Great Britain and France being of the same opinion as the Japanese government, as latter made statements to that effect in their replies to the American note in November last."

The Japanese controversy rested until the Harding Administration came into office a week later. Then Secretary of State Hughes, on April 5, dispatched his now famous declaration of the "fundamental principles of American policy" to the four great powers—Japan, Great Britain, France and Italy. The notes to the four great powers were practically identical.

The one sent Great Britain was made public four days ago. That sent Japan differed only in that it replied to the Feb. 26 communication and referred to the previous correspondence regarding Yap.

Secretary Hughes followed a slightly different track. Whereas the previous American notes had been devoted largely to setting forth what had happened at Paris, the Hughes note was made up entirely of the League of Nations' fundamental rights in the controversy, regardless of what had happened at Paris.

AMERICA ENTITLED TO FRUITS OF WAR.

The United States, it was pointed out, had decidedly not delegated to the supreme council the League of Nations, or any other power, the right of deciding American questions, or to bind the United States or to act in behalf of the United States.

The United States, it was emphatically stated, could not consider that it had lost its interest in Yap through any action of the supreme council or the League of Nations, and "cannot recognize the allocation of the island or the validity of the mandate to Japan."

FRENCH SUPPORT PROMISED U. S.

Japan to date has not replied to the Hughes note. France alone of the great powers has replied and her reply, contrary to Japan's claim of French support, indicated she intended to support the American viewpoint.

The American note of Dec. 6, after the exchange of the brief cables in November, and three specific instances at Paris whereby President Wilson had given notice that America would make reservations concerning Yap. These were on April 21, at a meeting between Lloyd George and Lloyd George; at a meeting of the foreign ministers on April 30, and again at a meeting in Mr. Planchon's room (the French foreign minister) on May 6.

"At the meeting of May 6," continues the note, "in the discussion regarding the allotment of mandates in the Pacific, Mr. Lloyd George expressed his understanding that the Japanese request for a mandate for certain islands north of the equator. According to the record, President Wilson consented in principle to this, with an explanatory statement that the Japanese request should be based on the 'open door' would have to be applied and that there must be equal opportunities for the trade and commerce of other powers of the League. The island of Yap, however, had been previously by a special case for particular future consideration, was not intended to be included among the 'certain islands designated as available to Japan under mandate.'"

HAS NO KNOWLEDGE OF CERTAIN MEETINGS.

The Japanese reply of Feb. 26 said: "In the meetings referred to (in the American note) it must be noted that the imperial government was not present at the meetings of the supreme council on April 21, May 8 and May 7, and in consequence the imperial government have no means of ascertaining what views were expressed by the American delegates at those meetings. Assuming, however, that ex-President Wilson did in fact give utterance to such views as are ascribed to him, the imperial government considers it necessary for the American government to prove not merely the fact that the particular line of views was stated at the meetings, but also that the meeting decided in favor of those views."

"CANNOT AGREE ON SUCH VAGUE GROUND."

"This conclusion is what views were professed since the imperial delegation never expressed their agreement with the above stated views of President Wilson or Mr. Lansing."

"Furthermore, the imperial government cannot agree in giving an extraordinary and unusual interpretation to the decision on a vague ground that certain thoughts and intentions not expressed in the text were entertained in the minds of the delegate of one power only."

COUNCIL WILL THRASH OUT YAP

LONDON, April 18.—The questions raised by the recent note of the United States Government on the island of Yap are of such importance that the whole council will be called to the attention of the prime minister in May, it was officially stated today.

It is learned from a reliable source that an effort will be made to postpone the final decision as to a joint or identical allied reply to the American note until June, when Premier Lloyd George is expected to confer with representatives of the British dominions on the question of renewing the Anglo-Japanese treaty.

SUES AFTER AUTO CRASH.

FRANCE CALLS TROOPS TO DUTY

1918-19 Classes Ordered Out in Preparation for Drive Into Ruhr.

LILLE, France, April 18.—Orders recalling the classes of 1918 and 1919 to the colors were received here today. The orders also called for the remobilization of the first army corps.

The orders reported in the foregoing dispatch were believed to be part of France's preparations for an advance into the Ruhr valley if Germany fails to meet the terms of the Versailles treaty by May 1. Marshal Foch and government officials are known to have completed plans "to go into Germany as ballist to collect her due."

PARIS, April 18.—The French War Department today denied it had called the 1918 and 1919 classes to the colors. The orders are a case on file, and the orders are known to have been called for aroose from a mistake in police headquarters there.

SHANK SHOTS EIGHT QUERIES AT MR. JEWETT

papers? Are you only playing to the grandstand in those matters?" "Do you think it fair to threaten city employees with the loss of their jobs if they do not support your candidate?"

"You have had a sample of the city machine's opposition to rate increases in the case of the street car company," said Mr. Shank. "Under the company's contract with the city, it is obligated to give service up until 1925 at the rate of six rides for a quarter. If the company could not do that it should have to stand the loss. Why should a public service corporation be called any more than any other money making concern?"

If the city was willing to allow an increase to get better service there might be some reason for taking such a course. But no better service would be obtained if the city was willing to allow an increase to get better service there might be some reason for taking such a course.

At noon today Mr. Shank spoke at the American Union club, 116 East Washington street. Tonight he will speak at 545 West Washington street, 2345 Prospect street, Spann avenue and St. Paul street and 1532 Spann avenue.

Flat opposite the city hall is a proposal for scrapping the municipal asphalt repair plant was expressed by Prof. Howe at noon in a speech to the employees of the city.

Howe declared that there is no legitimate reason for going back to the old private contract system, and asserted that as mayor he intended to scrap the system. He declared that the city should be operated efficiently and on a business-like basis, and at a saving to the city.

He recalled that several years ago the city had been in the erection of a new street car system, and that the city had been in the erection of a new street car system, and that the city had been in the erection of a new street car system.
