

CREDIT TO BE MADE EASIER FOR FARMERS

Government Promises Relief to Agriculture Through Elastic Rules.

BANKERS GIVEN NOTICE

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The Government has taken a decisive step to relieve the credit dangers that menace the farmers, officials explained today. Greater banking support for the production of food is assured as a result of the Administration's firm purpose to bring about more liberal accommodations, through the banking system, to various branches of agriculture.

Substantial and immediate financial aid to the farmers, therefore, through the more or less elastic rules of the banking system, and with the approval of those in control of their policies has been determined.

Comptroller of the Currency Crispien's new policy, it is announced, will be to stimulate bankers' credit to agricultural purposes, and to bring about more liberal attitude on the part of the bankers in granting renewals on outstanding obligations as a means of enabling the producers to tide themselves over the present emergency.

Plans for relief of the farming industry are said not to have gone to the Federal Reserve Board in its established role. The word that the farmers must be saved through banking help, and through a more generous measure of credit aid, which, it is possible for bankers generally, to offer in the form of renewals or new loans.

The attitude of the leading officials today is that interior bankers in the big crop growing sections of the country must recognize it their duty now to sustain their industries, on which the banks themselves primarily depend. Official records offer proof, officials said, that huge sums of money have been loaned to the farmers to alleviate the plight of home industries, have found their way to highly speculative uses and that much money is being employed at this time. Release of such credits, it is expected, will help solve some of the financial troubles of the producers.

HOW MALE BIRD OF 'LOVE NEST' HOPES TO FLUTTER FREE

Puts Faith in Word 'and' Inserted in Connecticut Law 200 Years Ago.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 23.—The word "and" inserted in the State bigamy law by legislators nearly 200 years ago makes it possible for plural marriages to be contracted in Connecticut with practical immunity from prosecution, according to leading lawyers today.

When Herbert Thornton Andrews, New York broker, who lived with two wives in Jersey City, appears for a hearing next week in Greenwich, where he is alleged to have married the second woman, the prosecution's hand will be tied by the defective statute, it was said.

"A clause in the State bigamy law makes it virtually impossible to convict a person who has left one State to marry unlawfully in another unless it is proved that he resided in the State in which he was illegally wedded," Earl Garlock, assistant State's attorney, said in an opinion on the law.

"Every person who shall marry another if either be then lawfully married, and shall live with each other as husband and wife shall be liable."

"Cohabitation is the thing which, when proved, will secure a conviction," Garlock continued. "If it can be proved that any person already lawfully married comes to Connecticut, married and unmarried, and then establishes a residence in this State, that person can be prosecuted under the existing law."

But if he comes merely to Connecticut for the purpose of marrying unlawfully and then returns at once to the State from which he came, conviction is very uncertain, because he hasn't cohabited in this State with the unlawfully wedded person."

BIG AMERICAN DEAL LEADS TO HUN REQUEST

German Appeal to Harding Guided by Group of Financiers.

LEADERS FORCED TO ACT

BERLIN, April 23.—The mammoth shadowed American business loomed today as the guiding spirit that prompted the German appeal to President Harding.

The correspondent is at the disclosure of the substance of the mysterious negotiations that resulted in Germany's dramatic action in directly soliciting the mediation of the President of a country with which she is still technically at war.

A group of American attorneys representing American cotton growers, bankers and holders of vast supplies of raw materials, first contacted financial arrangements for credits amounting to $150,000,000 and then came to Germany to sell and put over a gigantic American deal.

GERMANY CONFRONTED BY INVASION DANGER

They found Germany confronted by serious danger of a fresh German invasion.

They heard of vague threats of allied confederation of any goods shipped into Germany from anywhere as part of a scheme to coerce the Germans. They found the German government apparently at a standstill. Thus, they arrived at a dead end only international guarantees against confiscation.

So they forced the leaders of the German industries which depended on their deal to prevail upon the German government.

The German government got in touch with the American attorneys, who gave their viewpoints as Americans and not as bankers ever. They found the German government apparently at a standstill. Thus, they arrived at a dead end only international guarantees against confiscation.

OF BUSINESS

The Americans say they are here on a strictly business mission and that they took a hard line in the political arena only because of the necessity of securing guarantees for their big industrial group. That group is representative mainly of financiers in the South and on the Pacific coast.

The attorneys are L. H. DeFries, international lawyer with offices in New York and London, and L. M. Hoed, a lawyer of San Francisco and New York.

Dr. Richard Moldenke of New York is consulting engineer.

The mission is staying at the Deutscher Garten here.

SEEK PROOF IN WALL ST. BLAST

Italian Anarchist Is Held for Identification.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 23.—The case against Tito Ligi, Italian anarchist, held on suspicion of being implicated in the wholesale bomb murders in Wall street, hung today on whether three men brought here from New York could identify him.

The three came here after they had looked at a photograph of Ligi and found in it a resemblance to the man who drove the wagon containing the infernal machine to the corner of Broad and Wall streets.

After the explosion a man believed to be the wagon driver climbed to a scaffold on a building in course of construction next door to the Stock Exchange and said excitedly:

"That's my horse lying dead down there."

He referred to the horse that had drawn the bomb wagon.

Raymond Clark, foreman of a gang of men who drove the machine, was one of those who looked at the photograph and who will confront Ligi here.

DENIES PEGGY'S A 'LITTLE FOOL'

Miss Joyce's Attorney Says She's Level-Headed.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Peggy Hopkins Joyce, stage beauty, is not the "frivolous little fool" she is pictured in the divorce bill filed by Stanley Joyce, millionaire Chicago lumberman, according to Attorney Weymouth Kirkland, who returned today from New York. Kirkland will be associated with Attorney William Klein of New York in defending Mrs. Joyce in the suit brought by her husband.

"I haven't much to say now," Kirkland said, "but there will be a statement made later which will do much to correct the unfavorable impression made by the allegations in Mr. Joyce's bill. Affidavits are being prepared which will make public opinion in his favor."

"During the brief time that I was with Mrs. Joyce I obtained a very favorable impression of her. She really is a serious minded little woman and not the frivolous little fool who spent most of her time running around Europe with every one she met, as her husband charges."

"She admitted to me she had danced with Maurice, but she laughed about it. I did it because Mrs. Joyce earnestly requested it," she told me. "And I only danced with him once, while Mr. Joyce was present." As for the other allegations in her husband's bill she entered indignant denial.

Seldenticker, who was then treasurer and manager of the German Investment and Securities Company, the court instructed the jury.
