

HOPE IS LOST FOR ABATING MULE NUISANCE

Lafest Move by Mayor-Con
vinces South Side Pledge Is Forgotten.

SEEKS NEW LOCATION

Announcement by Mayor Charles W. Jewett that he has ordered plans for the first unit of the new municipal yards held up, pending a search for a location other than on the city property at Kentucky avenue and Drovers street, caused south side women who have been fighting for almost a year to get the city ash-hauling mules and equipment removed from the city barns at 1134 Shelby street to express the fear that the city administration has no intention whatever of carrying out its frequently repeated promises to remove the animals.

During the winter, when the south side women were attending almost every meeting of the board of public works and the city council, the board of works promised that the mules would be moved early this spring. The city council passed an ordinance establishing a municipal market in the Shelby street barns effective on Jan. 1, but this has never been enforced. Mayor Jewett, himself, promised the women that the offensive animals would be taken out of the neighborhood this spring, as soon as the first unit of the municipal yards could be erected. The women object to the mules on the ground that they damage the residence district in which they are housed by causing offensive odors and noises.

MAYOR GIVES PLEDGE TO CITIZENS.

Wednesday the mayor told a delegation of West Indianapolis citizens that he agreed with them that the Kentucky avenue and Drovers streets location would not do for the municipal yards because their residence neighborhoods also would be injured thereby and promised that a new location would be sought.

gardless of what the mayor intends to do. She said that if it is necessary legal measures will be resorted to. "I do not blame the West Indianapolis people at all for not wanting those mules in their neighborhood," said Mrs. Reifel. "They are part of the south side and really I sympathize with them. We are in the same boat. But at the same time we've got to have those mules moved and we propose to keep on fighting until they are, although we don't intend to force anybody into forcing them on West Indianapolis."

and Washington streets and back through Virginia avenue ordered the Shelby street cars re-routed in this way. Mrs. Reifel said that it is the general feeling of south side residents that either all of the Virginia avenue cars should be put on Washington street or every line in the city kept off.

Short Skirts Also Have Disadvantage

LONDON, April 29.—It has been ruled in England that a woman can't get compensation for a dog bite if she happens to be wearing a short skirt at the time. A young woman complained to the magistrate in the Thames Police Court that a dog had bitten her in the calf of the leg. The Magistrate—"It is one of the disadvantages of wearing short skirts."
