Library Notes

Each branch librarian in Indianapolis thinks her own particular community the best of all. Mrs. Augusta Yakey is no exception to the rule. She is sure that Brightwood excels all others. "It comes the nearest being 100 per cent. American of any community in the city," she said, "and, you know, it is the oldest of the suburbs of Indianapolis." She also has the distinction of having more adult than juvenile readers," she added.

The books have been in such constant use in the Brightwood branch since it was established in 1901 that they are badly battered and soiled. In fact the book stock has been reduced several hundred volumes within the last three or four years.

Such a condition constitutes deterioration. The collection of library books in a community like Brightwood should be growing all the time instead of diminishing. The recent successful campaign conducted by the City Library for more books will help the situation materially but there is need for more. The patronage is increasing all the time. In fact, it has doubled within the past fifteen months. It has completely outgrown the little, one-story, one-room building which has housed it for several years. It is the supreme hope of Mrs. Yakey and of the community that a new location will be provided for the library in the near future.

Requests for books about feeding cattle, building roads, building bird houses, the history of wilderness roads, the habits of birds and the life of Abraham Lincoln were made during the reporter's visit. What little could be found regarding these subjects was obtained, for the most part, from reference books on general subjects and from newspaper clippings. The latter, being classified and kept in large envelopes, are constantly in demand. One of the duties of the librarian is to go through the daily newspapers and other periodicals and clip articles which, in her judgment, will prove to be of interest to the reading public or of benefit to the children in the school work.

Mrs. Yakey, with the assistance of two pages, a boy and a girl, does all the work of the library herself. She thoroughly enjoys it, is enthusiastic about it and hopes to see the library grow.

Druggist Tells How Thin Folks Can Put on Flesh

A well known druggist who has put up thousands of prescriptions for leading physicians, and who is naturally familiar with what gives best results, says: "Weak, thin, nervous folks who want to get strong, put on flesh and feel younger should take five grain tablet of Blood-Iron Phosphate with each meal. This by enriching the blood and strengthening the nerves frequently helps thin, weak, nervous people to get strong, put on flesh and improve their health and appearance to an astonishing extent. I honestly believe that Blood-Iron Phosphate is the best thing known for this purpose."

Folks who want to get strong, put on flesh, and look and feel better than they have for years should deposit $1.50 with the Hazz, Hook Drug Store or any other druggist for a three weeks' supply of Blood-Iron Phosphate. Take as directed and if at the end of three weeks you are not convinced that you are on the road to better health, greater strength and endurance and haven't put on several pounds of real stay there flesh you can have your money back for the asking.—Advertisement.

The Well Dressed Woman

By NORMA TALMADGE,
Star of Associated First National Pictures.

One section of my wardrobe in which I take particular pleasure is where I keep my little knock-about frocks. They are so expressive of the summer spirit. Those simple little shirtwaist and skirt outfits, fashioned out of the irresistible sports silks and rough linens, are so cool, as well as cool looking, and even the roughest kind of wear does not seem to muss them, that the summer girl does wisely to have a good selection of this style of garment.

In Paris Mme. Groult, the famous sister of the famous Worth, writes me Point linen gowns of brilliant colors, with borders of dark serge, and little capes of serge, lined with linen, are very popular for sport wear, and jersey in brilliant colors and white are being shown everywhere. However, the American girl prefers simpler gowns for the summer months, and the reason of this undoubtedly is that she is so much more athletically inclined than her Parisian sister.

The gay sport silks of American manufacture are receiving much attention from French designers, therefore, and exquisite little garments are being sent over in every consignment. As these silks are so ornamental in themselves, little embellishment is required, and the lines of the gowns and little touches in the way of attractive stitching and bands of plain material of the prevailing color are their only ornament.

What Do You Know About Bugs?

Nothing probably. And yet bugs are man's most deadly enemies. He has conquered all other forms of life, but the insects threaten to conquer him. No matter where you live or what you do, you are at war with insects.

One of the most elaborate, illustrated bulletins which the Department of Agriculture has ever published deals with this subject. It describes and depicts all of the insects you will find in your home garden plot. It is an excellent text-book of insect enemies, so simple and attractive that a child will like it.

You can get a copy of this bulletin free through our Washington Information Bureau. Use the attached coupon and include 2 cents in stamps for return postage. In filling out the coupon print name and address or be sure to write plainly.

I wear with this is a mushroom shape, covered with the same material, and my wrap a huge angora scarf of brown and white, which matches the color of my dress. Matching parasols are being made up in these sport silks, also, and, as they are warranted not to fade, are useful for use at seaside resorts, where the sun is so destructive to more delicate fabrics.

Karl Pays Visit to the Hapsburg Cradle

GENEVA, May 3.—The ex-emperor Karl of Austria, accompanied by two priests and two detectives, recently visited the cradle of the Hapsburg dynasty, the ruined Chateau Hapsburg, in the Canton of Argovie.

Only the outer walls of the castle, constructed in 1020, exist. The grounds belong now to a farmer, who received Karl in a domestic fashion, serving cafe au lait in the kitchen.

The ancestors of Karl were defeated in the battle of Sempach, and were finally expelled from Switzerland in 1286.

PUSS IN BOOTS JR.

By David Corr.

In the last story we left little Puss Junior in the forest with the giant. And I hope you haven't forgotten that Puss was telling him all about his father, the famous Puss in Boots.

"Well, my father was running ahead of the coach in which sat his master, my Lord of Carabas, the King and his beautiful daughter, when he came to a castle where lived a wicked ogre who had the power of changing himself into any form he liked. So my father went in and bowed very low. 'I hear you have the gift of being able to change yourself into any animal you like,' said my father.

"That is true," said the ogre, and all of a sudden he turned into a lion. 'I doubt if you can now change yourself into a mouse,' said my father, and then that ogre changed himself into a lion into a mouse, and no sooner did he do that than my father pounced upon him and ate him up.

Then the giant looked at the Magic Ax which had nearly cut down his whole forest, and then looked at Puss eating a stone as easily as you please.

"I will be your servant," he said, and humbly led Puss to his monstrous cabin. "Now listen," said Puss to the giant after they were fairly seated, "one of us has got to be the master, and the other the servant. But I will give you a chance. If I can't do whatever you do, I am to be your slave; if you are not able to do whatever I do, you are to be mine."

"Agreed," said the giant. "I'd be tickled to death to have a little servant like you. It's too much work for me to think, and you have brains enough for both. Well let's start the trial. Here are my two buckets—go get water and make the soup!" And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.
