SAYS BOOZE SOLD AT EVANSVILLE
W. C. T. U. Head Complains of Law Violations.
U. S. Lesh, attorney general, today said he would investigate reports that authorities at Evansville are not enforcing the prohibition laws.

The reports were contained in a letter from Mrs. L. Payne, president of the W. C. T. U. of Vanderburg County. Mrs. Payne said the prohibition laws are being violated and it is useless to complain to the authorities.

Booze is being sold from dinner plates to factory employees and is also openly being sold on the river front, she complains.

In a letter to Mrs. Payne Mr. Lesh said he would send an investigator to Evansville and of the situation warranted prosecutions would follow.

PUSS IN BOOTS JR.

By David Corry.

CHAPTER CCCLV.

One day as Puss entered a deep forest he heard a bird singing in the treetops: Here is where the fairies dwell. Far from human eyes.

Here they dance and play and sing, Safe from rude surprise of mortal eyes. And just then a half horse-chestnut, with damask-rose-leaf lining, mounted on four jet-berly wheels and with four shining beetles for runners, came driving by. A little fairy sat in the carriage and fanned herself with a fly's wing. At the sight of Puss, however, she stopped, and gathering up her voluminous satin dress, jumped from the carriage.

And then she called a yellow butterfly and told him to show Puss the way to her palace.

"I would take you to my carriage, only there isn't room for your big toe," laughed the fairy, as she climbed into her chariot and whipped up her beetle horses.

Well, when Puss reached her palace he found her resting on a couch of real forest velvet, with a crown of white and orange-colored maple-leaf for a shawl.

And while Puss was sitting quietly on a couch a silvery voice was heard outside, came gliding down a staircase of woodbine which twined around a tree.

"Come with me to the waterfall," she said to Puss. "We will gather some checkerberries for the Fairy Queen. So Puss bowed to the Queen and followed the little fairy. And when they came to the waterfall, she watched him cross a bridge which a big black spider had stretched from one bank to the other. But Puss didn't cross over that way. Oh, no, no! If he had I fear the spider's bridge would have broken in two. He just jumped across the brook and helped the little fairy pick the red berries for the Fairy Queen, who made wonderful jam from them.

When Puss returned to the palace the Queen said to him: "I will give you a drink of my magic checkerberry wine and then you will become as tiny as a fairy." And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

CITY COIN FOR PUBLIC BODIES

Council Will Consider Requests for Financial Aid to Three Organizations.

Financial aid would be extended by the city to three quasi-public institutions by ordinances to be introduced in the city council at the regular meeting Monday evening.

One ordinance appropriates $8,500 to the city finance department for the use of the committee of the Marion County Council of the American Legion in charge of the Fourth of July celebration at the state fair grounds. Another appropriates $2,500 for the use of the citizens fire prevention committee and another $3,685.20 to the Art Association of Indianapolis.

Request for the Fourth of July celebration appropriation was made on city officials by Roy Rahn, Ed Jackson, Secretary of State, and Evans Woolen Jr., representing the American Legion. Frank O. Jordan, chairman of the fire prevention movement, is asking for the fire prevention appropriation and Evans Woolen Sr. is acting for the Art Association of Indianapolis in its negotiations with the city.

The art appropriation represents consummation of an agreement between the city and the association, which operates the John Herron Art Institute, in the controversy over the amount the city owes. Until last year the city has been paying the association around $6,000 per year, which was equal to the proceeds of a levy of 1/4 cent per $100 of taxable. The board of school commissioners and the city were bound by law to make such a payment. When the new tax law was passed in 1919 both the school and city officials contended that the provision for this payment on the basis of the proceeds from an imaginary levy was wiped out. The art association contended that the old law stood and that it should receive what would amount to the proceeds from a 1/4 cent levy on the greatly increased assessed valuation caused by the new tax law. It was contended that the city and the school city owed the art association around $15,000 each.

The school board several months ago reached an agreement with the association to pay $10,000 per year in 1920, 1921 and 1922. The city included in its budget this year an appropriation of $9,914.80 to the art association. Corporation Counsel Samuel Ashby is drawing a contract between the association and the city whereby the city agrees to pay $3,685.20 more, making the total $10,000 this year and to continue like payments until and including 1922. This contract will be sent to the council for ratification along with the appropriation ordinance Monday.

POLITICIANS ARE AGAINST SWAILS

Efforts of certain Republican politicians to prevent the re-appointment of Lee E. Swails as county superintendent of schools of Marion County, may be frustrated Monday morning when members of the Marion County board of education meet to elect a new superintendent of schools for the next year.

It appears that the opposition of certain political workers against Swails is not based upon any vital reason except that he is a Democrat. It became known today that at least two county commissioners were visiting a certain member of the county board of education in regard to naming a successor for Mr. Swails.

The Republican workers are said to favor Robert Deverick, who is at present employed in the office of the State superintendent of public instruction. Deverick is a Republican. It was intimated today that at least two county commissioners today that five of the nine members of the county board of education favor reappointing Swails.

As soon as the new law promulgated by the commissioners disappeared from their customary haunts and had not returned by noon today, it was announced.

SHANK CALLS ON STATE AUDITOR

Beverly Howard Accompanies Candidate.

Samuel Lewis Shank, having obtained possession of the reins of the Republican city organization, is not hesitating to ask favors of the State administration, even to the point of crossing Lieutenant Governor Emmet Forrest Branch.

Mr. Shank, accompanied by Beverly Howard, negro and a political leader on Indiana avenue, whom the Supreme Court has ruled is competent to sit for thirty days for operating a gambling house, was discovered sitting in the private office of William G. Oliver, auditor of State, today. Mr. Oliver was not present.

Investigation revealed the fact that Mr. Oliver was in the office of the State highway commission talking to John W. Williams, auditor of the commission. Williams is a relative of Mr. Shank's wife and the candidate has undertaken to prevent the proposed discharge.

With this in view Mr. Shank solicited the aid of Mr. Oliver and himself later visited the maintenance division of the highway department. Because Lawrence Lyons, director of the commission, was out of the city,
