

NAME PRINCESS
IN DIVORCE SUITY. M. C. A. Official Went to Russia, Became General and Met Royalty.

OAKLAND, Cal., July 7.—A sensational divorce case, which revealed a former Oakland man, Edgar S. W. Nye, as a general in the Russian army and named a Russian princess as co-respondent, was heard before Superior Judge Trabucco today and resulted in an interlocutory decree of divorce to Mrs. Edith Rose Nye of Alameda.

Mrs. Nye declared that her husband first went to Europe as an official of the Y. M. C. A. She said that after he was discharged from the Y. M. C. A. at the end of the war he worked in Paris as a correspondent and later joined the army of General Wrangel to fight the Bolsheviks.

Desertion and failure to provide were named as contributory factors to the divorce. Mrs. Nye stated that she met her husband in the Russian army, and that he had been a general in the Russian army and met the Russian princess, who was a co-respondent in the divorce suit.

Famous Yale Flagon
Stolen From 'Mary's'

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 7.—Second only to the inauguration of President Wilson and to the completion of the memorial quadrangle is the interest attached by Yale graduates to the loss of the "Cup," which disappeared from Mary's historic "nesting joint" on York street. Although of pewter, the cup is described by William T. Krueger, steward at Mary's, as "priceless" because of its great sentimental value.

Since 1888 there have been six "cut men" in every class, four from the academic and two from the Sheffield department. The eighteenth amendment and a recent death of Yale athletic victories have restricted the use of the cup for practical purposes. Thieves broke in through the back door of Mary's and forced the lock on an inner room where the cup was kept. They left untouched $50 in a cash register near by.

18-Year-Old Youth
Gets Scholarship

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., July 7.—The Edward Rector scholarship of De Pauw University has been awarded to Scott F. Kelsay, 18 years old, of this city, as the 1921 representative from Shelby County for this honor. It was announced here today. Mr. Kelsay, a son of Mrs. Gertrude Kelsay, will enter De Pauw University in the fall under the terms provided in the scholarship.

The selection of Mr. Kelsay for the honor is of much interest here, as his record in the Shelbyville High School, from which he was graduated this spring, is very extraordinary. He has worked his way through school, having a regular position after school hours and working on Saturdays and through the summers. With his responsibility he successfully managed the publication of The Squibb, the annual classbook of the senior class. He was also business agent for the class play, which was given with great success under his management.

Ex-State Senator Is Held for Contempt

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 7.—Charles A. Haggerty, former State Senator, was held in contempt of court when he violated the opinion that a list of judges offered him for choice in a change of venue on a liquor case included only "Sunday school teachers." The judge said: "If that remark had been made outside the court it would have been a personal insult," and fined Haggerty $10. The former Senator apologized and asked that entry of the fine be deferred until Thursday. Judge Omacht has made himself known for rigorous enforcement of the prohibition laws.

SUGAR WITH BIG
KICK IS BANNED?Prohibition Director Says
Cuban Product Without Alcohol Can't Enter U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Prohibition enforcement officials were divided today in their opinion regarding the admissibility of Cuban "sugar with a kick." Reports to the Department of Commerce stated that Cuban scientists have discovered a way of converting sugar into a drink which contains no alcohol, but has an "iron mike" punch.

"Another wet hope gone wrong," declared Roy Haynes, prohibition commissioner. Haynes declared the Volstead law banned all intoxicating liquors, regardless of alcoholic content. George W. Ashworth, chief of the division of customs, held out more hope to the thirsty.

The discovery was the result of experiments made at the Government sugar college for ways converting the huge surplus of sugar into salable goods.

FATHER KNICKERBOCKER GIVES MIX A WARM WELCOME
Indianapolis Actor Is Seen in Support of Mary Miles Minter

Tom Mix, the Fox movie player, is in New York city enjoying his first visit to the big town since he became famous and prosperous on the screen.

Mix arrived in New York city from Los Angeles several days before the big fight at Jersey City. On the morning of the fight, several hundred children lined up at a pier on the Jersey side where the boat was to dock which carried Mix from the New York side to the Jersey coast.

Mix was standing on the bridge waving his hat as he neared the pier. The children nearly scrambled on the boat before Mix could land on the pier. The movie player was doped up in his western garb in which he is so often seen on the screen. This pleased the children.

I noticed that Mix remained on the pier until he had taken hold of the right hand of every youngster. Yet I am unable to say which was the happiest—the star or the children.

Mix had the right dope on the fight as he picked Dempsey to win from the very first. United States Senators, men of wealth, actors of the stage landed at the pier, but the children had time only for their favorite—Tom Mix. The kiddies shot questions at him about his horses, his guns and his hat.

It was a pretty picture to see how Mix warmed up to these youngsters.—W. D. H. J.

MONTIE BLUE IN MOVIE
NOW ON VIEW AT ALHAMBRA.

"Moonlight and Honeysuckle"—Mary Miles Minter—Montie Blue.
Surely an attractive combination of names. The first is the title of a romantic comedy in which Miss Minter is starred, and Mr. Blue, whose chief claim to distinction, aside from his screen career, is that his home is in Indianapolis, is her leading man.

The picture is an adaptation of George Scarborough's stage comedy in which Ruth Chatterton is featured. It presents Miss Minter in the role of a millionaire's daughter of a millionaire ranch owner.

When the story opens she is rather romantically inclined toward Tod Musgrove, the big, handsome cowboy manager of her father's ranch. He, of course, is head-over-heels in love with her and is loathe to see her depart for Washington, D. C., where she goes to live when her father is elected to the United States Senate.

In Washington, surrounded by suitors who eagerly seek her favor, she soon forgets Tod, and amuses herself by entering into a series of trial engagements with her various admirers in an effort to find out which one she really likes best. Just about this time Tod takes more of his own hands, and arrives in Washington bound and determined that no effete Easterner shall "cut him out."

Inasmuch as he packs a six-shooter for persuasive purposes he has little difficulty in intimidating all those who stand in his way, and in the home stretch he figuratively speaking, carries the girl off in cave man fashion. Grace Goodall, Guy Oliver and others are in the cast.

The picture was directed by Joseph Henabery.

'LOVIE' SHOWS
HER AFFECTIONSnaps Loaded Revolver at Hubby—No Damage.

Speed and ability to dodge behind an automobile saved the life of Ed Thomas, negro, 635 East Wabash street, when his wife, Lovie Thomas, fired a revolver at him yesterday afternoon. Lovie, it is said, snatched the gun several times afterward but the cartridges failed to explode.

Thomas, professional bondsman and a spoke in the "Jewett good government political wheel," tried to "square" himself with his wife by calling at police headquarters and offering to sign her bond. Lovie refused to be released from custody on a bond signed by her husband, and Fred Bonfield, an attorney, signed.

The shooting occurred late yesterday afternoon in front of the Thomas home. Sergeant Baker and a squad of police were sent to the East Wabash street address. After much questioning the police learned the Thomas woman objected to her husband "running around with other women and taking them to Terre Haute," and she decided to put a stop to it with a gun. Thomas said he "paid no attention to the woman, thinking she wouldn't shoot, and started to go outside the house."

When Thomas reached the front porch he noticed his wife sitting on the running board of his automobile with a revolver in her hand. Thomas ran off of the porch and around the rear of the car. In that time, Thomas said, his wife snapped the trigger of the gun at least twelve times, firing only one bullet and it missed its mark.

The last thing Mrs. Thomas said when she was escorted away by the police was: "I'll be you or me, Ed. Wait and see when I get out."
