

HUN TREATY IS NEAR REVISION OF WORLD PACT

Hughes Ignores Resolution Passed by Senate by Withholding Proclamation.

By WALLACE BASSFORD.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The text of the President's treaty with Germany is out and it turns out to be a somewhat revised version of President Wilson's Versailles treaty. The expedient was simple; the American delegates simply took from that famous document all the portions bearing on the relations between this country and Germany and made a treaty of them, omitting those sections which dealt with the relations of Germany and the European powers and those clauses which might be interpreted as involving the United States in European squabbles. The final effect is a treaty which is a treaty with modifications approximating the reservations proposed in the Senate of the last Congress and definitely omitting the League of Nations.

Those familiar with the difficulties of the situation expected nothing else. It has been understood here for some time that the President and Secretary Hughes were not long finding out that the much-heralded peace resolution, "ending the war with Germany," was null, void and of no effect. That resolution, sought, or pretended to seek, to fasten on Germany the hard terms of the Versailles treaty without the United States ratifying that famous document.

It is by failing to issue a proclamation of peace.

SHOWED RESOLUTION TO BE BOOTLESS.

When the peace resolution was up for consideration in the House, the Democrats, led by Mr. Flood of Virginia, ranking Democrat on the Foreign Affairs Committee and Mr. Garrett of Tennessee, floor leader in the absence of Mr. Kitchin, pointed out in plain terms that the Republicans were passing a resolution that was bootless and of no avail, while on the other hand it was fraught with several distinct dangers. Mr. Flood, Mr. Lincoln, Mr. Kitchin, Mr. Sabath, Mr. Connally, minority members of the committee, filed a report in which they pointed out the danger of the very situation which is now free to be admitted. They pointed out the Republican attitude as a palpable blunder. If not a political subterfuge. They showed that under the Constitution we cannot enter into contracts with another government by act of Congress, that power being a prerogative of the President, two-thirds of the Senate concurring. They showed that, if the resolution really restores peace, then we surrender the advantage of our position as a belligerent, which all of the allied powers possessed at the time they forced upon Germany the Versailles treaty. They demonstrated that we would leave in an unsettled state the right to use the German property now in the hands of the alien property custodian to satisfy the claims of our citizens who suffered losses at the hands of Germany during the war. They pointed out the fact that we would endanger our claim for $250,000,000 for maintenance of our troops on the Rhine.

WINE GERMANY.

SIGNED TREATY.

Now that Germany has signed a treaty recognizing America's position as a victor in the war, and signed it at a time when we are without the means of physical compulsion such as we possessed when we had millions of bayonets within striking distance of German cities, it is evident that she did so because of the fear hanging over her head that a failure to do so would mean that the United States would be compelled to ratify the actual text of the Versailles treaty in order to protect herself in her claims, rights and reparations.

Just before the House took the present recess, Mr. Connally of Texas, drew attention to the fact that President Harding called to the White House to read the new treaty, only Republican Congressmen, while in the case of the Versailles treaty President Wilson called in Republican as well as Democratic members of the committees dealing with our foreign relations and submitted to a searching cross-examination at their hands. Mr. Connally reminded the House of how low a level was Senator Harding at that time of President Wilson, charging that he did not consult Congress with sufficient freedom. As President, Mr. Harding consults only with Republicans.

Now the interesting question arises: When the disarmament conference adjourns will we have a League of Nations resulting, bearing the Harding, rather than the Wilson, name-plate?

Nighties for Hoboes

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Oldham (Rutland) board of guardians has been a good deal amused during the regime of the ministry of health with its remarkable suggestions for "beautifying" the inmates of workhouses. But they now think that the ministry has passed the limit of sanity. For it has lately suggested that they should provide nightshirts for tramps who accept the hospitality of the local workhouse.

Take Yeast Vitamon Tablets To Round Out Face and Figure With Firm Flesh

If you are hollow-cheeked, sunken-chested and generally weak or run-down and want to round out your face and figure to pleasing and normal proportions you will find this simple, safe, and sure remedy: First, weigh yourself. Next, take Mastin's VITAMON—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again each week and continue taking VITAMON regularly until you are satisfied with your gain in weight and energy. Mastin's VITAMON tablets contain highly concentrated yeast-vitamins as well as the two other still more important vitamins and are now being used by thousands. They positively will not upset the stomach or cause gas, but on the contrary are a great aid to digestion, to overcome constipation and as a general conditioner of the whole system. Pimples, boils and skin eruptions seem to vanish like magic under its purifying influence, the complexion becomes fresh and beautiful, the cheeks rosy instead of pale, the lips red instead of colorless, the eyes bright instead of dull. So rapid and amazing are the results that success is absolutely guaranteed or the trial costs you nothing. Be sure to remember the name, Mastin's VITAMON—the original and genuine yeast-vitamine tablets—there is nothing else like it so do not accept imitations or substitutes. You can get Mastin's VITAMON at any drugist.—Advertisement.

Keeping House With the Hoopers

(The Hoopers, an average American family of five, living in a suburban town, on a limited income, will tell the readers of the Daily Times how the many present-day problems of the home are solved by working on the budget that Mrs. Hooper has evolved and found practical. Follow them daily in an interesting review of their home life and learn to meet the conditions of the high cost of living with them.)

WEDNESDAY.

The silver was all to be polished this morning and the menu for the luncheon planned, but as Mrs. Hooper was to have dinner with the Bride in the evening, there was so preparation to be made for this meal at home. The temperature had been steadily climbing for the last two days, and as it promised to be very hot on the occasion of her luncheon, she wondered if she ought to have her menu made up entirely of cold dishes. Her intention had been to have creamed chicken served from her chafing dish at the table as the main course, but the threatening heat inclined her to change this to jellied chicken, but she finally decided that the creamed chicken would make a more satisfactory luncheon, and she would have everything else ice cold. The fact that she would have to serve the luncheon herself entered into the planning as to what she would put on her menu. Having to get up from the table too often would be awkward, but by serving the hot chicken from the chafing dish and by using the tea wagon for the extra dishes and having as few courses as possible, she expected to be able to manage.

She was just putting the silver away in shining rows when the Bride rushed in. "Of course, it is perfectly awful to have to do this, but I am so glad about the dinner at which she is to be entertained," laughed the Bride breathlessly, "but I'm going to have fried chicken in Maryland, because I know how to cook that pretty well, and I'd like to make some waffles to go with it. You know my electric grill has a waffle iron attached, and it is so easy to cook them. Besides, you take them right off piping hot, as you are ready to eat them. But what I want to know is how to make them in a sufficient quantity for just the three of us."

"I think I have a recipe in my file that makes enough for three," said Mrs. Hooper, taking down her card index from the shelf.

"That is the thing that bothers me most about my cooking," said the Bride as she fanned herself with her big sun hat. "I can't gauge the ingredients at all. If I increase my measurements from those that make just enough for Bob and me, I usually find enough food on my hands for a dozen."

"Well, here is a recipe that will do for three," said Mrs. Hooper, laughing. "and you'd better write it down for your file, and use it whenever you happen to have an extra person. You ought to be able to make them perfectly with your just the three of us."

"I suppose I ought to have them for breakfast instead of for dinner," exclaimed the Bride ruefully.

"Ordinarily, yes," responded Mrs. Hooper, "but the fried chicken makes them permissible for dinner."

"Read me the recipe, please, and I'll write it down," said the Bride.

"Take one and one-half cups of flour, two and three-fourths teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one egg, one teaspoonful of sugar (if you like it); one and one-half cups of milk and one and one-half cups of melted fat. Sift together the dry ingredients. To the well beaten egg yolks add the shortening and part of the milk and mix this with the dry materials. Add the remainder of the milk and fold in the well beaten whites. Beat well. The batter should be smooth and about the consistency of cream."

In spite of her inexperience as a cook and a housekeeper, Mrs. Hooper rather envied the Bride the ease and grace with which she presided at her own dinner table that night. She gave the impression that she would have entertained a dozen guests with quite as little fuss as she did one, and her little meal was a great success. She had not made the mistake of having an elaborate dinner. There was just the fried chicken and

By E. R. PEYSER

Has a man like this proposed to you?

Symptoms: Slender, slight, hair rather longish in front, thin knife edge face, sweet big mouth smile, always wears a collar which seems to hate his neck, a white four-in-hand tie, a turned up Bangkok sailor, and a soft brown warm brim pancake felt in the winter. He loves home and helping therein, he is dependable, funds enough, shady, likes you to be with him at baseball and Kelley pool.

IN FACT

He is game and gamier in your companionship.

PUSS IN BOOTS JR.

By David Cory

Now, let me see, Little Puss Junior in the last story had visited Cuba, where the little children make strange inferences of the calabash, in which they put numerous holes and then fill it with fireflies, which are just as good as candles and perhaps better, for their light doesn't blow out when the wind blows.

Well, all night long Puss traveled in his magic aeroplane, and toward morning the air grew cold—oh, very cold! And after a little while the airship settled down on a land of snow and ice, where the little Eskimo children live in huts of snow and their fathers go to sea, when it is not frozen, in boats made of sealskin and bone.

And the first person Puss saw was an Eskimo woman who carried her baby about in her hood. And pretty soon she saw a band of Eskimo boys. At first Puss thought they were going to school, but he soon found out that there are no schools for them to go to, except Mother Nature's, where they learn how to find the nests where the wild sea birds lay their eggs, and to catch the elder-duck.

And pretty soon Puss saw a strange sight. A band of Eskimos wearing sealskins, in which they had dressed themselves, went on a seal hunt. They looked just like seals, and so were able to creep up quite close to these thud animals.

Well, after that an Eskimo who had a

CHIEF DEPUTY REVENUE MAN RESIGNS PLACE

Manford Livengood Succeeded by George Foote, New Albany.

Manford Livengood, for the past year chief deputy in the office of the collector of internal revenue, resigned today, the resignation to take effect Sept. 20. He will be succeeded by George L. Foote, New Albany, who has been connected with the office since his father-in-law, M. Bert Thurman, became collector May 1.

Although Mr. Livengood's resignation will not become effective officially until Sept. 20, he will go on a vacation tomorrow and Mr. Foote will assume the duties of the office at that time.

The new chief deputy is a graduate of Bradley Polytechnic Institute, Peoria, Ill., and was in military service during the war. At the time of the armistice he was attending the field artillery officers' training school at Camp Zachary Taylor, Ky. Since May 1, when he was named a deputy collector by Collector Thurman, he has been at work in the local office becoming familiar with the various departments.

Before becoming connected with the internal revenue department Mr. Livengood was a resident of Covington, and for ten years was superintendent of schools of Fayette County. During this same period, he was for four years a member of the State board of education.

After taking a short vacation Mr. Livengood will engage in income tax work in this city although he is not as yet prepared to make a definite announcement of his plans.

"Mr. Livengood has made a splendid record in this office," Mr. Thurman said. "He is thoroughly familiar with the work of the department and is an unusually well qualified man for his position, including income tax work."
