

LIQUOR SOLD AT COURTHOUSE

Grand Jury Finds Evidence of Illegal Traffic—Five Indicted.

MANSFIELD, Ohio, Sept. 1.—Declaring that during its deliberations, it has come to the knowledge of the jurors comprising the Richland County grand jury, that there has been an illegal traffic in intoxicating liquors in the offices of the County auditor and the county commissioners at the Richland County courthouse, affidavits have been filed that Charles Huber, former deputy in the office of the county auditor, and Harold McCullough, clerk of the county commissioners, were engaged in selling intoxicating liquors. One of the affidavits was filed against Huber and four against McCullough.

An indictment also was returned against Thomas H. Dickerson, county commissioner, charging him with having made and presented false bills. There are six counts in the indictments, which deal with the manner in which Dickerson is alleged to have obtained small sums of money from a tire shop on warrants from the county treasurer.

HIGH PRICE OF LIQUOR KEEPS UP IN OHIO CITY

Officials at Cleveland Believe Trust Is Operating to Maintain Profits.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 1.—The arrest and conviction of a bootlegger because he disposed of illicit liquor at 15 cents a drink instead of the customary present-day charge of 50 cents, started an investigation by dry forces into the activities of an alleged "trust" of rummers who are said to be holding the price at an abnormal figure and reaping enormous profits by threatening arrest of those who attempt to dispense at a lower charge.

First evidence of the "trust" reached George C. Southwell, secretary of the Dry Maintenance League, several days ago, he said, when he learned a forger who had sold liquor for 15 cents a drink had been arrested and fined after he refused to raise his price.

After paying his fine, according to Southwell, the man again was approached and told if he would agree to collect 50 cents a drink he would not be molested further by police through "tip offs" from his competitors.

Since then, Southwell says, several other reports have reached his office, each revealing that fear of arrest is the weapon used by the "trust" to keep liquor prices at the top.

IN THE REALM WHERE WOMAN REIGNS

Keeping House With the Hoopers

(The Hoopers, an average American family of five, living in a suburban town, on a limited income, will tell the readers of the Daily Times how the many present-day problems of the home are solved by working on the budget that Mrs. Hooper has evolved and found practical. Follow them daily in an interesting review of their home life and learn to meet the conditions of the high cost of living with them.)

THURSDAY.

Beyond the actual preparation for luncheon Mrs. Hooper had very little extra work facing her this morning. The advantage of having a house as well kept and orderly as hers, was that the maid "cleaning up" before a party which is so necessary in most households, did not have to be done. Straightening up the house and returning the extra dishes and linen to their proper places, after the luncheon was over would be the only extra labor, as far as cleaning was concerned. Picking up after herself was a very simple matter this morning, so that her preparation for luncheon could be made very leisurely and leave her plenty of time to dress and set the table without any flurry before her guests arrived at 1 o'clock. She was having boiled omelette (made from bouillon cubes) for the first course, which could be placed on the table before they were seated. After that would come the creamed chicken served from the chafin dish and with it some tiny hot biscuits that would be baking while they were eating the bouillon. Then she would have a fruit salad, which had made last night on her return from the Bride's house where she had gone to dinner. She could have made this salad after breakfast, but she wanted to be certain that it would be firm, so that it would slice without breaking. Consequently she took no chance on its being too short a time on the ice. The salad was made of grape fruit and pineapple, bananas and cherries. The fruit was cut in small pieces and the pulp pressed through a mold. The fruit juices were then heated together and poured over the soaked gelatine (in the proportion of one tablespoonful of gelatine to a quart of water). This liquid was then poured around the fruit in the mold sliced and served with mayonnaise on white lettuce leaves. This would make a very cool and attractive salad for a hot day. With the bouillon ready in the ice box, the mint sherbet congealing in the freezer, and creamed chicken already to be cooked, Mrs. Hooper set the table before going up stairs to dress. On the embroidered center piece in the middle of the old fashioned round mahogany table she placed a glass bowl filled with yellow flowers that had been picked from the garden with the morning dew on them. Four old brass candlesticks, which had come to her years ago from Mr. Hooper's mother were arranged equidistant from each other around the center piece. If she had not owned the brass candlesticks, she would have bought four plain glass ones that she had seen a few

Men You May Marry

By E. R. PEYSER

Has a man like this proposed to you?

Symptoms: Fine brow, sandy hair, neatly but not too neatly—brushed off head, tweedy clothes, soft collar—general thickness of garb—likes the country, has a "little place" and gets off there when ever he can "slip the bunch" in his "2 room plus" in town. Always wants you and your Ma to take his country place. He loves you and if you refuse him he'll always be your friend—he's loyal.

IN FACT

He is a philosopher.

Prescription to his bride:

Remember philosophy is a good thing Remember it takes his patience as well as yours—this marriage game.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

FRIDAY, SEPT. 2, 1921.

Jupiter and Mercury dominate the stars today in friendly rule, while Saturn and Venus are adverse.

The new moon of this date falls on the cusp of the second house in opposition to Pranus in Pisces on the cusp of the eighth house.

The aspects are most threatening to Great Britain where there will be increased unrest.

Great drains on public funds in this country as well as in England are prognosticated and it is probable large national expenditures will be made by both governments.

Railways seem to have the forecast of prosperity that will be temporary and a rise in stocks is indicated.

Persons whose birthdate it is should not travel or make radical changes in the coming year. Business affairs should be active and satisfactory.

Children born on this day are likely to be quick and clever and able to win prosperity in any circumstances. These subjects of Leo are usually magnetic in personality and very industrious.

books will tell you, was a Roman goddess—was rising from the sea.

On the other side were fauns, torpedoes, salutes and salades. Why, this wonderful cart looked like a rainbow on wheels and the horse that drew it had on beautiful harness which almost covered him. Silver ornaments and brass bells hung from it, and the bells tinkled their sweet music as the horse jogged along.

"Come, take a ride with me, little cart," said the Sicilian for it was the island of Sicily where Puss was. So our little traveler climbed up into the cart, which was like a big box, you know, set on four very high wheels, and then the driver said "Gid-ap" to his horse and away they went, past pepper trees and glossy magnolias and slim green bamboo trees, and by and by they saw some peasant girls drying figs for the winter and others tending herds of goats.

"What do the boys do?" asked Puss. And the driver answered, "They swim and fish, make nets and sail boats. And then they sing, for we Sicilians all have beautiful voices, for we eat many grapes, and our forefathers ate grapes, and that is one reason why we have good singing voices."

Well, after Puss had seen many more strange things his magic airship came down from the sky and took him away, and by and by, after a while, it came to a high mountain, where it gently settled to the ground. So Puss stepped out, and then the airship sailed away, and Puss heard a voice say:

"You have traveled far and wide, Over land and ocean today. Be content to stay awhile On this rocky mountain pile."

"Who are you and why do you wish me to stay here?" asked Little Puss Junior, and then he looked all around but he couldn't see any one. And then he looked up into the sky, but, oh, dear me, his magic airship was nowhere in sight.

"Well, I guess now I must depend on my legs," said Puss to himself. "My magic airship is gone and I can't find who is talking to me." And then, all of a sudden, a little old man, with a long white beard and a high peaked hat came out from behind a big stone and bowed very low. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.—Copyright, 1921, by David Cory. (To Be Continued.)

MARSHAL BUELOW DIES IN GERMANY

Famous Leader Spirited, Broken in Health.

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—Gen. Karl Buelow, field marshal of the German army during the war, died at his home yesterday at the age of 73.

Field Marshal Buelow, one of the most famous of Kaiser William's generals, commanded an army corps on the west front at the close of the war, his divisions being concentrated in the Hindenburg line. General Buelow was of the staunch Prussian type, and was one of the main supporters of General Hindenburg's 1918
