MINERS PAID FOR RIFLES

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Sept. 3.—One of the miners captured while rushing a machine gun of the defenders died Friday in the Logan Hospital from wounds received in the encounter. Sheriff Logan, Public Defender, said a man made a dying declaration in which he charged the United Mine Workers with responsibility for his being on the battle front.

BY THOMAS F. HEALY.
Special to Indiana Daily Times.

LOGAN, W. Va., Sept. 3.—It is believed here today that the miners have reached a critical situation and that their supplies are running out. The continuance of their fire and the intensity of their massed attacks yesterday were predicted. It is believed, upon desperation and the desire of their leaders to meet the last day of defense before Federal troops enter the field.

Whatever the conditions of their supplies may be they do not lack ammunition. At one point yesterday a heavy movement of miners through the Coal River districts to the Guyan Ridge. They are being transported in large numbers by auto trucks and equally large numbers are advancing on foot. The prisoners brought in are lodged in the Logan County Jail. Sheriff Chaffin took the writer to the jail to talk to them. Three of the twenty prisoners captured during the last few days were brought into the jail office separately. Two of them are mere boys, not more than twenty years old. The third, a shrewd, clever man of about 30, or thereabouts, successfully parried all questions. Sheriff Chaffin declared his a Red organizer and a leader in the red army. His name is Clyde McGarish and his home is in Ohio.

All three prisoners admitted the march of the miners and the battles they staged in the hills had been organized by "some fellow" whom they did not know. They said they had moved out under compulsion from mine union officials, but denied they knew where they were going or what was their mission.

John Stalling, the first produced, said he was 20 years old. He is a resident of Logan County. He denied joining the "red" army. He said that he had been sent into the coal river district for the purpose of visiting his mother and he had been forced at the point of a gun to join the invading army. He said that he was captured, he was advancing toward the Logan line for the purpose of surrendering.

MEN REQUIRED TO FIGHT FOR A RED

Stalling wore a red band about his arm. Union officials, he said, distributed the bands to the miners and told them to wear them always. Each man, he said, was given a rifle and many rounds of ammunition.

In some instances, he said, men were given rifles and were required to pay for them by the miners. Each man was given a suit of overalls.

Passwords were sent through the Army and the men were given a special form of challenge.

"Who might be there" was the challenge and the following words were countersigned or passwords:

"Mingo": "We come creeping and slipping."
"Mingo": "We come creeping and slipping."

Stalling, another boy, evidently told the truth. He said he had been forced to join the army against his will.

McGarish said he had come to West Virginia a few months ago from Ohio and had secured work. He admitted membership in the miners' union. He said he started with a company of miners to attend a meeting today at the mine and he was returning, but he met the returning miners, who informed him that Keeney and Mooney had spoken at the mass meeting and there was no need of proceeding. He said, a special train passed through the coal river district carrying miners and that he joined them. When the party reached the hills near Logan he was given a rifle and a red band and the pass words quoted above with the exception of the word "Mingo". He was asked the names of the leaders, but could only mention a man named "Whitey".

The prisoner denied knowing the destination of the marching miners. He said he had carried the gun, but had fired it. He denied evil intentions, but admitted he was "breaking the law somewhat." He attempted to convey the impression that he blindly followed the orders of "some one" and that he had done no harm.

ONLY 47 VOTES ARE CAST SO FAR

Forecast Light Poll in Tuesday's Election.

Only forty-seven absent voters' ballots for the coming constitutional amendment election had been received by mail or placed in a ballot box by voters who appeared at the courthouse in person since last Saturday, it was said today at the county clerk's office. It is estimated about thirty absent voters' ballots have been mailed out on applications which have not been returned.

According to the clerk's office, this indicates that all records for a small vote will be broken Tuesday, as there seems to be little interest in the coming election.

The following shows the number of voters from the wards and townships who have availed themselves of the absent voters' right: one from the Second ward; six from the Third; four from the Fourth; two from the Sixth; four from the Seventh; ten from the Eighth; four from the Ninth; one from the Eleventh; one from Decatur Township; four from Warren and four from Washington Township.

Last night, County Auditor Leo K. Fessler instructed all election officials. Election supplies, including the ballots, were given the officials by Deputy County Clerks A. C. Sogener and Willis Vermillion.

N. Y. Man Suicides in Local Hospital

John Vettel, 58, of Woodside Highlands, N. Y., committed suicide in his room early today in the Deaconess Hospital.

Vettel, a man of means, from three handkerchiefs, slipped it over his neck and then drew it tight by using a cane, choking himself to death.

The victim was sent to the hospital some time ago, and today he was being investigated by Dr. George Christian, deputy coroner is Dr. George Christian.

NOTE NOT AUTHORIZED.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—No instructions were given to Governor Morrow of the Panama Canal Zone, to protest against the proposed demonstration in Panama on Monday against the award of the disputed boundary territory to Costa Rica. Secretary Weeks said this afternoon. The Secretary said he had no confirmation that Governor Morrow had delivered a note to the Panamanian government protesting against the closing of business as anti-American propaganda. He expressed some surprise at the reports of such action.

Want to See Justice in Mingo Trials and Organize the Field

MADISON, W. Va., Sept. 3.—"And what's it all about?" This was the question a correspondent asked one of the grim, determined men leading the miners' army, sitting by a campfire not far from the front this morning.

"Why are you and your comrades going on this march?"

The man, whose name for obvious reasons is not given, hesitated, then answered:

"I reckon there are many different reasons. But I think I speak for most of the men when I say that we want to get to Mingo County by next Tuesday and see that justice is done in the trials to begin then. That isn't all, however, the leader continued. "We want to put an end to the mine guard system and the Baldwin-Feltz detective system of the coal-mining regions. We want the fellows who are working here to have a chance to organize, so that our mines won't be idle while these 'scabs' are running full time. The men want to come in, but they're afraid."

"And will you go home when Federal troops get here?"

"We're not fighting Uncle Sam," was the answer. "We're fighting bourgeois operators and mine thugs who are killing the fellows who are after. Many of us fought in the army overseas. I did myself, but this isn't what we fought for, and we hope that when the troops go here they'll see that we get a square deal."

WOMEN VOTERS IN FINAL APPEAL

Indiana Ministers Asked to Speak Sunday on First Amendment.

Special to The Times.
PERU, Ind., Sept. 3.—A final appeal to Indiana women to familiarize themselves with the proposed amendments to the State Constitution to be voted on in special election next Tuesday, was issued here today by the Indiana League of Women Voters.

"To you who have been so long disfranchised we address this appeal for interest in the election Sept. 6," it said. "This is your chance to vote on the amendments which will give you a voice in the government of your state."

"Parties and policies change, legislators enact and repeal laws, but the one thing on which everything else must rest is our constitution. Sept. 6 gives you a chance to be a constitution maker. We beg you to inform yourself on the amendments and not only to go to the polls yourself but to interest others to accompany you."

"If women are not active and interested in this election they will face this responsibility: That basic law may be adopted by very small group of people and that by inaction and indifference this small group of people may be allowed to make or remake our Indiana constitution."

"There are some of the amendments which individuals of us favor or oppose, but we are all united in support of No. 1, the amendment which requires that every man and woman in Indiana must be a citizen of the United States in order to vote."

Mrs. E. A. Torrence, Evansville, chairman of the Americanization committee of the league, is appealing to all ministers in the State to speak on Sunday in behalf of the first amendment. Many ministers, it was said, have already declared their intention of making the subject of the subject of their Sunday sermons.

TWINS' BODIES ARRIVE TODAY

Served Together and Killed on Same Day.

The bodies of Emmet and Roscoe Wempper, 27, twins, who were killed in action at Chateau-Thierry on the same day are expected to arrive in Indianapolis today, according to word received Friday by a brother, C. E. Wempper, of this city. In childhood Mr. Wempper was separated from his brothers and was adopted by another family.

The twins enlisted in the Marine corps the same day, were assigned to the same company, and served together until their death. They were born in Bluefield, W. Va., and lived there until shortly before the war when they came to Indianapolis. While here they were employed as machinists by the Nordyke and Marmion Company.

To Offer Prizes for Ideas on Park Plans

Inauguration of a plan whereby employees of the city park department may compete for a prize fund in the form of a plan in the most suggestions for improvements in a year will be held before the board of park commissioners at its regular meeting Thursday, James H. Lowry, superintendent of parks, has announced.

Mr. Lowry said his idea is to have prizes offered in the park department to encourage the submission of suggestions for improvements in the park system. The prize fund, which would be awarded by a board composed of employees and citizens. Forms upon which suggestions for improvements should be made are one of the features of the idea.

FARMERS THINK RAW DEAL GIVEN AT CITY MARKET

Unable to Sell Products to Peddlers Until After 6
O'clock in Evening.

Farmers who came to the city Friday afternoon to sell produce to peddlers and consumers at the city market were angry when they discovered the new rules which the county commissioners, the board of public safety, and City Market Master Harry Libbey have put in force.

For some time the farmers and truck gardeners have been driving into town early Friday afternoon. They park their automobiles, trucks and wagons along the courthouse side of East Washington street between Alabama and Delaware streets, paying twenty-five cents per vehicle for the space. Then they have come to selling out their entire loads to peddlers or retailing them. The peddler, as a rule, sets up his stand in the space which the farmer had rented and retails from it until closing time Saturday morning. This enabled many farmers to dispose of a load of produce early Friday afternoon and hustle on home, losing only a half day from his field. It also resulted in the strewing of much refuse along the streets, due to the transfer of loads from the farmers' vehicles to the peddlers' stands. East Washington street merchants complained to the county commissioners and the city market master that the farmers' stands were a nuisance and that they were charged with the cost of cleaning up the refuse.

CANNOT SELL UNTIL 6 O'CLOCK.
The regulations now provide that the farmers may drive to the East Washington street space on Friday afternoon, but that they must not retail nor wholesale their products until after 6 o'clock Friday evening, and that they must clear the space not later than 6 o'clock Saturday morning. The same rule holds good on the other market days, Tuesday and Thursday.

The city and county also has announced its intention of keeping the streets clear of produce on Friday afternoon, but that they must not retail nor wholesale their products until after 6 o'clock Friday evening, and that they must clear the space not later than 6 o'clock Saturday morning. The same rule holds good on the other market days, Tuesday and Thursday.

Clashing in angry little groups the producers discussed the new orders Friday afternoon. Many declared they believed the middle men had talked the authorities into issuing the orders. They are distinctly to the advantage of the retailer, the farmers and gardeners said, because the peddlers, knowing that the farmer must get off of East Washington street by 8 o'clock on the market day, are unable to buy from the producers until almost the last minute, thereby making the farmer take about any price the middle man care to offer.

Many citizens have been in the habit of going to "producers' row" in the afternoon and evening before market day in order to buy fresh produce direct from the farmers and gardeners. The order prohibiting the sale of produce on the evening before market day prevents the farmers from doing much retail business, if they desire to get home before evening, it was stated.

SOME SOLD DESPITE ORDERS.
Open defiance to the order was expressed by some producers, who sold their produce, watermelons and other products to anybody who happened to ask for them before 6 o'clock Friday evening. Others disobeyed the order surreptitiously. One farmer was overheard to tell a prospective customer that he could not sell a watermelon until after 6 o'clock, but "if you'll climb up on the wagon, get a melon, fall off the wagon and drop a nickel while you're falling no one will see you."

While the authorities are putting restrictions upon the farmers, a man in one group suggested they ought to be watching the men who come around to collect 25-cent fees from the farmers according to the producer, give receipts only when they are asked for. He said he supposed the authorities had to account to the authorities only for the amount of money his receipt called for. The collector never refuses to give a receipt when it is asked for, however, he added.

ASK FARMERS TO AID ARMENIANS

Sack, 20 Feet High, to Receive Grain.

Near East Relief, in order to increase an interest in the appeal for grain for starving Armenians, will have headquarters on the State fairground, with a mammoth grain sack as the chief feature. Relief workers will take grain pledges from farmers who desire to aid the sufferers of the Bible lands.

The big grain sack, made by Ben's Bros. Bag Co., is more than twenty feet high, and is said to be the largest burlap bag ever manufactured. Near East Relief headquarters will be immediately south of the Coliseum.

The Near East Relief agricultural committee, of which Prof. G. I. Christie is chairman, will be in touch with county agricultural agents during the week. It is announced the State Fair is the opening of the grain campaign.

The relief organization is much pleased with an endorsement just received from J. B. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"I believe that the enterprises for which the Near East Relief is gathering food is worthy of receiving the generosity of American farmers," Mr. Howard says.

FAMILY BIBLE RELIC OF PAST

No Demand for Fonderous Volumes Now.

Special to The Times.
COLUMBUS, Ind., Sept. 3.—There is not a family Bible for sale in the stores of Columbus. The last one was sold yesterday, after having reposed on a shelf for nearly a half century. Families don't have big family Bibles any more or people don't have family Bibles any more and they have all stopped handling the ponderous books.

The solitary, shelf-worn relic of the days when father read a verse from the Bible before the family went to bed at 8 o'clock, was purchased by John Rice, of the East Columbus Christian Church yesterday, in accordance with the will of Miss Stella M. Elkins, who died here recently. Her bequest to the church also included money to buy a chair for the pulpit.

National Club Board to Hold Meeting Here

An executive board meeting of the National Altruism Club is to be held tomorrow in Indianapolis. Miss Mary Buehler, national president, and Miss Hazel Williams, secretary, and both residents of Indianapolis, will be the guests of honor. The remaining national officers and one member from each club.

CHURCH CHANGES FASTERS.
NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Sept. 3.—The Rev. O. C. Yokley has resigned as pastor of the Christian Church at Atlanta and has accepted the pastorate of the First Christian Church at Disberry, Mo.

The Rev. Leroy Mellett, who recently finished his studies in the Kentucky Theological School, will fill the vacant pastorate.

JUDGE COLLINS RETURNS.

Two Men, Ages 62 and 69, Carve Each Other

Sam Coyner, 62, and Charles Case, 69, both living at 514 1/2 East Washington street, are in the city hospital, suffering from knife wounds inflicted on each other last night. The police say too much white man was involved in the affair. When they are released from the hospital, each man will be charged with assault and battery with intent to kill.

DENOUNCE PLAN AS VICIOUS AND UNDEMOCRATIC

Bartholomew Teachers Fail to Ratify Proposed Constitution.

Special to The Times.
COLUMBUS, Ind., Sept. 3.—Declaring the proposed constitution of the Indiana State Teachers' Association is vicious and undemocratic and will take away the right of school teachers to direct their own affairs, the teachers of Bartholomew County unanimously refused to ratify the constitution, when the question was put to vote at the closing of the County Teachers' Institute here. The resolution of refusal read as follows:

"We, the teachers of Bartholomew County, refuse to ratify the proposed constitution of the Indiana Teachers' Association. Because it is a return to the delegate system, which was tried before the constitution of 1854 was adopted, and was unsuccessful, because unfair to teachers."

"Because it is vicious in that it influences political and professional, can be brought to bear upon the rank and file of the teachers in selecting delegates locally. Because it is undemocratic in that it takes three members of the executive committee to take from 25,000 teachers their money yearly to use as they see fit, with no court of appeal."

"Because it will take from the public school teachers the right to direct their own affairs, and to elect their own association and destroys their initiative, just beginning to be realized and condense the money of the teachers into the hands of a few in the eyes of the professional world."

The teachers in all counties of the State will be called upon to vote on the proposed constitution before the State teachers' convention at Indianapolis this fall.

INDIANAPOLIS DAY AT THE FAIR
Mayor, in Proclamation, Calls on Citizens to Help Make Occasion Success.

A dinner in honor of the Rev. Matthew S. Smith, of Beavers Falls, Pa., to whom the First Presbyterian Church extended a call to the pastorate about three weeks ago, was given at the church last night with more than 250 members of the congregation present.

Addresses were made by members of the church, in which an effort was made to convince the Rev. Mr. Smith of the greater opportunity for service by accepting the call, and he commended the congregation upon its spirit of loyalty and enthusiasm and thanked the members for the confidence they placed in him, but withheld his answer to the call until a later date.

T. C. Day, who presided at the dinner, announced that the Rev. Mr. Smith would preach to the church Sunday at 10 o'clock. A greater number of the members of the congregation an opportunity to meet him.

It is a great thing for the city of Indianapolis to have the State fair held here every year. It brings hundreds of thousands of visitors into the city and gives the people of Indianapolis an opportunity to view the exhibits in the various lines of commercial agriculture.

"I want to urge our people to really and truly make it Indianapolis day, Tuesday is election day, the State amendments, therefore, will naturally be a holiday for most people and many of the business concerns. Let us all not only attend our duties at the ballot box, but visit the Indiana State Fair. Let us make Indianapolis day a real institution for the future, by showing our appreciation of it on Tuesday, Sept. 6."

500 Enjoy Frolic and Eats at Ad Club Picnic
More than five hundred persons attended the fun and frolic picnic of the Indianapolis Advertising Club at Turner Park, yesterday afternoon and evening, although an effort had been made by the elements to cast a "wet blanket" on it.

There were athletic events, contests of many kinds, prizes aggregating in value more than $1,500, dancing, a "country" music band, the Indianapolis Newsboys Band, watermelon-eating contest and a great many good things to eat.

ASKS PART TIME WORK AS AID TO UNEMPLOYED

Employment Service Asks
'Floaters' to Return Home.

Indiana employers have been asked by the employment division of the State industrial board to employ a large number of men and women part time instead of a small number all time. Thomas A. Riley, in charge of the division, announced today.

The plan of the employment division was contained in a letter to Governor Warren T. McCray, who will transmit the information to Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, to be used in the proposed unemployment conference. The information was requested by Secretary Hoover.

Mr. Riley's letter follows: "Acknowledgment is made of your request of Sept. 2 regarding information desired by Secretary of Commerce Hoover."

"Please be advised that this office has knowledge of any city in our State having formulated any definite plan of meeting the present problems of unemployment, except Hammond."

"However, this office has set out instructions to the manager of the free employment offices in the following cities: Hammond, Ft. Wayne, Lafayette, Muncie, Evansville, Terre Haute and Indianapolis, to get in touch with the city and county boards of civic bodies and county trustees and urge upon them to cooperate in calling upon the manufacturers, business men, etc., to devise ways and means to create 'odd jobs' such as putting in coal yard cleaning, window washing, etc., to ask the manufacturers to alternate his forces as much as possible so as to give as many as possible three days a week instead of giving just a few full time. The business men of Hammond are carrying out this plan now."

"Managers in charge of the employment service also are instructed to urge upon persons seeking domestic help to employ women whose husbands they know cannot find employment and whose family affairs are such that the wife can accept employment."

"Applicants are advised not to leave their home cities and floaters are urged to return to their homes until the industrial depression is relieved. We advised this because a hungry man is dangerous, but he is not so apt to suffer at home among friends."

"In my recent visit to Chicago to the free employment office there were approximately 200,000 people out of employment in Chicago. These were not men who made their homes in Chicago, they said, but from surrounding towns, who had come to Chicago looking for work only to become stranded there."

"Mr. Riley will go to Buffalo next week to attend a meeting of the International Association of Public Employment Service."

COMPLETE WORK AMONG WAR VET

1,000 Examinations Held for Service Men Who Claim Compensation.

After making almost 1,000 examinations of former service men whose claims for compensation have not been adjusted the clean-up squad of the War Veterans' Bureau, which has been at work in Indianapolis for three weeks, will leave for Terre Haute today to open headquarters in that city.

T. Edward McNamara, who has been in charge of the squad in this city, said he believes that it will be necessary for the squad to make another visit to this city after its work in Terre Haute has been completed.

The work accomplished by the squad has been far more satisfactory than was hoped for when it started. Mr. McNamara said, and a surprisingly large number of adjustments have been obtained. Figures on the entire work accomplished have not been compiled as yet and it is impossible to determine the exact number of cases handled and disposed of by the squad.

While in Terre Haute the squad will continue to work on cases which were started in this city and not finally disposed of.

The squad is composed of Mr. McNamara and a number of physicians, both general examiners and specialists. This includes Drs. A. Ulrich, H. M. Kaufman, S. G. Jump and Dr. Ashley.

Miss Dorothy Clark, representing the American Red Cross, and Bert Hawkins "in Aid" Legion also are members of the squad.

It is understood a great volume of work is awaiting the squad at Terre Haute. The American League of War Veterans has chartered a special car and will take fifty or more former service men to Terre Haute for examination.

Wife Takes Husband's Advice

And Is Made Well Again
by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Springfield, Mass.—"The doctor told my husband that I had to have an operation, otherwise I would be a sickly woman and could not have any more children on account of my weakened condition. I refused to have the operation. My husband advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For the first four months I could do but little work, had to lie down most of the time, and was very nervous, but my husband was always reminding me to take the Vegetable Compound, which I did. Of my eight children this last one was the easiest birth of all and I am thankful for my Vegetable Compound. I
