

ARMORED CARS ROAM BELFAST AFTER RIOTING

Bomb Explosion Signal for Outbreak of Revolver and Rifle Fire.

MACHINE GUNS USED

BELFAST, Sept. 24.—Corps of armored cars patrolled the streets of Belfast today after a night of rioting. The fighting which broke out shortly after midnight spread throughout a section of the city. Gunmen hidden in doorways poured their fire into the streets. Rioting crowds surged along the main thoroughfares and order was not restored until the British troops swept the streets with their Hotchkiss guns.

The number of dead and wounded could not be determined.

A bomb hurled in Harland street was the signal for the rioting. The entire east side district seethed with rifle and revolver fire as the detonation of the bomb died away.

Hundreds of gunmen, in the area of Newton road seized a railway station and the river bridges. They hid in places of vantage and poured a leaden fire along the main thoroughfare. Citizens in tramway cars became panicky and fled the district. Soon all cars were stopped.

The military, speeding through the streets in armored cars, fired their small arms without effect. It was only when they opened up on the rioters with Hotchkiss guns that the revolters threw down their arms and fled. The gangs dispersed before the guns, but some of them roamed themselves in points of safety and lay until dawn. They took their injured with them.

The body of one civilian had been found at noon today.

LLOYD GEORGE HAS NEW PLAN

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Premier Lloyd George has evolved a new formula for settlement of Sinn Fein's problem which will be acceptable to both sides, he learned here today.

This new formula will not necessitate a compromise from the position of either side, it was said.

It was believed Eamonn De Valera's desire for a conference would prompt him to accept the proposed new proposal, as it will be accepted by both sides, he insisted. The Irish delegates were representatives of a free nation.

NEGRO SENTENCED TO STATE PRISON

Former Church Treasurer Convicted of Embezzlement.

James Gordon, negro, former treasurer of the Mt. Zion Free Baptist Church, who was indicted on a charge of embezzling $1,000 in funds belonging to the church, today was sentenced from two to fourteen years in the Indiana State prison by Judge James A. Collins, of the Criminal Court.

The case was tried some time ago and Gordon was given a chance to reimburse the church treasury.

Gordon was sentenced as follows: Carlton Barlett, burglary and grand larceny, $100 costs and from one to fourteen years at the Indiana State prison; and Joe Johnson, burglary, one year on the Indiana State farm.

The court sustained a motion to quash information against Clarence L. Brown, who was charged with operating a motor vehicle at night with no lights. He appealed from the city court. Judge Collins ordered him discharged after suspending the motion.

36 TAXI DRIVERS ASK INJUNCTION

Seek to Stop Enforcement of Ordinance.

Pending on the docket for a hearing in the near future in Superior Court, room 4, is a suit filed by Ollie Bean and thirty-five other taxicab drivers and operators, asking that a restraining order be issued against the Indianapolis board of safety and Jerry Kinney as their attorney presenting these from enforcing section 10 of ordinance No. 32, which was passed this year.

On final hearing, the plaintiffs ask that a permanent injunction be issued against the defendants restraining them from enforcing the ordinance which requires such vehicles display and use a registering device to pay a license for the privilege of operating taxicabs.

The complaint alleges that the ordinance in question is unconstitutional and void because it discriminates against the plaintiffs and because it is claimed that it was not legally passed by the city council and also on the grounds that it is not in accord with the State constitution.

R. H. ABEL TOLD TO QUIT OCT. 1

'Pioneer' in Local Prohi Department.

One of the last of the old Federal probation agents in his job under the regime of Bert Morgan, assistant officer for Indiana, R. H. Abel, has been notified that after Oct. 1, his services will no longer be required by the department.

Before Mr. Morgan took office Abel had been acting chief of Federal probation for Indiana for some time and had been writing in large number of liquor raids. Before that he had been a field agent and had been in service almost since the organization of the department.

Shortly after Mr. Morgan took office, Abel was removed as acting chief and reduced to agent. Since that time his assignments have been almost wholly in the "sticks" and he spent very little time in Indianapolis.

AIR CONGRESS IS HELD AT KOKOMO

Special to The Times.
KOKOMO, Ind., Sept. 24.—Plots and aviation enthusiasm from all the Central States were present today at the National Air Congress, held here under auspices of the Kokomo Chamber of Commerce. Stunts today included races, distance glides, parachute jumps and aerial acrobatics.

Among the visitors were Mal. R. W. Schroeder of Chicago, holder of the world's altitude record of 34,000 feet; Stanley E. Knuss, Detroit aviator; Matthew Laird, Wichita, Kan., airplane builder; and Albert Johnson, aviator of Dayton, Ohio.

The airmen put on exhibition flights last night with electrically lighted planes.

ATTENDS STATE CONFERENCE.
John Carlisle, bailiff of the Marion County Commissioners Court, will leave Sunday night for Washington to attend a conference relative to the annual convention of the County Commissioners Association, which will be held there in October. Mr. Carlisle is secretary of the association.

Woollen Is Delegate

'The Other Woman' Pays' Says Mrs. Perley Spiker

Girls Who Have 'Affairs' With Married Men Are Branded 'Little Fools' by Wife Who Stuck.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 24.—"Girls who get into affairs with married men are little fools. It is the other woman who always pays. The wife, if she is wise and bides her time, has the final triumph." With a knowing smile, Mrs. Perley Spiker, the remarkable wife in the international Spiker romance, uttered this line of wisdom today. She was discussing the closing chapter in the romance as written by Emily Knowles Spiker, her brother, who sacrificed himself to marry the girl he who has deserted all the Spikers.

"It was Mrs. Perley's husband's 'war sweetheart,' but it was Mrs. Perley who brought her to this country, established her across the street from her own home and arranged for her comfort, Mrs. Perley said, noting remarkable about this action on the part of a wife.

DOES THINGS.
SENSIBLE WAY.

She is a wholesome looking, pleasant woman, who believes in doing things in a sensible way. She matched common sense against romance as represented by Emily in the big, blue eyes and the appeal of youth.

"And, as you see, I came out victor in the end," Mrs. Spiker said. She had just come in from an airing with Emily's baby. Mrs. Perley mothers Emily's baby. It is her own husband's illegitimate child, but she sees nothing out of the

LOWER WAGES NOT PANACEA, GOMPERS SAYS

(Continued From Page One.)

the labor unions must move forward step by step with never a step backward.

HIS LIFE PLEDGED

"So long as I live I intend to give to the labor movement whatever service and whatever experience the labor movement has given me."

He declared that experience gained in the labor movement is not the private property of the men obtaining it, but of the labor movement. He said these men are married to the labor movement and that cannot be divorced from it.

"We are now confronted with a drive for the open shop or what some others basely designate as the American plan," he said.

He called attention to the injunction suit just filed in the Federal Court against the miners' union as an example of the way the miners' union is being used.

He said it had been intended to him that the mine operators are trying to bring about a strike so that the miners may be thrown on the miners. He advised to resist a reduction of wages by every means at hand.

"It is better to resist and lose than not to resist at all," he said.

There is nothing more absurd than the idea that men can be set to work by cutting wages. The cutting of wages cuts wages.

He upheld President Lewis in his stand on the West Virginia trouble.

"Peace can not be maintained at the point of the bayonet or the muzzle of a gun," he said.

A Czar of Russia once said that such a power should be established at Warsaw, but that place did not become a power.

He said the mine operators must come to an understanding of their place in America and that their system must be driven out. He advocated the settlement of the trouble through a conference.

He called attention to the injunction suit just filed in the Federal Court against the miners' union as an example of the way the miners' union is being used.

He said it had been intended to him that the mine operators are trying to bring about a strike so that the miners may be thrown on the miners. He advised to resist a reduction of wages by every means at hand.

"It is better to resist and lose than not to resist at all," he said.

There is nothing more absurd than the idea that men can be set to work by cutting wages. The cutting of wages cuts wages.

He upheld President Lewis in his stand on the West Virginia trouble.

"Peace can not be maintained at the point of the bayonet or the muzzle of a gun," he said.

A Czar of Russia once said that such a power should be established at Warsaw, but that place did not become a power.

He said the mine operators must come to an understanding of their place in America and that their system must be driven out. He advocated the settlement of the trouble through a conference.

He called attention to the injunction suit just filed in the Federal Court against the miners' union as an example of the way the miners' union is being used.

He said it had been intended to him that the mine operators are trying to bring about a strike so that the miners may be thrown on the miners. He advised to resist a reduction of wages by every means at hand.

"It is better to resist and lose than not to resist at all," he said.

There is nothing more absurd than the idea that men can be set to work by cutting wages. The cutting of wages cuts wages.

He upheld President Lewis in his stand on the West Virginia trouble.

"Peace can not be maintained at the point of the bayonet or the muzzle of a gun," he said.

A Czar of Russia once said that such a power should be established at Warsaw, but that place did not become a power.

He said the mine operators must come to an understanding of their place in America and that their system must be driven out. He advocated the settlement of the trouble through a conference.

He called attention to the injunction suit just filed in the Federal Court against the miners' union as an example of the way the miners' union is being used.

He said it had been intended to him that the mine operators are trying to bring about a strike so that the miners may be thrown on the miners. He advised to resist a reduction of wages by every means at hand.

"It is better to resist and lose than not to resist at all," he said.

There is nothing more absurd than the idea that men can be set to work by cutting wages. The cutting of wages cuts wages.

He upheld President Lewis in his stand on the West Virginia trouble.

"Peace can not be maintained at the point of the bayonet or the muzzle of a gun," he said.

A Czar of Russia once said that such a power should be established at Warsaw, but that place did not become a power.

He said the mine operators must come to an understanding of their place in America and that their system must be driven out. He advocated the settlement of the trouble through a conference.

He called attention to the injunction suit just filed in the Federal Court against the miners' union as an example of the way the miners' union is being used.

He said it had been intended to him that the mine operators are trying to bring about a strike so that the miners may be thrown on the miners. He advised to resist a reduction of wages by every means at hand.

"It is better to resist and lose than not to resist at all," he said.

There is nothing more absurd than the idea that men can be set to work by cutting wages. The cutting of wages cuts wages.

He upheld President Lewis in his stand on the West Virginia trouble.

"Peace can not be maintained at the point of the bayonet or the muzzle of a gun," he said.

A Czar of Russia once said that such a power should be established at Warsaw, but that place did not become a power.

He said the mine operators must come to an understanding of their place in America and that their system must be driven out. He advocated the settlement of the trouble through a conference.

He called attention to the injunction suit just filed in the Federal Court against the miners' union as an example of the way the miners' union is being used.

He said it had been intended to him that the mine operators are trying to bring about a strike so that the miners may be thrown on the miners. He advised to resist a reduction of wages by every means at hand.

"It is better to resist and lose than not to resist at all," he said.

There is nothing more absurd than the idea that men can be set to work by cutting wages. The cutting of wages cuts wages.

He upheld President Lewis in his stand on the West Virginia trouble.

"Peace can not be maintained at the point of the bayonet or the muzzle of a gun," he said.

A Czar of Russia once said that such a power should be established at Warsaw, but that place did not become a power.

He said the mine operators must come to an understanding of their place in America and that their system must be driven out. He advocated the settlement of the trouble through a conference.

He called attention to the injunction suit just filed in the Federal Court against the miners' union as an example of the way the miners' union is being used.

He said it had been intended to him that the mine operators are trying to bring about a strike so that the miners may be thrown on the miners. He advised to resist a reduction of wages by every means at hand.

"It is better to resist and lose than not to resist at all," he said.

There is nothing more absurd than the idea that men can be set to work by cutting wages. The cutting of wages cuts wages.

He upheld President Lewis in his stand on the West Virginia trouble.

"Peace can not be maintained at the point of the bayonet or the muzzle of a gun," he said.

A Czar of Russia once said that such a power should be established at Warsaw, but that place did not become a power.

He said the mine operators must come to an understanding of their place in America and that their system must be driven out. He advocated the settlement of the trouble through a conference.

He called attention to the injunction suit just filed in the Federal Court against the miners' union as an example of the way the miners' union is being used.

He said it had been intended to him that the mine operators are trying to bring about a strike so that the miners may be thrown on the miners. He advised to resist a reduction of wages by every means at hand.

"It is better to resist and lose than not to resist at all," he said.

There is nothing more absurd than the idea that men can be set to work by cutting wages. The cutting of wages cuts wages.

He upheld President Lewis in his stand on the West Virginia trouble.

"Peace can not be maintained at the point of the bayonet or the muzzle of a gun," he said.

A Czar of Russia once said that such a power should be established at Warsaw, but that place did not become a power.

He said the mine operators must come to an understanding of their place in America and that their system must be driven out. He advocated the settlement of the trouble through a conference.

He called attention to the injunction suit just filed in the Federal Court against the miners' union as an example of the way the miners' union is being used.

He said it had been intended to him that the mine operators are trying to bring about a strike so that the miners may be thrown on the miners. He advised to resist a reduction of wages by every means at hand.

"It is better to resist and lose than not to resist at all," he said.

There is nothing more absurd than the idea that men can be set to work by cutting wages. The cutting of wages cuts wages.

He upheld President Lewis in his stand on the West Virginia trouble.

"Peace can not be maintained at the point of the bayonet or the muzzle of a gun," he said.

A Czar of Russia once said that such a power should be established at Warsaw, but that place did not become a power.

He said the mine operators must come to an understanding of their place in America and that their system must be driven out. He advocated the settlement of the trouble through a conference