SAYS DEATH DUE TO 'WHITE MULE'

Coroner Examines Body of Local Tailor.

John Williams, 50, a tailor, who died in a taxi cab Saturday night, was identified yesterday by Mrs. Dora Volsted, 1124 North Tuxedo street, his ex-wife. Dr. George Christian, deputy coroner, who performed the autopsy, reported that death was due to acute alcoholism. The deputy coroner found almost a pint of "white mule" whiskey in Williams' stomach.

Mason Tamm, 645 Union street, appeared at police headquarters this afternoon and told the police he sold the "mule" to Williams. He was arrested on a charge of obtaining a blind tiger.

Edward Moore, 615 North Illinois street, taxi driver in whose car Williams died, said he was called to the Madison apartment, 601 Madison avenue, and that two men carried a man to the taxi. He was told to drive to the New Commercial Hotel, 215 North Illinois street. There the two men got out and he remained for some time. He discovered that Williams was dead.

Omer McCallister, 31, 229 North Illinois street, told detectives yesterday that he met Williams at John Rocco's tailor shop on Illinois street, Saturday night, and Williams suggested that they get something to drink. They walked to South and Illinois streets and a stranger told them they were in liquor at a house on Madison avenue near Norwood street. Williams purchased a bottle of liquor and became intoxicated and the taxi was called.

An Italian tailor who was in the house assisted in carrying Williams to the taxi and the taxi driver to the New Commercial Hotel. The Italian went to the Stubbins Hotel and McCallister, who said he did not know the Italian, went home. When he heard later that Williams was dead he appeared at police headquarters and made a statement to the detectives.

SOLDIERS ON HIKE SPEND SUNDAY IN CITY

PUTS BULLET INTO HIS OWN BRAIN

SEYMOUR, Ind., Oct. 17.—(Excluding four armed posse after he had killed the girl he loved, and her father, George Haskett, 22, put a bullet into his own brain on the Owen Stauffer farm four miles away.

The posse had searched for Haskett throughout Saturday night after he had killed Phyllis Lind, 16, and his daughter, Miss Nellie Lind, a school teacher, 24. Haskett repeatedly had tried to force his attentions on Miss Lind. She attempted to repulse him and when she failed her father interfered. It is presumed Haskett resumed his urgent courting at the Lind farm home Saturday and that when the father ordered him away he shot the aged man, later killing the girl because she refused to accompany him.

The posse scoured the woods until after daybreak Sunday. Later Haskett, fatigued and harassed told his story to Owen Stauffer, who used to work for Haskett's father. He was ordered out of the place and later found his body when he went to feed his stock.
