

GARVIN TOUCHES ON EXPERIENCES WITH THE ARMY

Says Mingling of Mercy With Justice and Common Sense
Good Guides.

Recalling his experience as a private soldier who served overseas Thomas E. Garvin, Democratic nominee for city judge, declared in speeches last night: "I know what it means to stand before the bar of justice perfectly helpless to defend myself, as so frequently the poor people who come before the city bench find themselves, often without a legal adviser, and as a judge I expect to remember these experiences of the past and mingle mercy with justice. Add to this common sense, which after all is law defined, and we have an excellent formula by which to go."

STANDS FOR RALSTON AS CITIZEN.

Mr. Garvin declared that he stands for Boyd M. Ralston, Democratic nominee for mayor, not as a partisan seeking political preference, but as a citizen. "This campaign deserves plain and unvarnished language," he said. "I believe that the duty of a candidate for city judge is to represent the people in the campaign after the same plain that he proposes to serve them upon the bench. Either the candidate or an office holder must remember always that he is first of all and last of all a citizen and that the chief obligation that may be imposed upon him is no greater than that which rests upon the shoulders of each individual."

"As a citizen then of Indianapolis, capital of the fair state of Indiana, I stand—not as a partisan seeking political preference—for Boyd M. Ralston for mayor. He is a capable business man, clean and honorable in his dealings with his fellowmen, an excellent representative of that type which in the administration of public office permits conscience rather than expediency to guide."

SAYS CITY COURT SERVICE COURT.

"Concerning the city court I have this to say: That above all things it should be exempt from those lists of offices, the elective and appointive, which come under the category of political plum. The city court might be well called the 'service court.' It is the heart of the city. Through it flows all of the elements of vice and corruption and upon it depends all of the good folk for protection. The judge of the city court should be a man who understands men, who has worked with his hands, who has marched in the ranks and knows the burden of labor. The judge of the city court should be familiar with the law. There is no court in this state where the technicalities of the law are more readily over-ridden than down in the so-called police court and frequently a man's rights depend upon chance or the particular humor of the judge who happens to be upon the bench."

Personally I have nothing to add about service records. Too much has been said along that line. As a private soldier, however, who served overseas in the ranks I would come in daily contact with the 'boys' and was accustomed to stand before superiors myself subject to whatever order or direction they might see fit to give. "I stand for Mrs. Ralston and the ticket that is with him, for the ticket that was nominated with him at the primary and not one that had to be reformed at the last minute of the eleventh hour. I believe that the citizens of Indianapolis are with Mr. Ralston, that they are with us, that their verdict at the poll next Tuesday will justify my assured prediction."

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3.—The Rev. Burris A. Jenkins, pastor of the Linwood Boulevard Christian Church, today severed his connection with the Kansas City Post, of which he has been publisher for nearly three years.

"The church is and always has been my first consideration," Jenkins said.

Dick Smith, managing editor, will be editor-in-chief and will have charge of the publication of the paper for the present, it was announced.

Italian Marines Guard Envoys' Liquor Supply

Stay in Baggage Coaches Until Special Trains Reach Capital.

Special to Indiana Daily Times
and Philadelphia Public Ledger.

By ROBERT BARRY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Italian marines standing guard over the royal Italian liquor supply and a woman from the Orient who outdid all her Occidental sisters in fashionable attire, gave color to an otherwise drab midnight picture at the Union station when Italian, Chinese, British and Belgian groups arrived in the baggage coaches of the special train which reached the capital hours behind schedule. Great boxes of wine were in the car and persons who gained admittance to the station platform found almost as much interest there as in the personages to be greeted.

ALL EYES ON MRS. KOO.

Mrs. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese minister to the United States, former minister to the United States and one of China's plenipotentiaries to the conference on the issues of the Pacific and the Far East, was the woman on whom rested the eyes of the all the female spectators who remained until the midnight hour for a glimpse of the celebrities. She wore a sable coat and carried a pommernian, each of which appeared expensive. Mr. Koo, in gray top coat and swinging a cane was equally more representative of Piccadilly than of Peking.

The lateness of the hour contributed to the lack of order in the greeting to the chiefs of the Italian delegation who were the most distinguished members of tonight's party. The cavalry escort was absent. There was no band. Secretary of State Hughes, who had intended going to meet the president of the Italian delegation—Signor H. E. Carlo Schanser, former minister of the treasury, did not do so when advised of the delay. There were about 300 spectators outside the police lines.

GREETED BY STATE OFFICIALS.

Accompanying Signor Schanser an elderly man, slightly stooped and wearing a redish gray beard, were Senator Albertine, also one of the Italian plenipotentiaries and Senator Vittorio Rolando Ricci, ambassador to the United States, the latter returning to his post after leave in Rome. Senator Modia, the fourth member of the delegation, is coming by a later ship.

Secretaries of the Italian embassy, joined the Secretary of State Robert W. Bliss, other State department officials and Army and Navy officers in greeting the Italian leaders. Brigadier General Andrew Browder and Rear Admiral C. S. Williams headed the American Army and Navy groups.

With Mr. Koo was Dr. Chung-Hui Lang, chief justice of the supreme court of China and also one of her plenipotentiaries at the conference.—Copyright, 1921, by Public Ledger Company.

PRINCE OF WALES TO BE WELCOMED

Leaving here the Prince will touch at Suez and then pass through the Suez Canal.

Wireless dispatches from the battleship Renown upon which the Prince is traveling said he was enjoying his voyage and was in excellent health.

ITALY TO KEEP MIDDLE GROUND

Such Will Be Attitude at Arms
Conference, Italian Press View.

Special to Indiana Daily Times
and Philadelphia Public Ledger.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Italy proposes to steer a neutral course between the antagonism of interests of England and the United States," says the Messaggero, in a digest of the Italian press on the armaments conference received here. "The influence of Italy must be poised between these two nations," continues the Messaggero, "to recognize the value of England as a factor in European policy, but also the value of America as a factor in world policy."

"Italy must definitely conquer the friendship and cooperation of America. America needs outlets for its commerce and Italy can become the center of distribution of American products and raw materials throughout Europe and the East. America can supply Italy with coal, oil, iron, copper, cotton and rubber, which Italy will finish and distribute."

Luigi Luzzatti, ex-prime minister, writing in the Tempo speaking of the conference said: "It may be a new delusion, but the peace of the world may also come of it. Suppose that disarmament—not fantastic disarmament, but a disarmament within the bounds of possibility—was crowned by reciprocal compensation of debts and credits between Germany and the allies under the auspices of the United States. Creditors of the entire world, but suffering like King Midas, from too much gold—then we might see a long if not perpetual peace. Military disarmament without economic disarmament or in other words without an agreement of righteous interests would not be sufficient."—Copyright, 1921, by Public Ledger Company.
