

THIEVES LOOT EXPRESS CAR OF FINE FURS

Pennsylvania Line Robbery Discovered When Train Reaches Here This A. M.

PLUNDER SOUGHT HERE

Valuable loot was obtained from express car No. 97, on the Columbus division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, according to a discovery made in Indianapolis last night. The car, filled with furs and other expensive merchandise, was en route from New York to St. Louis.

What was taken will not be known until the express company checks up on the shipment when the express car reached St. Louis today. Railroad men believe the robbery was committed between Charlestown, Ind., and the thirty miles east of Indianapolis, and the State avenue crossing in this city.

LOCAL POLICE

Local police, night terminal agent, modified police of the robbery and two officers were sent to the Union Depot to investigate, but the express train had left and the car entered by the thieves was en route to St. Louis by that time. It was 1 a. m. today when the police were told of the robbery. William Cowser, conductor, and engineer of the train in making his report of the robbery said the train stopped at Charlottesville for orders and that he walked past express car No. 97, at that time, and the seal was not broken on the door. There were no windows in the car which was used as an express car for through shipments. The train due at the Union Depot at 10 p. m., was two hours late.

LEAVE CAR AT STATE AVENUE

When the train reached State avenue the crew found the block against it and a stop of a few minutes was made there. It was at that time that the conductor discovered that the express car seal was broken. He investigated and in the car he found a small rodent and open packages of merchandise and that most of the packages had contained furs.

As soon as the car reached the Union Depot it was sealed. Then the train continued on its way to St. Louis. Cowser said the thieves probably left the train at State avenue as that was the first stop after leaving Charlottesville and that they closed the car door after they got off the train.

BONES IN STOVE, HUMAN BONES

Experts in Trial of French Bluebeard Submit Some Discouraging Testimony.

VERSAILLES, Nov. 24.—Two experts put on the stand by the prosecution at the trial today of Henri Landru, alleged "Bluebeard," stated that human flesh was found in the stove in Landru's villa at Gambais, which undoubtedly contained bones. They said the bones bore the marks of metal hacksaws. A previous witness testified to selling Landru hacksaws.

Several boxes, containing a skull and bones of a finger, feet, human teeth and other parts of the human anatomy, were produced by the prosecution.

Clashes were expected between Landru's counsel and the prosecution regarding incrimination of human bodies in Landru's stove.

Before the bone experts testified the prosecuting attorney reported that investigations carried out at the Gambais villa, April 29, 1919, showed there were blood stains on a cellar door, which experts were unable to say positively was human blood.

RADIO WORLD PACT, OBJECT OF CONFERENCE

International Agreement Will Be Sought for Settlement of Disputed Points.

YAP ISLAND INVOLVED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—An international agreement covering the radio communications of the world will be one of the important objects to be sought before the conference on limitation of armaments completes its work, it was learned from high sources today. This involves, as a primary factor, the island of Yap, it was stated. The settlement of this one question, while of extremely high importance in itself, is also so closely related to the armament and Far Eastern phases of the whole discussion that an agreement will go far toward the success of the parley.

So intensely has the armament side of the parley been stressed that such details as this have been relegated to the background, although they must be considered in order to reach a complete settlement of the difficulties harassing the world, it is said.

CONTROL IS NOT SOUGHT

There is no international agreement, it is stated that no question of international control is completed.

The big nations having most at stake will simply strive to reach some understanding which will govern the use of radio communications, just as trade and other privileges have been made the subject of negotiations in the past.

Japan, Great Britain and America will be Great Britain and Japan just as these three are principally concerned in the naval problem and for almost the same reasons. Japan's interest is obvious. She is an island nation striving for domination in the Far East, and at present with her thumb on the main artery of what may be a high standard of living.

The British position may be gauged as pointed out, by a glance at her present naval situation alone. The British have naval bases in every part of the world, including China, the Straits and other far flung points.

NAVAL BASES GREAT AID

It was naval bases, strung together on the network of cables communication that enabled the British fleet to cover the seven seas in the recent war. With cables cut in a future emergency, the next reliance would be the radio.

Judge Albert B. Anderson permitted Talbot to go on his present bond of $50,000 for a few days until the defendant, his attorney, have time to consider whether or not they wish to carry the case to the Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago on appeal.

It is understood that Talbot is determined to carry the case through to the bitter end. The maximum penalty for the offense of which he was found guilty is five years imprisonment and a fine of $5,000.

The case which lasted for three days brought out the sentimental evidence introduced in Federal Court in Chicago yesterday. The subject of the trial was the British's chief found guilty of violating Mann White Slave Act.
