

SENATE PARTY SAILS FOR HAITI TO INVESTIGATE

Members Expect to Clear Up Complications in South Sea.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—The senatorial committee of 22 members which will investigate conditions under the military occupation of Haiti and San Domingo by United States forces, sailed aboard the transport Argonne today from League Island Navy yards for Port-au-Prince, Haiti.

The party included Senators McCormick, Pomeroy and Jones, the latter replacing Senator King, who resigned from the committee, Capt. G. C. Day and Lieutenant Commander Mayo, liaison officers; Water Howe, attorney for the committee; Ernest Angell, counsel for Haiti; Dr. K. L. Jones, counsel for San Domingo, and a number of secretaries, interpreters, agricultural experts and press representatives.

Senator McCormick, discussing the trip, said:

"After six years of American military occupation, the situation in Haiti and San Domingo is so complicated and serious, with apparently no responsible man to go to the government, the investigation is imperative, not only for the future welfare of the islands, but to vindicate the good faith and honor of the United States. Our investigation will be made in no partisan spirit of criticism but inspired by the equal desire of Democrats and Republicans to do justice to wrongs if they exist."

Senator Pomeroy, agreeing with McCormick and adding that impartial local investigation was necessary to bring out the full truth and clear up misunderstandings and mistakes to lay the basis for future cooperation and cordial interrelations.

BELFAST, Nov. 24.—Two more persons died at hospitals today as a result of wounds received in factional rioting, bringing the total dead in the disturbances of the last six days to twenty. The city was quiet today, following a night in which there was considerable sniping from roofs and hallways. Troops continued patrolling the streets.

Detectives in Store;
Bandits Hold It Up;
Two Are Captured

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Three bandits who attempted to hold up the cigar store of Edward Mahoney in West Madison street, got the surprise of their lives.

When the bandits entered with their command to "Stick 'em up!" the back room of the cigar store suddenly erupted. Five police detectives, who had been questioning the proprietor regarding reports of a holdup from the back room and began shooting.

The shooting bandits fled in an automobile and the police followed in a taxicab. Edward Miller and Elmer Lasker, two of the bandits, were wounded and captured. The third man escaped.

Mrs. Hood Saturday

Hood, as a patent solicitor from 1855 until his death in 1897. She was a member of the Friday Afternoon Reading Club. Another son, Arthur M. Hood, 3035 North Meridian street, survives also. Mrs. Hood had lived in Indianapolis more than thirty-five years.

Says Children Should Develop Slowly

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—"Don't tell your children to be a little man or a little lady," Mrs. Mariette Johnson gave this advice at a meeting for mothers held by the Chicago League of Women Voters.

"We have enough 'little men' and 'little ladies'—I mean spiritually and socially, not physically," she declared. "He's a little boy and she's a little girl, and we must let them grow up and not as a green persimmon from a ripe one."

"No mother should be proud of the precocious child, because a child who is overdeveloped in one sense is underdeveloped in another. The hope of the race is in prolonging childhood."

Too many parents, according to Mrs. Johnson, "have their children in college before they are in high school."

Parents have no right to determine what the child is going to be, she said. They should not try to "make" musicians or lawyers or anything else out of children. Their concern, in the opinion of Mrs. Johnson, is with the present, not with the future of the child. The kiddies should be permitted to gradually develop themselves.

BRIAND'S ARMY STAND AROUSES BRITISH LAMENT

Official Organ of Lloyd George Sees France Pledged to More Militarism.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—England is extremely disappointed that Premier Briand has not seen fit to reduce substantially the land armament of France, the London Chronicle—Premier Lloyd George's organ—undoubtedly expressing the highest British opinion, declared today.

Even considering France's bitter memory of German invasion—her armies are not more to her than our navy is to us—the Chronicle stated in a bitter arraignment of Briand's platform:

AMERICA'S LEAD FOLLOWED.

"We followed America's lead. Indeed, we even hoped to better it, but France has refused to give or follow in military armament. Instead, she has continued the lesson and created awkward cross-currents in the sea of peace."

English opinion has given due consideration to Briand's view of European affairs, with every sympathy of the great suffering of France during the war and with undiminished faith in the value of the entente—and England respects it.

England is on the verge of war. Germany is effectively unarmed. Both America and Britain have assured France she will never stand alone as champion of liberty. France's lack of practical sympathy does not merely demand a predominant army, but goes so far as to compel the demand with a plea for battleships and submarines. This does not point toward disarmament, but to a new era of militarism.

LOCAL TO NAVAL PROPOSALS.

"We remain loyal to our naval proposals, but the nature of the demands makes the burden more difficult for us to bear unsupported."

"As America's hopes—as well as our own—are jeopardized, we are at a point now that Briand's proposal is necessarily a bar to the realization of a general limitation of armaments, which Britain hoped and still hopes that Washington will achieve."
