

THE REALM WHERE WOMAN REIGNS

Jury Service of Women Calls for New Facilities

Courthouses of State Must Be Made Inhabitable for New Citizenry.

By JULIA C. HENDERSON.

A strange situation has developed in more than one county in the State, which tends to deprive women from jury service, and that is the lack of proper facilities in the courthouses for the comfort and convenience of women. Since the feeling is strong among women that they should accept all the responsibilities of citizenship, among them jury service, they will see to it that temporary arrangements are made for their comfort with a looking-forward to making of the county buildings all they should be for the new citizenry that must occupy them.

Early in the life of the late suffrage endeavor in the State one of the principal things advocated by the State organization was the cleaning up of county courthouses and making them habitable for women. These new courthouses were built every effort was made to see that they were supplied with everything needed for women's comfort; restrooms were established, library tables were supplied and such reading matter was placed as women as would appeal to women. No longer did the tired farm woman have to wait in the dry goods store or grocery, as in former years, until the husband was ready to let himself homeward.

SITUATION IN HOWARD COUNTY.

The jury commissioners of Howard County, William Miller of Clay Township and Mrs. Jennie McCune of Center Township, who have been in the hands of women jurors are reluctant in selecting women for this service on account of inadequate facilities for their comfort in the Howard County courthouses. Since women were not drawn for jury service last year on account of a lack of these facilities they are determined to get busy and make arrangements so that they will not be shamed another year for the same reason.

A similar condition prevails in Allen County but announcement has been made that the jury room to be made in the new courthouse. This decision came in response to a request from the League of Women Voters that such provision be made. It will be the first time in the history of Allen County that women will serve as jurors in the county courts.

COMMONS WOMEN FOR ASSIMILATION.

The Port Wayne News-Sentinel, in an editorial, commends the women for assuming all the obligations of citizenship. Jury service, the newspaper editorial says, is both a right and a duty which the newly enfranchised voters should take their part in discharging.

"In seeing to it that they do so, the League of Women Voters is carrying out its wholehearted policy that marked its efforts to secure the ballot in the first place. Then, not content with the mere possession of the right to vote, the members of the league carried on a praiseworthy campaign of education among their newly-enfranchised sisters, teaching them not only to use the ballot, but how to use it."

While women are not anxious to gain public attention by asking that they be selected as jurors, it is their desire that they be given the full duties of citizenship and the right to help administer the laws, which they believe oftentimes is misplaced.

The calling of women to this service may, while yet new calls forth many unfavorable comments from both men and women who are not yet converted to woman's participation in governmental affairs. That the women will prove their ability and worth in such service cannot be doubted, and those who have followed their efforts along many lines.

Y. W. C. A. Notes

Miss Florence Jay, girl reserve director of grade school clubs, talked to the Mothers' Club at 7 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. A girl reserve club will be started in that school next week.

The Indianapolis Globe Company Club held its regular club meeting on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The booster committee was in charge of the entertainment following the meeting.

The Cones Booster Club met for supper and regular business on Friday night. The Lilly Club will hold its regular club meeting on next Friday.

The council of the Federation of Industrial Clubs will meet Monday evening at 7 o'clock.

Miss Mae Louise Ship will give a discussion of the disarmament conference in the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. The subjects which will receive special attention are the quarrel between France and Great Britain, the submarine question and the four-power treaty. An opportunity will be given for members of the audience to ask questions. This talk is open to the public and both men and women are invited.

The religious education council will hold its monthly meeting at 7 o'clock Friday evening. This council is made up of representatives of all departments of the Y. W. C. A. and through them plans are made for the carrying of the religious program of music and readings. This program of the association to all of its girls and women. During the fall 473 girls and women have been enrolled in Bible classes planned by this council.

The winter term classes of the general education department of the Y. W. C. A. will open next week. Schedule giving the time of meeting of all the classes and the names of the instructors will be mailed on application to the educational director.

The business women's Bible class will open a new course of study Tuesday, Jan. 17. The Rev. William O. Trumbull, pastor of the First Friends Church, will give an eight weeks' study of the sermon on the mount.

Mrs. C. J. Buchanan's classes will have as their subject next week "Her Father."

The Y. W. C. A. will have a program at John Herron Art Institute Friday night, Jan. 20. There will be a supper at 6:30, followed by an informal program of music and readings. There will be a gallery tour and the most interesting pictures in this month's exhibition will be discussed.

Girls of the Federation of Industrial Clubs will be hostesses at the open house Sunday afternoon. The first part of the program will consist of singing and a talk by Miss Pearl Forsyth. Tea then will be served and there will be an informal program of music and readings. Every girl in the city is welcome to these informal open house programs in the Y. W. C. A. lounge on Sunday afternoons from 4 to 6 o'clock.

The students' council met Friday night. After supper in the cafeteria a business meeting was held and plans were made for a party to be held on Saturday night, Jan. 14.

INTERESTING WOMEN TO MAKE HOMES HERE

MRS. A. E. WOODRUFF.

Among interesting women who recently have become residents of the city are: Mrs. Matthew F. Smith, wife of the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, who was recently installed; Mrs. Robert J. Alek, whose husband is the new president of Butler College; and Mrs. Albert E. Woodruff, who was married in the Christmas holidays to Professor Woodruff of the physics department of Butler College. Dr. and Mrs. Smith, who are living at 2088 North New Jersey street, came to Indianapolis from Beaver Falls, Pa., where Dr. Smith was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

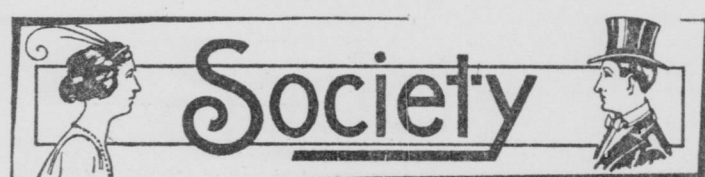

Dr. and Mrs. Alek are former residents of Indiana. Dr. Alek having been head of the mathematics department at is taking an active interest in the clubs of the city. She also is renewing her acquaintance with friends in Indianapolis. Mrs. Albert E. Woodruff, whose marriage to Professor Woodruff was solemnized Dec. 27 at Mt. Carmel inn, formerly was Miss Benah Harvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Harvey of Mt. Carmel. The bride is a graduate of the University of Illinois and studied two years at the University of Chicago, where she received the degree of Bachelor of Science. She recently has been a critic teacher in the Iowa State Teachers' College.

MRS. ROBERT J. ALEK.

Tadina University. Dr. Alek came to Butler after having been connected with the University of Maine at Bangor, Maine. The Aleks are living temporarily at 642 University avenue and Mrs. Alek

MRS. M. F. SMITH.

The Irvington Fortnightly Club had a delightful party yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles J. Oriskany, 71 North Irvington avenue. Mrs. August J. assisted the hostess at the 12 o'clock luncheon which was served to thirty-one guests. The tables were lighted with candles and decorated in the club colors—lavender and gold. Miss Elizabeth L. Cowan, State chairman of the thrift committee of the State Federation of Clubs, gave a group of interesting items about thrift in the home. An interesting incident was the fact that Mrs. M. Richardson, who read a paper on Hawthorn twenty-five years ago at the club, again was called on to read a paper on Hawthorn at the meeting. Mrs. C. H. Winters gave a review of the book "The Scarlet Letter" and Mrs. F. L. Potter accompanied by Miss Martha Cunningham gave several musical selections.

Mrs. E. J. Hoyt will entertain the members of the Debonnette Club with a party this evening in honor of the birthday of her daughter, Ruth Hoyt. The guests will include Betty Bonnette, Christine Connell, Laveta Fisher, Ruth Fisher, Mabel Griswold, Alma Hall, Lucile McCarty, Lella Roberts, Alice Runday, Margaret Rudebeck, Mary White, Evelyn Wilcox and Merle Wilding.

The Indianapolis Alumna Club of Pi Beta Phi will entertain with a luncheon at 1 o'clock next Saturday afternoon at the Woman's Department Club, 1702 North Madison street. The hostess will be the members will be the guests of honor, and the hostesses will be Miss Anna Hedges, Miss Ruth Sharp, Mrs. Justus W. Paul, Mrs. Paul Denny and Mrs. Ella B. Hild. The hostesses will be assisted by alumna of Indiana Alpha Chapter of Franklin. There will be discussions of the settlement school.

Mrs. Henry F. Kruger, 1303 South Meridian street, entertained with a 12 o'clock luncheon yesterday. The guests were Mrs. S. C. Stinson, Mrs. Anna Bowles Wiley and Miss Dorothy Mearns. The hostesses will be assisted by Miss Anna Hedges, Miss Ruth Sharp, Mrs. Justus W. Paul, Mrs. Paul Denny and Mrs. Ella B. Hild. The hostesses will be assisted by alumna of Indiana Alpha Chapter of Franklin. There will be discussions of the settlement school.

The executive committee of the Marion County chapter of American War Mothers will meet at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Odd Fellow Building. The regular meeting of the society will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the Odd Fellow Building.

The Debonnette Club will meet Monday evening at the home of Miss Lella Roberts, 426 West Twenty-sixth street.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Palmer, 4922 Washington boulevard, have gone to Miami, Fla., for the winter and are at home at 147 East First court. Among other Indianapolis people who recently have come to Miami are Mrs. Mabel Condy of Lyons, Kan., and Mrs. Florence Byrd of Clayton, Ind.

The Cercle Francs will meet Tuesday evening at Mrs. Wagon's apartment. Mrs. Jeanne Badine will give an illustrated talk on Versailles and Charles C. Martin will talk on Victor Hugo.

Women of the Gating Club will hold its regular meeting at the club-house Monday evening.

Mrs. Samuel Ashby, 1924 North Delaware street, was hostess for the meeting of the Kappa Alpha Theta Alumnae Club today. Miss Jean Brown was chairman of the committee on arrangements. A talk was made by Miss Brown on recollections of her trip abroad this summer, and informal musical numbers were given by various members.

Mrs. John C. Ruckelshaus and Mrs. A. E. Bradshaw, will entertain the Jessie Brown Travel Club at the home of Mrs. Ruckelshaus, 2835 North Meridian street, on Wednesday, Jan. 11, with a 1 o'clock luncheon, to be followed by a travel talk by Mrs. Demarcus C. Brown.

A musicale-tea is to be given Tuesday afternoon at the Hoosier Athletic Club by the club women with Mrs. Sam Hoffmann and Mrs. Mary Wagon acting as hostesses. A Scotch program is to be featured, with highland dances by Miss Hortense St. Lorenz. Scotch songs by Mrs. Glen Fifelewood, accompanied by Mrs. S. K. Raick, and a talk by Asa Smith.

On the evening of Jan. 12, the club will entertain with an old-fashioned dance when old time music will be played and the waits and two step revived.

The January social meeting of the Service Star Legion, Hamilton Berry Chapter will be held Tuesday afternoon in the parlors of the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. E. J. Robinson, president, has called a special meeting, officers and chairman of standing committees for 1:30 o'clock. The general meeting will open at 2:30 o'clock.

Alpha Chapter of Tri Psi entertained girls of the Delta Delta Delta Sorority with a tea this afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. L. Evans, 355 West Thirtieth

THRIFT LEADERS TO OUTLINE WORK FOR CLUB WOMEN

Meeting Arranged for Chairmen of Committees Who Will Plan Program.

Elizabeth L. Cowan, State chairman of the thrift committee of the Indiana Federation of Women's Clubs, and head of the house of economics bureau of the Fletcher Savings and Trust Company, today invited the chairmen of all thrift committees in the Local Council of Women to meet with her at 10 o'clock next Tuesday morning in the directors room of the trust company to formulate a program of thrift for the clubwomen of Indiana during the coming year.

More than 100 Indianapolis women are expected to attend the meeting. With Miss Cowan and her committee will be the general committee on thrift of the local council. Mrs. Frank McCallin is chairman of this committee and other members are Mrs. C. J. Oriskany, Mrs. J. H. Brill, Mrs. Arthur Willis and Miss Viola Pence. Thrift chairmen representing the separate units of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the Ladies Aid Societies of various churches, women's clubs and other civic organizations of women are to attend the meeting.

In addition to the regularly appointed chairmen, Miss Cowan said her committee members hoped all clubwomen of Indianapolis, who have done work along home economics or thrift lines will attend the meeting.

Club Index

Fortnightly Music Club—Tuesday, Jan. 10. Hostess, Mrs. Clinton Lasher. 2941 North Alabama street. Mrs. Clyde E. Titus will read a paper on "Maganam and LaForge."

Friday Afternoon Reading Club—Friday, Jan. 12. Hostess, Mrs. George W. Budd, 3235 Kenwood avenue. Mrs. Augusta Stratford will speak on "Women's Work to Uphold Humanity."

Independent Social Club—Tuesday, Jan. 10. Hostess, Mrs. William Manger, 1330 Brookside avenue. "The Mother's Work" by Coudage; "Care and Feeding of Children," by Ramsey; and "Feeding the Family," by Rose, are the five books named on the card as suggestions.

Myrtle Club—Thursday, Jan. 12. Hostess, Mrs. John Bremer, 1111 East Market street. Mrs. N. H. Long will speak on "In Memory Hall."

The Monday Club—Monday, Jan. 8. Mrs. W. M. Welch will speak on "Arts and Crafts in America" and Mrs. H. M. Adkinson on "Music."

Over the Tea Cups Club—Friday, Jan. 13. Hostess, Miss Sarah Millard, 1730 North Pennsylvania street. Mrs. S. E. Perkins and Mrs. Herbert Wood will speak "Current Events."

Thursday Lyceum Club—Thursday, Jan. 12. Hostess, Mrs. T. H. King, 2115 Broadway. Mrs. L. J. Orr will talk on "Across Lake Titicaca to La Paz." Zetetha—Wednesday, Jan. 11—Hostess, Mrs. H. J. Snelson, 651 East Thirtieth street. Mrs. A. C. Caldwell and Mrs. F. Lunley will speak.

BRIDE-ELECT AND RECENT BRIDES

MRS. CARL W. EDWARDS.

Among local brides-elect is Miss Helen Elizabeth Peters, 4802 East Washington street, whose marriage to Russell M. Derringer is to be solemnized Tuesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. This evening Mrs. Gilbert L. Niesse is entertaining with a shower for Miss Peters.

Two recent brides are Mrs. Carl W. Edwards and Mrs. Earl Brunson King.

MISS HELEN ELIZABETH PETERS.

Gaunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Gaunt, 3942 Graceland avenue. Mrs. Edwards' marriage came as a surprise to her many friends. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stonehouse, 707 North Tibbs avenue, and her marriage to Mr. Edwards was quietly solemnized in Lebanon Wednesday. All three of the young women will make their homes in Indianapolis.

DEVILS UNLEASHED

By EDWIN G. WOOD

A Story of Tropical Seas That Will Hold You From Beginning to End

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Richard Hunter and a girl named Faith, respectable passengers bound for Australia, board the schooner, Bald Eagle, suddenly find themselves at the mercy of the crew, which broke into mutiny, while crazed with drink. Headed by a brute named Janson, the mutinous men had thrown Captain White overboard and assumed charge of the vessel. Richard Hunter had been entranced by Captain White with the knowledge of a large sum of money concealed on board ship, which was to be delivered to a relative, and it was this loot which Jansen and his crew were after.

Hunter persistently refused to reveal the hiding place of the money, but he had promised the captain to deliver the gold to the rightful owner in case anything happened. The fight of Hunter and Faith to save themselves and the money is the gist of previous chapters. They succeeded in escaping from the Bald Eagle and landed on a nearby island with the gold. The pirates, aroused from their dream of money, were looking for the refugees. Another battle is imminent. You can now go on with the story.

Chapter IV—Con.

"The miserable cowards!" grunted Hunter. "Why didn't they try to fight that?" His answer came in a spurt of flame, a muffled roar, and flying wreckage about the schooner. When they could see the unfortunate Bald Eagle again, she lay with a heavy list and was settling fast.

They watched her, fascinated, as she rose and fell on the swell, quivering, gradually and surely going down to her last resting place. She gave a sudden lurch, her stern rising in the air, and the plumed dove flew first. All that remained in sight was part of her mainmast, which, by some freak of the explosion, was left standing, and now rose above the water, marking, like a tombstone, where she lay.

Faith sighed and her eyes were moist. "It's like," she faltered—"it's just like watching a death."

But Hunter paid no attention to the girl's remark. His eyes were glued on the boat, which was now pulling steadily in toward the inlet.

"When they were within hailing distance," Hunter called, "Herto, the boat!" The heard Janson give an order to come rowing. Then: "Aho, there, Mr. Hunter!"

"What do you want?" Hunter's voice snapped. "We want to come ashore and have a talk with you."

"You'll have no talk with me, and you'll come ashore here. Go on farther down—the island's big enough—but keep away from here."

"Now, looky here," whined Jansen, "don't ain't no way to treat a shipmate, and one who's been a friend to ye—that's not it, is it? We want to git water, too."

There seems to be plenty of water on the island. You'll get plenty of water if you're not careful."

"Now, Mr. Hunter, you sort of a lot of that to do? You want an' stole a lot of stores an' robbed men's money of the gold. That's mutiny an' piracy, Mr. Hunter, that's what it is."

Hunter laughed. "Murdering the captain and first mate, wasn't mutiny, I suppose."

Jansen began his old wheedling and pleading offering all kinds of inducements to Hunter if he'd give up the gold, and reminding Hunter that his life had been saved by Jansen, the boat in the distance was nearer.

To these monthlings Hunter made no reply, but there came a sudden spurt of flame, the sharp "bang" of his rifle, and the cracking and dying of bullets from the boat's tiller, within a few inches of Jansen's big red hand.

"That's a warning," yelled Hunter. "If I see you next time, I'll be you next time."

Heading this gentle reminder to keep off, Jansen yelled an order to his men to "give way," and the boat veered toward the opposite shore of the inlet.

"No you don't," shouted Hunter after them. "Get back to sea and hunt another landing. Quick now, before I bore a hole in your rotten carcass!"

A chorus of wild and foul oaths followed this command, for they recognized it as such and not a threat, and they had to obey, for they were exposed and Hunter was not.

The boat veered again and headed out, Jansen calling back: "I'll git ye, ye 6—n' lubberly swab—acheidin' men's mates out of their dues—I'll git ye!"

"Go to it!" Hunter jeered. "I've fought long enough to know how to handle such swine as you."

Faith moaned. "Oh, why don't they go away and let us alone. They're strong men, and they've got a mast and sail lying in that boat. Why don't they go out to sea and hunt for a ship to pick them up?"

"Not as long as they smell gold," Hunter answered tersely.

Chapter V.

That afternoon Faith proceeded to alter the hunting breeches Dick gave her, so that they would at least stay on without her being entirely lost in them. This she accomplished by cutting off the bottoms of the legs and taking up the waist. The result was a very baggy pair of trousers, but it was much better than having her scanty wardrobe in tatters when they should be fortunate enough to leave the island—if that ever happened.

Attired in the made-over trousers and a woolen shirt, also commandeered from Hunter, with a belt around her waist and the head of bars and head of bars, she looked pretty much like a boy wearing ill-fitting clothes.

But Hunter decided with one of those swift changes of light in his eyes, that nothing she could wear could in any way concealing the sweet femininity of her. She appeared to him, though, smaller, more fragile; a tiny bit of humanity that needed protection, care and consideration.

Then he grew disquieted at the aspect of himself that she should appeal to him. At such times he was inclined to be anything but agreeable, verging on the surly.

But if Faith was aware of his moods she gave no outward sign. He was a little head of bars and head of bars better than he could have imagined.

The fact that the mutineers must be loose on the islands somewhere, deterred Hunter from making any excursions about the woods. He feared to leave Faith alone, and it would not do to leave their camp, for what they had in the way of food would be in danger, even though Jansen and his men might have had time to provision themselves before leaving the vessel.

That they were provisioned there could be little doubt, for as Hunter pointed out to Faith when she expressed sympathy for the probable destitute condition of the men, no sailor would abandon a ship without food and water if possible to avoid it, and he thought they had time enough to simply themselves.

Faith showed an uneasiness in regard to Hunter's safety and several times ventured to caution him. "You may say they want you alive so as to find the gold. But what is to prevent some of them shooting you from ambush in the hope of taking me and making me tell where it is?"

He reassured her by telling her that he knew conditions were changed and promising to be very careful. He was more worried on that score than on his own account. For his own safety, he was not concerned so much, but when he thought of the possibility of her falling into their hands he shuddered.

The first night they spent on the island Faith remarked that she wished she knew the name of their refuge.

"Oh," he said carelessly, drawing at his pipe, "call it Any Island and spell it with capitals."

"That's fine!" she exclaimed, pleased as a child. "Only, I spell it as one word and call it 'Anyisland.'"

"All right," he assented: "anything you like. I am afraid, though, I made one very serious mistake."

She looked at him inquiringly. "I think I should have shot every one of those pirates when I had them at my mercy, and had done with it. As it is, they will be a constant menace—six against one."

"That's the way to do it," said Hunter. "I've had one or two of them done for the two I bit."

"That," she said slowly, picking up a fallen leaf and plucking it to pieces bit by bit—"that, it seems to me, would have been cruel."

"Maybe, but necessary. All life is cruel, isn't it? The fundamental law of life is cruelty itself—the law of the survival of the fittest—not the law, but the strongest, the most wily, or crafty, the most brutal. In other words, the weak must go to the wall before the strong, justly or unjustly."

She shook her head. "It is just as you look at it. Something has made you morbid, hasn't it?"

(To Be Continued.)

PUSS IN BOOTS JR.

By David Coss

"There was a fat man of Bombay, Who was smoking one sunshade day; When a bird called a snipe Flew away with his pipe, Which vexed the fat man of Bombay."

"It's too bad, my good man," said Puss Junior, gazing down at the angry fat man of Bombay. "If I could catch the snipe I'd make him give you back your pipe."

"Don't you smoke?" asked the man. "No," said Puss, "but why do you ask?"

"I was only thinking," said the man, "that if you ever did catch that rascally snipe, and you didn't know where I was, you could keep the pipe."

"Well, that is very generous of you," said Tom Thumb, hardly able to restrain a smile. The Good Gray Horse, on whose back sat our two small heroes, said nothing. Neither did the pig without a wig, but they both did a lot of thinking. The little Robin was the next to speak.

"I don't believe that snipe came for smoking. I think it's only because his name rhymed with pipe that he took it."

"Do you really?" said the Bombay

Women Who Are Doing Big Things in Washington

MRS. HARRIET UPTON.

Mrs. Harriet Upton, chairman of the Woman's Republican National Committee, one of several women holding responsible positions in political life.

man, somewhat relieved. "Perhaps he was only playing a joke."

"Maybe it will make him sick," said the pig, taking off his hat and scratching his head.

"My goodness!" exclaimed the Bombay man, "but you're bald."

The pig quickly put on his hat. "Don't speak about it," said Puss Junior in a whisper, "he is very sensitive."

"If you ever come to India," said the fat man from Bombay, "you must come to see me. By that time I shall have a new pipe." And just then the Robin who had flown off, returned. "I have found your pipe," he twittered, "I tried to lift it, but it was too heavy. Come with me and I will show you where it is."

The fat man from Bombay jumped up. "Don't fly so fast, he cried. 'I can't run like a deer nor fly like a bird.' And wasn't he delighted to find his pipe? Well, I just guess he was. And, although he was all out of breath from running, he at once lighted it and commenced to puff away. He couldn't help puffing away, so I suppose he thought he might as well puff on his pipe."

"Farewell, my friend," cried Puss Junior, "now that you have your pipe, my comrades and I will continue on our way." And next time you shall hear what happened after that—Copyright, 1922.

(To Be Continued.)

Marion County W. C. T. U. Notes

Merritt W. C. T. U. will meet at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Clara Thompson, 336 West Vermont street. The public is invited.

Palmer union will meet at the Americanization Center, 225 Bright street. Friday afternoon, C. C. Coffey will have charge of the program.

Mrs. Susan Herndon, 1134 West Thirty-first street, will hostess for Mary Balch union Tuesday. Miss Byrd Pruden will talk on "Americanization."

Sarah A. Swain union will meet with Mrs. M. J. Footes, 1450 Lexington avenue, at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Ellen Davis will have charge of devotions and Mrs. S. R. Artman will talk on "National Prohibition Day."

Mrs. Edith Stout, county superintendent, will discuss the work of her department.

Tuesday W. C. T. U. will hold its all-day institute at Tuxedo M. E. Church next Friday, opening at 10 a. m. The Rev. C. C. Donnell will talk on "War on Cigarettes." A good program has been arranged and members are requested to bring box lunches.

Francis Willard W. C. T. U. will meet at the home of Mrs. Amelia Lambert, 2225 North Capitol avenue, at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Isaac Daniels will lead devotions. The Rev. Horace Sprague of Hall Place Church, and the Rev. George Smith of Roberts Park Church will give addresses. Mrs. Eunice Martin will play the harp and give a group of sacred songs.

Mrs. A. D. Moninger, 6690 Ashland avenue, will entertain the Broad Ripple W. C. T. U. at 2 o'clock Wednesday evening. Mrs. Isaac Daniels will talk on "Anti-Narcotics" and Mrs. Lura Kemmler, superintendent of child welfare, will present a temperance instruction. Miss Margaret Kent will give a reading. Plans will be made for an all-day local institute.

Roll out some puff pastry, thin like a pie plate, sprinkle with flour; lay on another crust and bake until brown. When ready to serve open the crusts and add other good stuffs as you like. Sprinkle with white sugar and lemon juice. Lay on the upper crust and sprinkle powdered sugar on top.

CREAMED APPLE SAUCE PIE. Roll out some puff pastry, thin like a pie plate, sprinkle with flour; lay on another crust and bake until brown. When ready to serve open the crusts and add other good stuffs as you like. Sprinkle with white sugar and lemon juice. Lay on the