FEATHERS USED IN MANY WAYS

Expert Says No Substitute
Exists for Them.

Few persons realize the wide extent to which feathers are used, according to E. F. Burke, feather designer and expert, 410 Massachusetts avenue. The light, fluffy but durable little things are used in hundreds of ways, both for decorative effects and general usage, Mr. Burke said.

"The longer I am in business, the more I am convinced that feathers are to be found among the most useful materials in the world," Mr. Burke said.

"They are found on women's hats, on fans, in mattresses, and for use in pillows no respectable substitute ever has been found for them.

"Also a common fallacy among many persons is that feathers are used for so long time they wear out. As a matter of fact they never wear out if ordinary care is taken of them. However, it is always advisable to have them renovated and freshened up from time to time and any one who has any household article containing feathers is very foolish to burn them or throw them away, for under modern conditions a plant such as ours, can renovate them and restore them to all their old time cleanliness and put them in the very best sanitary condition.

"It seems to me that people are learning this way of less slowly, but just as sure as an old rest we are being called up every day to renovate feathers that have been in steady use in homes for many long years."
