Davilla Tells House Reily Is Unfit for Office.

MAKES CHARGES Declares Incumbent Abuses Official Power.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The congressional investigation looking to the removal of E. Mont Reily from the office of Governor of Porto Rico, was demanded in the House today by Felix Cordova Davilla, the Porto Rican resident commissioner.

"I protest against and ask relief from the acts of an unprincipled, un-American and altogether unfit administrator," Davilla declared. "His off-putting power and his systematic insults to a friendly people have finally made this man, Governor E. Mont Reily, intolerable to the people of the island."

Instead of devoting his time to the administration of the affairs of the country, he has indulged in a policy of partisanship and, for the first time during the history of the American Administration, the office of the Governor has been converted into a political club, says Davilla.

"The office is now the headquarters of small and cheap politicians who have grasped the opportunity and obtained from the Governor the support denied them by the people at the general elections."

"I believe President Harding made a mistake in the appointment of Governor Reily, but I know he was imposed upon and therefore he should be kept from office with the least malice towards the people of Porto Rico. We have exhausted all our means to obtain the removal of the Governor by the Administration. Governor Reily has returned to Porto Rico with the support of the President."

CONGRESS WILL FAVOR CANAL

"Sentiment is almost universally in favor of the project," he told his colleagues today after leaving Washington following his debate on the project with Governor Nathan L. Miller, New York, before the National Rivers and Harbors Congress.

REFORMATORY SITE MAY GO TO PENDLETON

Work of Commission Is Now Almost Ended.

TO COST $175,100 Location Comprises 1,030 Acres Near 'Big 4' Tracks.

The selection of Pendleton as the site for the Indiana reformatory, which is to be removed from Jeffersonville, appeared certain this afternoon as the removal commission went into session with Governor Warren T. McCray for the purpose of making its final decision.

A special committee appointed at a recent meeting of the removal commission to score all the sites still in the running, made its report to the removal commission at the opening of the session. Each site was considered on the basis of availability, transportation and various other qualities, each quality being given a percentage in proportion to its importance.

Members of this special committee were Dr. S. E. Smith, superintendent of the Eastern Indiana Hospital for the Insane, Richmond; Charles A. McGonagle, superintendent of the Indiana Boys School, Plainfield; G. A. H. Shideler, superintendent of the reformatory, and Amos W. Butler, secretary of the board of State charities.

Besides the Pendleton site, other proposed sites which ranked high in the scoring were those at Carmel, Clayton, Mooresville, Acton and Rosedale.

The Pendleton site is in Madison County about two miles south of Pendleton and about twenty-five miles north-east of Indianapolis. The site consists of 1,030 acres which the State will obtain for $170 an acre, a reduction of $10 an acre from the original price. This makes the total cost of the site $175,100.

The land comprising the site for the institution belongs to various owners. It adjoins a tract known as Idlewild park. The park was owned by the State, but was sold originally, but was eliminated because of the price. All of the site lies west of the park and is on both the Union traction interurban line and the Big Four railroad. On the site is a large gravel pit and a stone quarry. The stone, according to persons who have been advocating the site, can be used in the manufacture of cement.

The removal commission has been many weeks selecting the location for the reformatory and visited each site under consideration many times. The commission was appointed following the special session of the Legislature last December in which provision was made for the removal of the institution following the election of the State to carry out the provisions of the original removal act.

MRS. HARTMAN IN DEFENSE OF HER HUSBAND

Frank Francis, confessing burglar, the star witness of the State, particularly in regard to the purchase of furniture by Hartman from Francis, the alleged carter of the stolen car, and the fact that Hartman and Francis and his wife went to the Louisville derby last April, and the stolen seashell doorman, which Hartman is specifically charged with receiving.

Mrs. Hartman said that she now is 21, and that she first met Francis, or Moore, as she always knew him, the night of Feb. 1, 1920, when he came to the Hartman home at 305 North Mount street, to get her husband to act as his attorney.

The first time she met Mrs. Francis, she was the day after Mrs. Francis' arrest.

Mrs. Hartman then told of buying furniture from Francis on Feb. 24. This furniture had previously been brought from the Francis home at 2500 North Delaware street and was stored in the basement of the Hartman home. The grocer part of this was stolen. It later developed, some of it from the home of Dr. Edwin H. Katterhenry. The witness testified Francis said he was going to the Louisville derby and get rid of the furniture and her husband paid Francis $100 for it. The bill of sale, which Mrs. Hartman said she herself wrote out at the time, was presented in court. She said she had brought any additional furniture to the house after this time. This directly contradicted evidence given by Francis he had taken furniture to the Hartman home on Feb. 24.

The witness admitted that she had worn the fur cape or coat, which Hartman is charged with receiving, but she said she had done this at the direct request of Mrs. Francis. This cape, she said had come to the house with the Francis furniture and Mrs. Francis had requested her to wear it in order to keep the matter out. She said she had not the slightest idea that the cape had been stolen.

STORE COAT IN OWN NAME. Mrs. Francis' request.

This coat she later put in storage in her own name at the request of Mrs. Francis.

The next told of the trip to Dayton, Ohio, April 19. Francis, she said, came to her husband and said that he had been arrested in Dayton for carrying concealed weapons and wanted Hartman to go to Dayton to defend him. The trip was made in a stolen Buick, driven by Eck Ketter, who was known to Mrs. Hartman as Barnes. She said she had no idea the car was stolen when she made the trip.

Mrs. Hartman denied absolutely the story told on the witness stand by Francis that he had driven the car in which Hartman rode on the night of the big bank parade to Fountain Square a few days the primary.

SAYS FRANCIS AND WIFE KEPT IN HOME 2 NIGHTS. In favor of testimony given by Francis that he and his wife had frequently stayed at the Hartman home the witness said they remained over night only on two occasions. That was one night when Francis had driven Hartman to several police stations. On getting back from the last midnight, Mrs. Francis said she had an invitation to stay the night.

Mercy Sakes Alive! ex-Senator Kenyon Pans ex-Colleagues

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Some conservative political leaders here are disturbed by the fear Judge William S. Kenyon may become a second Landis.

The fear was quickened by Kenyon's speech before the college students at Columbia, Mo., on the eve of his induction as a judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Some fear Judge Kenyon intends to keep on talking about Social Newberry, what the trouble is with Congress and the need for more progressive legislation and Legislators.

Mrs. Francis was no better the next day she and her husband also remained the next night.

Eph Inman and Ira Holmes, attorneys for Hartman, said that Mrs. Hartman probably would be kept in the greater part of the afternoon on direct examination, and it is believed she will be given a long and grilling cross-examination by Monday or possibly Saturday.

HARTMAN TAKES WITNESS STAND. Hartman himself probably will take the stand in his own behalf tomorrow. The defense expects to conclude its testimony by Monday or possibly Saturday. If this is done the case will reach the jury by the middle of next week.

The session today as a whole was favorable to the defense. A great amount of evidence on the part of the defense, a splendid witness for the defense, and proved more than a match for Prosecutor Evans, who conducted the case.

The defense laid great stress on evidence given by James L. Hartman, father of the defendant. He is a carpenter and testified that he had helped Francis, who said she paid $100 for this coat and then received her money back when it turned out to be stolen.

"TRUTH AND VERACITY" TESTIMONY BARRED. As the opening of the session Judge Bain ruled the defense cannot offer evidence of the good reputation of Hartman for truth and veracity until his truth and veracity has been impeached by the State. This barred out a great amount of evidence on the part of the defense expected to introduce. However it will be used later if the State attempts to impeach Hartman's testimony when he takes the stand.

The defense laid great stress on evidence given by James L. Hartman, father of the defendant. He is a carpenter and testified that he had helped Francis, who said she paid $100 for this coat and then received her money back when it turned out to be stolen.

The trial yesterday was without any special features and followed the usual routine. In fact at times it was inclined to drag. The defense continued its efforts to break down the evidence given by Francis, the confessor, particularly that part in which he had testified that he drove the automobile in which Hartman was riding primary day and the night of the car theft.
