

N. Y. SOLOMONS DISAGREE ON WEDDED BLISS

One Favors Stringent Divorce Laws—Other Urges More Laxity.

AND SO IT GOES

NEW YORK, March 3.—Dramatically opposite views as to the best way of remedying or solving the "problem of the age"—marriage—are held by two modern Solomon of the New York bench. Judge Alfred J. Tully, of the court of general sessions, holds more stringent marriage laws will result in fewer divorces. Senior Justice Leopold Prince, of the eighth district municipal court, in answer to Judge Tully's holding that stricter marriage laws would result in a deluge of divorces, and that easier divorce laws would result in a far happier condition of life and living.

"This taxation without representation make for a prohibition that prohibited," asked Justice Prince.

"MAKE MAN JUMP OVER IT."

"Barriers of any kind only want to make man jump over them," he explained. "Make marriage laws stricter and you will have a similar effect to that produced by prohibition. Every one knows that there have been more big bottles and more drinking, even among young people than ever before."

"People want to be free to do as they choose. Legislative restraint imposed upon them that deprives them of their rights makes them want all the more to do anything they are told that they cannot."

"Before a man and a woman are married both wear their best clothes," he said. "Both are on their best behavior. Neither shows a sign of her real self to the other. They are both so good that the other may turn out to be like after married life. And just as they themselves cannot force, neither can any law. For that reason, therefore, I cannot see how stricter marriage laws would accomplish anything."

"LAUGHS AT LOCKSMITH."

"Love laughs at locksmiths," and it certainly will laugh at laws. If a couple have made up their minds to be married they will accomplish their marriage somehow."

"There always have been runaway marriages, and there always will be. Often they turn out to be happier marriages than those that the two have kept company for years before marrying. What I advocate, then, is not stricter marriage laws, but easier divorce laws. In the beginning of civilization, in the days of Moses, a man could divorce his wife on the grounds of incompatibility. In those days, of course, a woman was a mere chattel. Today, when woman is the equal of man, the law should be changed so that both ways. Either a man or a woman should be allowed to divorce the other on the grounds of incompatibility."

"DIVORCE LAWS ARE GOOD."

"I am convinced the divorce laws in Nevada are good laws. There, after six months' residence, a divorce can be obtained on the grounds of desertion or non-support or incompatibility."

"Unfortunately, the divorce laws in some states are not so good. The poor suffer here, just as they suffer with prohibition. The rich man has his teller stocked, but the poor man cannot buy even a couple of glasses of beer at a week."

"The rich can go to Reno and stay at an expensive hotel for six months, but no poor person can afford to go there to obtain a divorce."

"I am in favor of a uniform divorce law that will bring about divorce on the simple grounds of incompatibility, if for no other reason than for the sake of the children. How can any children grow up to live useful, happy lives when their parents are continually fighting at home?"

Pastor Tells Stand of Jesus on Labor

CALUMBUS, Ohio, March 3.—If Jesus visited this earth this year He would emphasize the world unity started at the Annamark Limitation Conference which met at Washington, would try to inspire love of honest toil and seek reform in large city governments, according to the Rev. Dr. Daniel F. Rittenhouse, pastor of First Baptist Church here.

"He would tell the capitalist he cannot gain permanent wealth by refusing fair wages and just working conditions any more than the workers can gain the most desirable returns by endless demands for shorter hours and more pay," continued the Rev. Dr. Rittenhouse.

"He would urge a more drastic limitation of armaments, particularly with reference to submarines and poison gas, and He surely would attempt to check the prevailing craze for wasteful pleasures, draining energies of brains and bodies of millions of Americans every day."

3 Burn to Death in Vulcanizing Plant

WAUPUN, Wis., March 3.—Three women employees were burned to death here last night when the vulcanizing plant of the C. H. Stiller Company, of this city was destroyed by fire with an estimated loss of $30,000.

ESC. PE. THE FLU KEEP GERMS FROM NOSE AND THROAT

Guard yourself and others against influenza. Avoid crowds. Sleep with your bedroom window open. At the first sign of a cold, fever, sore throat or that grip feeling, consult your doctor.

But, above all, try to keep your nose and throat protected day and night by an antiseptic cream. Flu germs are literally breathed into your system. An antiseptic cream is used to keep the germs from lodging in your nose and throat.

For this purpose get from your druggist at once a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Insert a little into the nostrils and draw it through all the air passages so it reaches the throat.

Do this as often as may be required to keep nose and throat antiseptic. Do this the last thing at night and the first thing in the morning until the flu epidemic has passed.

Head colds and catarrh yield like magic to this antiseptic, healing cream that soothes swollen, inflamed membranes of nose and throat. Your clogged nostrils open right up and you can breathe freely. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable. Advertisment.

ROCKEFELLER'S GRANDDAUGHTER MAY LIVE HERE

This beautiful estate, called the Villa Prangine, situated on Lake Geneva, Switzerland, and once owned by ex-Emperor Karl of Austria, may be the home of Miss Mathilda McCormick, dancer, if Max Oser, Swiss cavalry officer and riding master, who contemplates buying the estate. Villa Prangine was the exile home of Karl until his recent disastrous coup caused him to accept a change of residence to Madeira.

COX LEADS DEMOCRATS TO CAPITAL

Democratic national chairman; Senator Pittman of Nevada; A. Mitchell Palmer, former attorney general; Raymond T. Baker, director of the mint; Joseph W. Folk, former Governor of Missouri; Representative Francis Garrett of Tennessee, minority leader of the House; Representative Garner of Texas; Daniel C. Roper, former commissioner of internal revenue and prominent Meadco chieftain; Francis P. Garvan, former alien property custodian; Representative Rouse of Kentucky, chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee; Richard Linterm, director of publicity for the Democratic national committee; former Representative C. C. Carlin of Virginia; Timothy T. Ansherry of Washington; Mr. Cox's bosom-friend and local host; Angus T. McLean of the war finance corporation; and Charles E. Morris, Washington representative of the Cox newspapers. Senator Underwood, Democratic leader in the Senate, is understood to have been invited to the dinner, but was prevented from attending. Senator Pomerene of Ohio was a distinguished absentee, though no sinister significance is attached to his nonappearance, for he enjoys Mr. Cox's warm support in his fight for reelection.

OHIO TEACHERS

Two other male coxs in the Cox machine reached Washington in time to participate in the supplementary caucus following the protracted one around Mr. Tammany's festive board. They were George White of Ohio, Democratic national chairman in the ill-fated 1920 campaign and Ed H. Moore, also of Ohio, who was Mr. Cox's floor manager at the joyous, but futile, San Francisco convention.

Thursday noon former Governor Folk of Missouri played host in Mr. Cox's honor.

In conversations with newspapermen before leaving for South Carolina Mr. Cox radiated in fullest bloom the optimism of the spring. "It would be the purest formality," Senator Pomerene's majority would be overwhelming. It is an open secret, even in the Democratic high command, that the prospect of a Pomerene triumph in Ohio this year conjures up disquieting prospects for James M. Cox. If the Senator wins—and his campaign is to be launched and fought out right on the alleged failures and deficiencies of the Harding Administration—his friends declare he will become the logical candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1924. That is a vision that is without sunshine, for Mr. Cox, whose ambitions to try his luck once again, are all but officially proclaimed.

The Democratic leaders have decided to train their heaviest guns on Ohio, with Mr. Cox promising to do his full share on the firing line. To wrest President Harding's own State from Republican domination, the straight-out issue of hostility to his administration is the goal the Democrats have set themselves. They expect to pit Pomerene against Representative Simon D. Fess of Ohio, whom Democratic speakers today in the House ironically charged with opening his own campaign there. Representative Fess delivered an eloquent address to the House on the subject of "one year of Harding." Congressmen Garner of Texas and Thomas of Kentucky, taking the floor after Mr. Fess, failed at the achievements of the Harding Administration declaring "those hardy veterans, General Deficiency and General Incompetence, appeared to be in full command of the Republican situation."

Second only to the ammunition they plan to expend in Ohio Democratic leaders took a broadside attack on Senator Lodge in Massachusetts. Mr. Cox announced he would petition the Democratic National Committee to assign the bulk of his speaking time to the presidential campaign in Massachusetts, in other that he might assail the Republican chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs on international issues. An inkling of the line Mr. Cox and other Democratic congressional battlers will take was supplied by the Ohioan. He was asked how he would phrase the paramount issue against the Democrats in 1922. "The economic consequences of hermitage," was Mr. Cox's rejoinder—a paraphrase of John Maynard Keynes' book of the "Economic Consequences of Peace," and aimed at the Republican distillation to harness the United States to the same chariot to which are now hitched the bankrupt and semi-bankrupt nations of Europe.

Mr. Cox definitely asserts he is not going to yield to the importunities of friends who would like him to run for Congress from his Dayton constituency. The Democrats are talking about nominating as many "as strong" and "outstanding" men for the House this year as can be induced to tempt fate, in order to furnish a bagful of "constructive" leadership that can shine conspicuously in comparison with leadership in the present Republican Congress.

William Gibbs McAdoo's announced removal of his domicile to California bulked large in the confab of the Democratic warriors. Some took Mr. McAdoo's explanation at its face value—that he is migrating to the Pacific Coast for the same reason that attracts thousands of other Americans, viz., climate. Others are persuaded it is the political climate rather than the sunshine of California that is taking Woodrow Wilson's son-in-law away from New York State. Those who hold that view say Mr. McAdoo is painfully aware he never can be New York's favorite son at a Democratic national convention, with Tammany willing otherwise. In California, after growing up a while with the country, McAdoo's envisage no reason in the world why he

15,000 MEXICAN LABORERS WILL GO BACK HOME

Stranded Workers in Colorado to Be Sent Across Border.

DENVER, March 3.—Despite assurances from Governor O. H. Shoup that "everything possible would be done to alleviate their condition," early withdrawal of the 15,000 odd Mexican laborers now in Colorado and their return to the motherland below the Rio Grande is predicted by the Hon. Randolph Quilgano, Mexican consul in Denver, following his investigation of the impoverished condition of thousands of his fellow-countrymen as a result of economic depression.

Senator Quilgano recently appealed to the Mexico City government for financial aid in transporting Mexican laborers in Colorado to their native land, to be repatriated and allowed acreage of their own for cultivation.

Consul Quilgano declared that his investigation, especially in the best centers of the southern and eastern sections of the State, convinced him of the advisability of the Mexican laborers returning to their homeland and declared that they will be welcomed back.

"The condition of Mexicans in Colorado is critical," Consul Quilgano declared. "In many cases they have not been fully paid for their work, owing to lack of funds of the farmers. This is one of the chief reasons why Mexicans are destitute this winter."

"The best field workers are the greatest sufferers, and it is probable that they will be taken back to Mexico soon."

Consul Quilgano intimated that the Mexican government will endeavor to secure permission from the United States Government to run as many trains into this country as will be necessary to accommodate the returning Mexicans.

He also said that Mexico is planning legislation to prevent the emigration of Mexican laborers.

Chicago to Build World's Super Hotel

CHICAGO, March 3.—Architects are preparing plans for the erection here of a new hotel which will be the world's largest hotel. The structure is to be built in Michigan avenue, just south of the Blackstone Hotel, and will contain 3,000 rooms. The building will be twenty-five stories high, occupying a block of frontage, and will cost approximately $15,000,000. It will be built by the Hotel La Salle Company, which now operates the Hotel La Salle, and will be named Hotel Stevens, after James W. Stevens, president of the company.

However, De Valera is quite content to stay in Ireland.

'STEADY RALPH' TO BE WITNESS FOR DEFENSE

Former Husband of Mrs. Obenchain to Help Disprove 'Scorned' Theory.

LOS ANGELES, March 3.—While the jury hearing the evidence against Madeline Kennor Obenchain, pretty Chicago divorcee, on trial for alleged complicity to murder J. Belton Kennedy, enjoyed another holiday, attorneys for State and defense today locked horns in an important legal argument before Judge Reeve. The defense sought to have eliminated all testimony relating to events which did not occur in the presence of the defendant.

Meanwhile it became known that "Steady Ralph" Obenchain, "man in a million" will appear as a star witness in his former wife's behalf next week, and will aid in a strong attack on the prosecution's theory that Mrs. Obenchain was a "woman scorned" who plotted the murder because Kennedy would not marry her.

It is expected that Obenchain will give testimony to show that Kennedy was deeply in love with Mrs. Obenchain and that Mrs. Obenchain, because of the objections of Kennedy's parents, refused Kennedy's persistent efforts of marriage. Obenchain may even tell of how he accepted contesting Mrs. Obenchain's suit for divorce from him because he believed that Kennedy sincerely loved her.

"The woman scorned" theory will be completely disproven in the presentation of Mrs. Obenchain's defense, according to J. D. Knish, her attorney. "With this theory, which provides an alleged motive, eliminated, the case against Mrs. Obenchain will collapse," he said.

GLORIA CARUSO TO BE TRAINED IN AMERICA

Widow of Great Tenor. Gives 'Ideals on Education of Children.'

NEW YORK, March 3.—Childhood is the formative period. In youth we can acquire with ease what would make us overwhelmingly weary in adult years. There are many children eager for learning often kept from the fullest opportunities by circumstances or by indifference or indigent families. In the field of the arts, particularly in music, such deprivation is keenly felt by many boys and girls.

Special emphasis is placed upon childhood as a study period by Mrs. Enrico Caruso, the lovely young widow of that great tenor whose voice brought beauty into so many lives and whose death made a world mourn. Mrs. Caruso, who was married to the late tenor, has settled down in New York in a new home and is interesting herself in plans for a great memorial to her husband. By means of this tribute to the dead, living talent is to be developed and aided by a million-dollar fund.

"Children are like wax," says Mrs. Caruso. "They can be moulded easily. That is the principle upon which the education of the child should be based. Some become teachers, that's the only way to get technique."

"What do I think of the child who runs away from home and music lessons? Well, I believe I read that she was sixteen years old. If she were eighteen and decided that she still hated music, then I should say it would be all right for her to stop lessons."

"You know that children wouldn't go to school if their elders didn't insist upon it, and unless education is thrust upon them they would be very sorry, indeed, later in life."

Mrs. Caruso's views on the education of children are doubly interesting since she has not only her baby daughter, Gloria, to rear, but also the care of Enrico Caruso's son, whose education was left in her hands by the tenor when they brought the boy to America. Enrico is now a student at a military academy.

YAP IS OVERJOYED AT TREATY ACTION

me the other day to ask if he couldn't give a lesson for the present and join the cavalry. I gave my consent. But he can't say to me when he is 24 or 25, 'Why didn't you make my study music?' because he will have had those years of study behind him, and he can appreciate fine music."

Mrs. Caruso was asked why she had decided to return to America and educate her daughter here. At one time there was a rumor that the great tenor's widow would remain permanently in Italy.

"After all, I'm an American," she answered, "and my idea is to educate Gloria here. I like the American schools."

LIVING IN AMERICA

"Here at home I can do what I please and not be criticized. If I wish to entertain my brother and some of his friends and some of mine I may do so. Over in Italy I should be able to get along with out a chaperon if I lived alone, and I intend to live alone."

"Gloria, when she is older, will attend a girls' school, a day school, in New York City, for six months of the year. The other six months we will spend abroad. She will have an Italian governess in Italy and a French one in France."

"The Italian girls are wonderfully reared; they become splendid housewives."

Gloria is going to mean a great deal to other young people, for her name is attached to a scholarship which will educate some boy or girl from the interest on $20,000.

The late Caruso's interest in people and in music exists in his widow as well, and she is enthusiastic about the possibilities of the Caruso American Memorial Foundation, where residents of America will receive scholarships awarded for excellence in voice culture, instrumental music and composition. The awards will be based solely on merit, regardless of color, race or sex. Only the income from the fund will be used.

"The foundation," said Mrs. Caruso, "will encourage especially middle-class and poor people to foster their children's ability in the hope that their child will be the one chosen."

Every life dresser and working woman I have known seems to have made some fine sacrifice to help a relative studying music. Rich and poor alike yearn to have their children's talent cultivated."

Mrs. Caruso is honorary vice chairman of the foundation.
