

24,702 BUILDING PROSPECTS FOR 1922 IN INDIANA

Schools, Country Over, Bring Largest Construction Problem.

The Architectural Forum, a trade paper of the profession designing buildings in this country, in a comprehensive survey just concluded, shows that the clay products industry leads building materials and also shows that $1,100,000 worth of building is contemplated for 1922 in this country.

A copy of this survey has been received by the Indiana Building Code Council. The method of this survey was to obtain from a very large number of typical architectural offices in every section of the country, a report covering the classification and valuation of all buildings in each office for which plans have been drawn and construction is pending or on which plans are being drawn out for construction. Reports were received from 265 architectural offices, with the results classified by States and by character of building.

The report further shows that in this country as a whole and in most sections of this country, school buildings constitute the biggest single item of the contemplated construction. In all districts industrial buildings constitute a relatively small portion of the proposed buildings, while nearly everywhere apartment houses and office buildings are rather prominent.

Of the ninety-six architectural offices in Indiana, thirty-eight made reports. These show that Indiana architects have been appointed counselor of the American embassy at Berlin. He probably will accompany Representative Houghton of New York to Germany, when Mr. Houghton proceeds to the ambassadorship there.

Mr. Robbins relinquishes the chiefship of the division of South Eastern Asia, "a new and important" one, having been realized by the students who sold their blood. A dozen, possibly more, lives have been saved.

The students say they don't mind it. Two large hospitals here have a list of such employees and a record is also kept.

The estimated value of this prospective construction is not given in the report, but it includes with the statement that the demand for building is great the country over, with the cost somewhat higher than in 1913.

in Public Ledger.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 3.—Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador, will shortly undertake a voyage of discovery of America. He is going to cross the continent of the United States for the first time and visit the Pacific coast.

The occasion of the expedition is the founding of the University of California at Berkeley on March 23. The States of Washington and Oregon, probably will be included in the Ambassador's journey. Sir Auckland likes talking to university men, of whom he himself is one by profession. California's great State institution with its enrollment of nearly thirteen thousand President Harding, who dotes on honoring his personal friends, has named another one of them to Federal office. Fred E. Scoby of South Dakota, is to be director of the mint. He will succeed Raymond T. Baker of Nevada, who leaves office March 17 after five years' service, the post being of that tenure. Mr. Scoby is a Buckeye. His intimacy with the President dates from the time of Mr. Harding's entry into public life twenty-two years ago as a State Senator of Ohio, when Mr. Scoby was clerk of the Senate.

Senator James E. Watson of Indiana is running for seats in the Senate won the famous place held for so many years by the late Boles Penrose—seat number 16, being the third from the middle. He is the only one of the three sons of the President's rostrum. The chair is a particularly big one, built specially for Mr. Penrose, and is conspicuous for a large cushion with which it is upholstered.

Secretary Hughes, browned by his service in the war, will be at his desk on March 10, promptly to start in on the second year of his conduct of America's foreign affairs. Henry F. Fletcher of Pennsylvania, who has been Acting Secretary of State during the past three weeks, expects to lead for the next month the campaign to bring him within a month of the White House.

The name of his successor as Under Secretary of State remains a mystery. Two men are thought to be most prominent, the running John W. Garrett of Maryland, who was a member of the Senate, and Senator J. Butler Wright, counselor of the American Embassy at London, and who was on special service in Washington during the conference.

Warren Delano Robbins, native of New York and resident of Massachusetts has been appointed counselor of the American embassy at Berlin. He probably will accompany Representative Houghton of New York to Germany, when Mr. Houghton proceeds to the ambassadorship there.

of Charles Pinckney, United States Senator from South Carolina on the occasion of our union with the Triumphant pirates early in the republic's history. The pro-Bonus' people put it this way:

"Millions for subsidies, but not a cent for soldiers."

Washington this week revealed in its annual but all too brief season—one night's performance—of grand opera. The production is the work of the Washington Opera Company of the National Opera Association, a gallant and persevering band of music-lovers who are working to establish a truly national school of grand opera. An ambitious masterpiece was essayed this year, "Saint-Saens' 'Samson and Delilah.'" Although it had to be cut down to fit the time of the President's rostrum.
