

WIDOW IS HELD ON CHARGE OF MURDER

Greenfield Woman Said to Have Killed Husband and His Father.

GREENFIELD, Ind., March 11.—Another feminine Bluebeard case rivaling that of Mrs. Lydia Southard in Idaho will be developed in the Hancock Circuit Court here during the April term of court.

The State charges Clara Carl poisoned one of her husbands to obtain his insurance money and murdered his father to keep him from sharing in the estate.

She faces a charge of first degree murder for the deaths of Frank Carl and his father, Alonzo Carl, whose bodies were exhumed in Hiawath, Ind., in 1919, whose stomachs traces of arsenic were found.

EXHUME BODY OF FIRST HUSBAND.
The body of her first husband, R. M. Gibson, exhumed at Nelsonville, Ohio, was expected to arrive here late today for examination of the stomach.

"I am innocent," Mrs. Carl said. "She would make no other statement and three attorneys whom she has retained refuse to divulge their defense."

The theory the State will follow is that Mrs. Carl killed her first husband to prevent part of Frank Carl's insurance money going to him, as provided by Kansas laws. Prosecuting Attorney Walden C. Gilling will endeavor to prove that her idea was to have Frank inherit his share of his father's estate and then to kill Frank and obtain this, together with the insurance he carried.

LETTER AROUSES SUSPICION.
Mrs. Carl's arrest resulted directly from a letter she wrote to a friend here saying she would pass through Greenfield within a few days, taking the body of her husband to his burial place. Frank Carl and his father died within a few months of each other, and some statements she made in the letter linked with this fact gave rise to suspicion that the Carl did not die of liver and kidney trouble, as their cases were diagnosed.

Mrs. Carl and her first husband played tennis when they were in Athens, Ohio. Soon after his death she went to Kansas, where she and Carl were married, after a whirlwind courtship.

"It was a case of love at first sight," the neighbors said.

33 PRECINCTS ADDED TO LIST IN MARION COUNTY

Boundary Lines Changed to Give Each District About 800 Votes.

Thirty-three voting precincts today were added to the county by the Marion County Commissioners when numerous precinct boundary lines were changed.

precincts having been divided for the purpose of increasing the precincts from 177 to 210 over two years ago.

The commissioners added three precincts in the First ward; one in the Third; seven in the Fourth; one in the Fifth; two in the Sixth; two in the Seventh; three in the Eighth; two in the Ninth; six in Washington Township and two in Perry Township.

"Additional precincts were added for the purpose of giving each precinct a total of about 800 votes," County Auditor Leo K. Feiler said. "When the city changed the precincts some time ago some of the precincts had as high as 1,100 votes."

The change in the boundaries will cause many candidates to file again their declarations of intentions as candidates at the primary, because candidates are required to name the precinct in which they reside.

Cable Dispatch Announces Americans Buy Anatolia Concessions.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Lively interest was aroused in Washington official circles by the cable announcement from Rome American capital has obtained valuable concessions in Anatolia. It is known to Government departments Americans have been prospecting for concessions in the Near East, but confirmation is lacking of any accomplished transactions such as the Rome Messenger reports on the authority of its Constantinople correspondents.

The activities of Robert MacDowell, the American mentioned in the Rome cable are on official record in Washington. He went to the Near East about four months ago on behalf of the Fourbig Corporation, 129 Liberty street, New York, a finance corporation, and if he has succeeded in obtaining a one hundred year concession for hydro-electrical power in Anatolia he presumably acted on behalf of those principals.

The name of the "Greenland Company," which is reported to have secured important concessions for the improvement of Mesopotamia, the port of the province of Cilicia, is not known in Washington official quarters. The publication of the news at once impelled departmental officials to institute inquiries as to the identity of the Greenland concern.

Some time ago Julian Gillespie, representative of the Department of Commerce at Constantinople, was dispatched to Angora, the Young Turk nationalist capital, to investigate the claims of the company, on an informal mission of inquiry. He has acquired the department with the result of his investigations, and the information supplied is available to American business men or capitalists who desire to engage in activities in the Near East.

Conditions in Turkey are chaotic and uncertain. The existence of two rival movements, Angora and Constantinople, denotes a state of internal disorganization which many Americans regard unfavorably to any extensive commercial activities in Turkey at this time. The United States is not known to have recognized the government of Angora. The Near Eastern political conference to assemble in Paris on March 20 is expected to straighten out the situation, or at least clarify it to a point where the United States can take a definite position. The economic enterprise to a degree that does not seem warranted under the present state of unrest and political turmoil.
