

PROSPERITY IS ON WAY AHEAD OF FREIGHT CUT

Senator New Sees Better Business on His Trip Home.

'PARTY IN POWER CAUSE'

Senator Harry S. New, who has been here today, issued a statement concerning the reduction of freight rates which he said his opponent for the Republican nomination has been saying would be necessary for prosperity. He said he had seen much evidence of better business conditions in the Calumet district.

The statement says in part: "I notice that my opponent continues to emphasize the fact that the supreme duty of the statesman of the hour is to aid in the restoration of national prosperity. He continues in his effort to make it appear that his personal presence in the United States Senate is very necessary before that end can be accomplished."

"Now I have no desire to enter into a controversy on this subject. However, I refer the Republican voters of the State and the people generally to a Washington press dispatch of April 25, which reads in part:

"An extensive reduction in railroad rates will be announced by the interstate commerce commission within the next ten days. It was learned from official sources here today. The decision will result from the hearing of the commission recently held on the question of reducing rates. It is understood the commission is reaching agreements daily on various rate reductions which will comprise the decision."

"Senator New has been strongly urging the commission to expedite its decision. He feels that a rate reduction is imperative before a real industrial and economic recovery can come in full force."

"Isn't it entirely proper to suppose, from this that somebody else already is steering the boat? Wouldn't it appear that that boat is in the right direction and is not being for the rocks?"

"I would like to cite further evidence of the fact that business is on the upgrade and that indications are that the improvement will continue."

"It is only fair to assume that the men who have been shaping the policies of the Government for the last year have had much to do with bringing about this condition. Because of this I believe that the people of Indiana, as well as the people of the Nation, have the fullest confidence in the administration of Warren G. Harding, that great Republican President whose name will go down into history as one of the greatest Presidents, who is definitely redeeming the pledges of the Republican party that were so overwhelmingly approved in 1920."

BRITISH MINERS PLEDGE AID TO U. S. STRIKERS

Will Walk Out, They Declare, if Their Labor Weakens American Cause.

Importation of British coal to break the strike of 650,000 American miners would call forth an appeal for sympathetic walkout in Britain, according to an official announcement from United Mine Workers headquarters here today. The announcement was made following receipt of a cablegram from the international executive committee of miners meeting now in Rome, which declared any suggestion from the United Mine Workers "will receive most sympathetic consideration."

The cablegram, signed by Frank Hodges, secretary of the committee and also secretary of the British miners' federation, follows: "Executive committee of international miners meeting at Rome send you brotherly greetings and wish American mine workers victory in present struggle. Are recommending European miners refrain from working overtime while fight is proceeding."

"Any further suggestions from your committee will receive most sympathetic consideration."

The cablegram was received by William E. Green, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, and followed threats to import European coal and break the backbone of the miners' union.

"This cablegram is interpreted to mean the miners of France, Germany, Belgium, Italy and Great Britain are alive to the situation in the United States and are willing, if called upon, to render such support to the United Mine Workers of America as they may be able to give."

"If we find that British coal is taking the place of American coal, we may call the miners of Britain to refuse to supply those markets."

PROHIBITION IS MASSES' CHOICE, AVERS MASSON

Candidate for Congress Says Dry Amendment Was Not Slipped Over.

National prohibition is not a question of personal liberty or the rights of the individual, but it is a question of Americanism versus foreign influences, Woodburn Masson, candidate for the Democratic nomination for representative in Congress from this district, said at a meeting of the Jefferson Club of Wayne Township at the Carr Auto Sales Company, 5363 East Washington street, Wednesday night.

The meeting was one of the largest Democratic meetings of the primary campaign and drew a crowd which packed the place to capacity. Frank T. Brown presided and introduced the candidates, who were out in full force.

"The fact that thirty-four States adopted State-wide prohibition laws before the ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment in conclusive proof that national prohibition was not forced on the nation without the consent of the people," Mr. Masson said. "It is asserted by propagandists for the repeal of the Volstead act that this is a question of personal liberty. This is not the case. Look over the Federal Court records and see the large per centage of foreign names in judgments for liquor law violations. The question is one of Americanism."

Joseph P. Turk, who is seeking the congressional nomination on a platform advocating the immediate modification of the Volstead act so as to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer, preceded Mr. Masson. He said he realized in speaking in Irvington he was in the camp of the enemy. He said: "I do not feel I have to apologize for advocating the repeal of an act vetoed by Woodrow Wilson and passed over his head by a Republican Congress."

Mr. Turk went on to say he did not advocate the return of the saloon, but that the present prohibition had proved to be unenforceable and many temperance advocates were beginning to realize the law had been carried too far and some middle ground should be taken.

William D. Hendrick made the principal speech of the evening. He criticized State, county and national Republican administrations severely and paid a tribute to Woodrow Wilson.

It was noticeable throughout the evening that the masses of the name of the former president invariably was received with great applause. Attacks on the local Republican county administration and criticism of the Indiana public service commission and various State boards also struck a popular chord with the audience.
