Pricing Affection

Jay C. McCarthy, a Chicago attorney, who has represented many women in breach of promise suits, made the statement recently that love still has its price and that $50,000 is a reasonable figure for the broken love of a good woman.

Mr. McCarthy's statement was prompted by the decisions in four recent Chicago trials granting from one dollar minimum to twenty-five dollars maximum to women who had asked large sums for broken hearts.

It is good that the attorney did not omit the standard necessary to qualify for the fifty thousand dollars. In this age of flappers mere man will have to watch his step. For fear of being called a cowboy (which means, according to the flapper dictionary, a young fellow who doesn't pay much attention to girls), the young man of today might easily appear over-attentive and before he is aware, lo—a breach of promise suit. He might be absolutely innocent of a marriage proposal, but there is usually no way that he can prove the contrary.

Hopes that a man could profitably be the plaintiff in a similar suit are shattered by the following: A jury in Lyndhurst, N. Y., awarded a man only 6 cents damages in a suit for alienation of his wife's affections. If the estimate is placed on the wounded affections, as is generally understood, the above decision would indicate that either man's broken heart and hurt pride are not worth considering or that woman as an object of affection has not as high "market value" as a man. If the courts admit the latter is true woman will probably insist that man receive even a greater amount than allotted by Lawyer McCarthy.

If, on the other hand, the courts are showing injustice to men by underestimating their feelings, women should come to their rescue, since a member of the League of Women Voters stated that women do not want more rights than men.

Controlling the Primary

Mayor Shank has been too long in the political game to be shocked by the tactics of the Jewett-Lemcke faction in naming, through their county chairman, an anti-Shank and pro-New force of election officials to preside over the ballots cast in next Tuesday's primary. The selection was not a surprise to any one who is acquainted with the manner in which politics is played in Marion County and it was exactly the thing Mayor Shank and his leaders would have done, had they been in a position to have brought it about.

Doubtless the grief of the mayor, and his political general, William H. Armistage, is not so acute because of the disadvantage it gives to Albert J. Beveridge, as is their anxiety over the strategical lead it affords the opposing faction in the battle for control of the county organization. For after all neither group of Republicans in this county is so concerned over the political fortunes of Mr. New or Mr. Beveridge as they are over the future of their own political hides.

The personnel of the election boards, we hope, is above question and we hope moreover that the air will not be filled with scandal rumors during the years following the primary as it has been during the years following the last senatorial primary. It is not, however, a healthy condition for one faction, where the bitterness is as intense as it is here and where the goals are so varied in purpose and intent, to absolutely control all of the election machinery.

Defending 'Hardingization'

It is useless for First Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett, acting as an inspired spokesman, to deny that a serious effort is being made in Washington to restore the "spoils system" of political appointments in the face of the concrete evidence afforded by the abrupt dismissal of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving employees and the avowed intention of Elmer Dover to "Hardingize" the Internal Revenue Department. If Mr. Bartlett can make the people believe that the spirit of the civil service system did not receive a severe, if not fatal, blow by recent developments in the capital, then he indeed has performed a most valuable service to the Harding Administration.

William Dudley Foulke of Richmond, president of the Civil Service Reform League and a man who has given years of study to civil service, believes there is a trend toward restoration of the iniquitous "spoils system" and while Mr. Foulke is a Republican his vision, of course, is not obscured by the same proximity to the Administration officials that unquestionably has blinded Mr. Bartlett to some of its very patent faults.

The facts speak for themselves and it will be increasingly difficult for the Administration defenders to convince the public that employees were relieved from positions which they had held for years in a manner provided by statute. If those employees were incompetent, which has never been charged, they should have been removed, but in any case their removal should have been in accordance with the law. To the everlasting discredit of the Administration this was not observed.

Temporary Makeshifts

Foresight is an individual characteristic and not the quality usually possessed by a group, or a nation. If permanent, helpful and enduring ends are to be preferred to temporary, makeshift, selfish agreements then national and international questions must be entrusted to leaders endowed with vision and a large measure of patience.

At this time, influenced by the prevailing spirit of restlessness and unsettled conditions few have patience. People rally to the man or men who are in touch with public sympathies and berate the man who is already standing where all shall be compelled to stand perhaps a few months from now.

It is to be hoped that the settlement of the coal strike will be made on a basis of vision and foresight. That there will be taken into consideration not only the miner and the operator side of the question, but it be brought to mind that the public has its rights and should receive equal consideration. If this strike is permitted to go along without interest in it being sufficiently aroused to make a most careful investigation of all the questions involved and settlement held off until the last possible moment, we shall be confronted again with the same hurried makeshift agreements which do nothing except temporarily postpone the ultimate reckoning.

All parties concerned have in their ranks men of vision. Let them use this characteristic and produce a peaceful settlement of the coal question for many years to come.

3 MEN SEEKING SUPPORT HELD WET ADVOCATES

Correspondent Names Moores, Lieber and Riley Anti-Volstead.

To the Editor—There are three men seeking nominations from the Republican party in Marion County who are now known to be notoriously wet, or saloon candidates. These are Merrill Moores, who wants to go back to Congress; Otto Walter Lieber, who wants to go to the Legislature of Indiana as a Republican; and Frank C. Riley, attorney of this city, who also wants to go to the Legislature as a Republican.

Merrill Moores and Riley are making a play for the old soldier vote and the votes of the Sons of Veterans, to which they belong, and Lieber is a member of the American Legion. All three are declared wets. Every one who knows them, knows so. Moores openly insulted the noble organization known as the W. C. T. U. and said he was not for the Volstead law. Riley and Lieber are both special representatives of the wets. Riley has openly proclaimed his wet proclivities having his views on his campaign cards.

I want to point out to the friends of the Volstead law that if this man Riley gets to the Legislature he will be particularly dangerous. He campaigned the Tenth district for Governor McCray, speaking to labor meetings, and he has influence in that district and will be able to get others to follow him. I regret to say that a man who is a cousin of James Whitcomb Riley should be advocating such a bad cause as the repeal of the prohibition law. Soldiers and the sons of soldiers should know of these things and not let sentiment carry them into voting for Riley, Moore or Lieber. Very sincerely yours,

SOPHIA MALDEN HITT,
R. R. 3, Irvington.

By K. C. B.

Dear K. C. B.—The other day you wrote something about the telephone operator who first said: "All right—ee!" What about the patient stenographer who never gets cross, no matter what happens when the boss says she should write the letter all wrong, when she knows very well that she wrote it just as he dictated it. And she smiles and says: "I'll write it again." And, K. C. B., it's usually the stenographer who has to listen to the troubles of the office force, about their wives who are ill, their reckless sons and extravagant daughters, etc. Haven't you a word for them?

"ONE OF THEM."

I CAN remember...
WHEN I was young...
A PLACE I worked...
WHERE the office force WAS ENTIRELY male...
AND SOME were rough...
AND SOME were mild...
AND the boss himself...
THOUGH NOT unkind...
USED A lot of language...
THAT WASN'T polite...
AS WAS the custom...
IN A lot of offices...
IN THE olden days...
AND THEN it happened...
HE HIRED a girl...
A STENOGRAPHER...
AND the rosy ones...
IN THE office force...
BECAME SUBJUDGED...
AND the little old boss...
FOR A week or two...
HAD AN awful time...
AND WOULD swallow language...
SO HE'D almost burst...
BUT HE stood the strain...
AND IN the end...
WAS A gentler man...
AND A kinder man...
TO HIS office staff...
AND the staff itself...
TOOK ON an air...
THAT IT hadn't had...
BEFORE SHE came...
AND LOOKING back...
IT SEEMS to me...
THE PLACID patient...
OF THAT girl...
AND HER sympathy...
IN ALL our tasks...
MADE EVERY one...
A LITTLE better...
THAN HE would have been...
I THANK you.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

And I go and prepare a place for you. I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also.—John 14:3.

Think a little less of your sorrows, and more of your joys, for the joys will make you grateful and gratitude is in itself one of the most beautiful pleasures of the soul.—Stopford Brooke.

Legion Notes

Where organized labor stands regarding the payment of a bonus has been expressed by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in an address before the Connecticut State Federation at New Haven. President Gompers strongly favors the American Legion's compensation measure, and said:

"The American Federation of Labor believes that the men who risked their lives, gave up their jobs and are now out of work should be compensated. Bonuses would be received and an enormous amount of money put into circulation, while the public at large would be affected financially very little if Congress passed a just taxation act."

"Keep us posted" will be a brand new French battle cry this summer, for Paris reports that the French capital is to be treated to league baseball, a la American, box score and all. Four teams, two made up of Yankee war veterans, and two selected from French athletic clubs will make up the league which the American Legion in Paris is forming. The Legionnaires also will instruct in the proper throwing of pop bottles.

Games will be played starting May 29 on the Bugatella grounds in the Bois de Boulogne.

"Ex-service men of the House of Representatives are determined to investigate the alleged fraudulent transactions of the War and Navy Departments and to see that prosecutions are waged to bring to justice those individuals who by technical means or otherwise defrauded the Government of huge sums of money during and after the close of the war," says an announcement made at Washington by the legislative committee of the American Legion.

Their women committee members are appointed to investigate all contracts and expenditures made by the two departments.

As a measure of preparedness for another flood, American Legion men of the War and Navy Departments and to see that prosecutions are waged to bring to justice those individuals who by technical means or otherwise defrauded the Government of huge sums of money during and after the close of the war," says an announcement made at Washington by the legislative committee of the American Legion.

About a month ago forty St. Louis men bought pages of newspaper advertising to announce their opposition to adjusted compensation, adding that they were World War veterans. Missouri is paying a State war bonus, however, and the American Legion, distributing bonus application blanks, found that these men were among the first to apply for the State compensation.

One of the most novel stunts in jurisprudence took place at a mock trial conducted by the American Legion at Birmingham, Ala., and presided over by Judge H. B. Abernathy, nationally known jurist, to instruct new citizens. The tale was a six service men, none of whom spoke English, and six Birmingham girls.

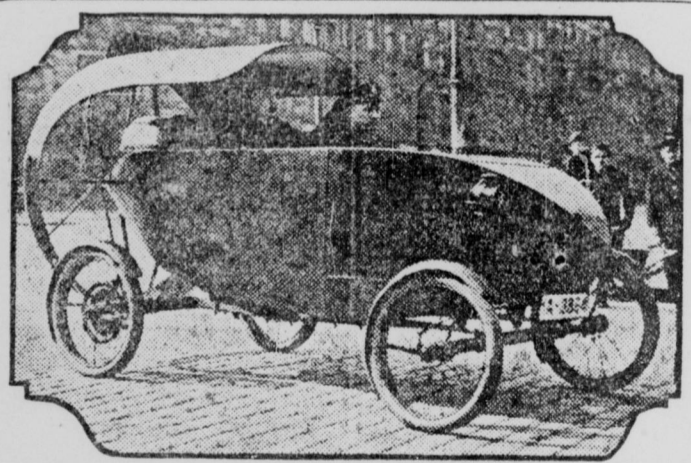

A woman in Tennessee who saw Marshal Foch while he was touring the United States under the auspices of the American Legion, has written the marshal asking him to send her one of his worn-out shirts. She wishes to make an apron, she declares, and would like to have it autographed.

J. Warren Kerrigan of Hollywood has written the State bonus board of Minnesota, asking that his $255 war compensation be "hurried up and paid." Kerrigan enlisted as a buck private and was discharged a second lieutenant.

Poor families in Nashville, Tenn., will be provided with ice this summer by the Nashville post of the American Legion. The service men reported scores of indigent families unable to keep food and milk for babies during the sweltering weather.

On July 4th, all persons in Seattle, Wash., who have reached the age of 21 during the preceding year will take a public oath of allegiance to the United States and the Constitution, under auspices of the Washington University post of the American Legion.

CAR RUNS ON FRESH AIR

Special Coils for Long Waves

DAILY RADIO FEATURES

By R. L. DUNCAN.

Director, Radio Institute of America. "Listening in" on broadcasting is one thing, picking up long-wave transmission is another.

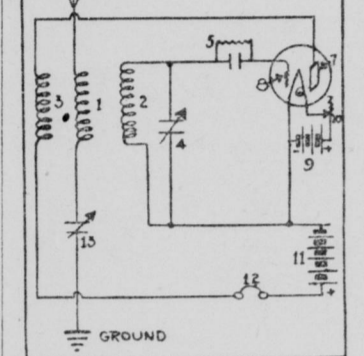

Many stations operate on wave lengths up to 20,000 meters. But the amateur may copy them all on the same set—if he uses honeycomb or duo-lateral coils.

There is a special mounting for these coils which allows them to be changed at will. The coils are rated according to the number of turns of their wire. A coil marked L-75 has 75 turns, etc. The arrangement is simple. Due to the small cost of the coils, they should be purchased rather than made at home.

Hook-Up. Referring to the diagram for the hook-up of the honeycomb or duo-lateral circuit:

No. 1—is the primary coil.
No. 2—the secondary coil.
No. 3—tapper.
No. 4—Variable condenser of 0.005 microfarads capacity shunted across the secondary.

No. 5—Grid condenser and grid leak.

Hook-Up for Honeycomb Coils.

No. 6—Filament in the tube.
No. 7—Plate in the tube.
No. 8—Grid in the tube.
No. 9—Six-volt storage battery.
No. 10—Rheostat for the six-volt battery.

No. 11—"B" battery of 22½ volts.
No. 12—Headphone which should be from 2,000 to 3,000 ohms resistance.

No. 13—Another variable condenser of 0.005 microfarads capacity in series with the antenna or ground lead.

This is an ideal receiving apparatus for any kind of reception regardless of the wave length.

Although one can receive signals by just using the primary and secondary coils, it should be borne in mind that the tapper, which furnishes the regeneration of the set, increases the strength of the incoming signals enormously.

When purchasing the coils ask for them by number. For example, if you want coils for 350 meters, ask for L-50, L-25 and L-75.

One mounting is all that is necessary, for all the coils may be attached to it. This mounting costs $0.50. The price of the coils is $1 and up depending on the size.

HOW TO SELECT HONEYCOMB COILS

Here are the sizes of honey comb coils to be employed for various wave lengths:

Wave Lengths.	Primary Turns.	Secondary Turns.
200-450 meters	50	25 or 50
400-825 meters	100	100
800-1,750 meters	200	100
1,500-2,750 meters	300	250
2,500-4,200 meters	200	250
4,000-6,850 meters	300	400
6,200-14,500 meters	1,250	750
12,000-20,000 meters	750	1,250

Unusual Folk

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 29.—Miss Polly Barton was picked by a committee of experts as the prettiest bathing girl in the country at the beauty contests at the Festival of States celebration here this month.

Several hundred young women, all more than ordinarily good looking, entered the competition. They represented all sections of the country, north, south, east and west. Miss Barton is from New York City. Besides her looks, she is a remarkably clever swimmer and an excellent surf woman. For her natural exercises she affects a plain, black, two-piece Annette Kollerman bathing suit.

The committee which decided the contest consisted of Will Payne, the author; Robert W. May, a Philadelphia newspaperman; and Mrs. Katherine Tibbets of Lake George, N. Y.

NEED HELP?

The Daily Times Radio expert will be glad to answer any of the questions about operation or construction which are bothering radio fans and amateurs.

Address all communications to radio editor, Indiana Daily Times, Indianapolis.

N. T.—Q. (1) Could I receive messages broadcast from Westinghouse with described set? (2) Would one wire, sixty feet long, be better than two thirty feet long?

A.—(1) Yes. (2) One wire is best, but have your aerial as nearly 150 feet as possible.

R. G.—Q. How large a radiophone do I need to hear from Chicago and what cost?

A. You need audio detector set with radius of 300 miles; $25 up.

F. S.—Q. (1) How big is No. 24 copper wire? (2) Does wire for coil have to be covered? (3) Do batteries have to be used with a radiophone? (4) How high does aerial have to be?

A.—(1) 0.021 inches in size. (2) Yes. (3) With crystal detector, no; with audion bulb, yes. (4) The higher the better.

RADIO PRIMER

FREQUENCY—The rate of vibration or oscillation of radio waves each second. Since radio waves travel 180,000 miles, or 300,000,000 meters a second, a 200-meter wave length, for instance, will have a frequency of 1,500,000 cycles, or complete waves, a second. A 10,000-meter wave length represents a frequency of 30,000 cycles a second.

L.S. Ayres & Co. Radio

12 Aeriola Juniors $25 Each

Aeriola Junior is a complete receiver. It requires only two adjustments. Tunes accurately within 190 and 500 meters wave length. Ready to connect to aerial and ground.

$25.00. Without head phones, $17.00.

17 Aeriola Seniors at $65 Each

Amazingly efficient, yet simple to connect and tune. An Armstrong regenerative circuit set, with one tube. Complete with head phones, $65.00.

Wave length range from 190 to 500 meters.

Aeriola Grand, the Receiver De Luxe

We are expecting a shipment of these soon. Orders should be placed now.

Hamilton Is Here Today

This afternoon from 2 to 3, Francis Hamilton, of WLK, is here to help amateurs with their problems. Come in and meet him.
