Senator's Daughter's Love Cooled by Lover's Charges

SENATOR CULBERSON (INSERT) AND DAUGHTER, MARY.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The romance of Alexander E. Robertson, British war hero, and Mary Culberson, daughter of the Senator, has been ended. Miss Culberson's affection for Robertson is said to have been cooled greatly by the publicity he gave to his charges that he had been kidnapped by detectives hired by Senator Culberson, in an effort to "shanghai" him.

Complete denial will be made by Senator Culberson in a statement which he is expected to issue shortly that he sought to get Robertson out of the country. This was learned from close friends of the Culberson family as Robertson again conferred with British embassy officials on the case.

Good Christians All, Are They Not? Most Surely They Are—Not

PAO TING FU, China, May 10.—General Wu Pei Fu, victor over the Manchurian army of General Chang Tso-Lin and virtually dictator of northern China, declared today he will call all the Chinese people into a conference to adopt plans for a government modeled after that of the United States.

Both General Wu and the Christian general, Feng Yuhsiang, are certain that they will conquer all of China. They are still being resisted in the south by the army of Sun Yat Sen, head of the Cantonese government.

General Fang said that his soldiers—many of whom had been converted to Christianity by missionaries—went into battle wearing arm bands reading:

"For God and country kill all and spare none."

GERMANS HAVE NO FEARS OF COMPETITION

Shipping Men Point to Advantages Over America and Britain.

Special to Indiana Daily Times and Philadelphia Public Ledger. WASHINGTON, May 10.—German shipping men have no fear of American or British competition on the high seas. They believe the war and its aftermath which deprived Germany of her merchant fleet, served to make Germany a potential master of the commercial oceans, by forcing her to build a new balanced fleet to replace the ships taken by the allied nations.

That is the view of the present German attitude toward world shipping gained by Edward P. Farley, sales manager of the shipping board, as the result of first-hand study of conditions in Germany and present activities in German ports. Mr. Farley's conclusions are embodied in a report made to Chairman Lasker, which includes also views he formed while aboard of the shipping situation in Great Britain.

Not a shipyard in Germany is idle, Mr. Farley asserted, and the Germans were building few vessels for foreign account, simply because the yards cannot take care of the demand for German flag ships. The vessels being constructed and those already at sea, he asserted, were built especially to fit the trade in which they were engaged, and as a result the rapidly increasing German merchant fleet is the best balanced in the world. Both the American and British fleets, he explained, include many war-built vessels, now more or less unfitted for certain trade routes.

In the United Kingdom Mr. Farley found a disposition on the part of the British ship owners and operators to consider the United States as a serious competitor and acknowledge the necessity of the United States maintaining and operating its war-built merchant fleet. It is the British view, Mr. Farley said, that if the United States intends to operate permanently a merchant fleet of the size it now possesses, there is nothing for British shipping interests to do but to modify their plans to meet the situation honestly and in a friendly spirit.

Insane Prisoners Show Great Skill With Simple Tools

Rag dolls and rag animals, all of wonderful shape and construction and treasured by hundreds of youngsters in northern Indiana, are the work of an old man, who became insane in the State prison twenty years ago and is now a patient at the Indiana Hospital for Insane Criminals at Michigan City, says a letter from Frank H. Kratzer, hospital supervisor. The hobby of this aged patient was encouraged by Warden Edward J. Fogarty and the warden thus helped to develop what is said to be the most successful method of treating insane criminals ever discovered. The treatment has been adopted in the State hospitals of Illinois, Kentucky, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and California. Products of the insane patients have been useful and often artistic, says Mr. Kratzer. They will be exhibited and the treatment explained at the Indiana Health Exposition at the State fair-ground, May 19 to 27.

A sharpened ten-penny nail is the only tool used by another patient, who has become an expert in whittling and wood carving. He produces portraits of famous men, mechanical toys, wooden pliers and chains. Another patient has shown marked artistic in drawing. He uses pen and ink, pencil, charcoal, oil paint and water colors with equal success, and affixes the signs and cards used at the exposition exhibit will be samples of his skill.

Flags for the State prison and hospital are the work of another patient at the State hospital. He weaves the material, dyes it, cuts out the stars and sews the flags together. Twenty-eight hand looms and two sock-knitting machines are being used by the other patients in healthful and beneficial industry. Rug weaving is a favorite occupation. "The purpose of the work is purely one of treatment and cure," says Mr. Kratzer, in a letter to the exposition officials. "The patients working at any of the various tasks are happier, more quiet and peaceful. They eat and sleep better, they think in a more logical and orderly manner and occasionally recover entirely."
