

WOULD LIMIT MONEY SPENT BY CANDIDATES

Senator Pomerene, Ohio,
Urge Action to Prevent
Large Slush Funds.

Special to Indiana Daily Times and Philadelphia Public Ledger.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Efforts to devise some means to limit campaign expenditures were renewed, following a conference with Senator Pomerene of Ohio, Senator Curtis of Kansas, consented to call a meeting of the Rules Committee on Friday to consider legislation checking extensive use of money in both primary and final elections.

The Newberry case has been interpreted by Attorney General Daugherty as invalidating the corrupt practices act. The Attorney General has held, therefore, there was no law limiting campaign expenditures and compelling statements of these expenditures to be filed.

Report of extensive use of funds in several States during present campaign has spurred Senator Pomerene to action. Senator Pomerene, who led the fight against sealing Senator Newberry of Michigan on grounds his election cost upward of $200,000, comes up for reelection in Ohio himself.

He proposes now to press his resolution to require the Senate to file a statement of the amount spent in the consideration of the Newberry case, to modify Senate rules so as to compel candidates for the Senate to file statements showing their expenditures if those expenditures exceeded $10,000, the measure provides, he would not be entitled to his seat in the Senate under the rules.

Catholics Purchase New School Building

The home of Frank D. Stalnaker, president of the Indiana National Bank, Fourteenth and Meridian streets, has been purchased by the Rt. Rev. Joseph Chartrand, bishop of Indianapolis. The Cathedral High School, which for four years has been located on Pennsylvania and Fourteenth streets, will be moved out to the new site, it was announced yesterday. A new building eventually will be erected on the site, but for the present the residence will be remodeled and used for school purposes. The old high school building on Pennsylvania street will be used as a grade school.

Legion Will Fight Pesky Mosquitoes

An American Legion "mosquito war" will be held at one of the northern Indiana lakes this summer. All members of the legion will be invited.

Quarters will be in a commodious hotel, it is announced, as an inducement to take the trip.

Arrangements are in charge of Charles Hint, Jeffersonville, first vice commander of the Indiana department; J. K. Yarnelle, Wabash, district committeeman, and Walter Hadley, Danville.

drop their names, why one should own his own home for Indiana people.

With students of the domestic science, home economics, wood working and iron working classes of the Emerger Manual Training and Arsenal Technical High Schools, and a delegation of the Noblesville High School, guests of the Kiwanis Club, the exposition this afternoon and the Kiwanis Club members attending the mammoth home show this evening, today's and tonight's throngs may exceed yesterday's crowds.

Every woman's club in Indianapolis has been urged to attend the exposition tomorrow, which is designated as women's club day.

SAFETY MATTERS

The selection of a site is logically followed by the choice of materials to be used in the home construction, and here the builder has a wide variety from which to choose—face brick, stone, Southern pine, or even asbestos shingles. Several varieties of fireproof roofing are shown, but in one miniature house the side walls, too, are of asbestos. Examples of attractive designs also are shown in the exhibit, as when one reaches the state of interior finishing, an automatic wallpaper display turns itself over before the visitor and shows him the newest and most desirable tones to harmonize with the preferred furnishings and draperies.

An attractive feature for the sun room is a fountain of terra cotta in polygonal form, with the water falling in streams of spray over a rose-colored light in the fountain. This fountain has its practical as well as its esthetic features, for, according to the demonstrator, it requires only two gallons of water to keep it in operation.

LIGHTER FEET

Lights, all colors and shapes and varieties, are shown at another colorful booth. Filmy combinations of georgette that cover ceiling lights throw out a fascinating glow, artistic parchment shades are used for smaller reading lamps and floor lamps are there that would lend an air of romance to the most prosaic room. The use of the shade is effectively shown in the display to live in rooms which several companies have made use of to show what is most desirable in the well furnished living room. One feels much the same thrill that Goldilocks must have felt when she walked uninvited into the house of the three bears and found one at home, but everything looking as if the tenants had just stepped out for a moment.

Of course, no bowls of warm porridge are shown in the rooms at the exhibit, but one charming living room completely furnished in Windsor period style, had a little side table holding a tea set ready to use and a tempting bowl of fruit. Unfortunately for any hungry intruder, however, the fruit was a wax imitation of the genuine, and the flowers that graced a dainty vase on the writing desk were paper-mache pieces.

Other booths arranged as rooms showed luxurious over-stuffed pieces combined with tables of the Elizabethan type.

20,000 VISIT

At least 20,000 Hoosiers thronged the home complete exposition aisle last evening. Every booth had its share of interesting specialties. The picture hall attracted many with its motion pictures of the red wood and yellow pine lumber industry. And a steady stream of people passed the barrel in front of the five-room home that is to be given away, to
