

THREAT BRINGS PROMPT ACTION FROM CONGRESS

Visions of Extra Session Force Leaders to Rush Ship Subsidy Bill.

Special to Indiana Daily Times and Philadelphia Public Ledger.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The President's threat to call an extra session of Congress if the ship subsidy bill is not considered at this session produced results. The Republican leadership began to function. No sooner had the bill been formally introduced than Chairman Campbell called a special meeting of the Rules Committee for Monday. A special rule, giving the measure parliamentary privilege and restricting debate, will be discussed.

Representative Mondell, Republican floor leader, conferred with Chairman Greene of the Merchant Marine Committee, and Representative Edmonds, who, as chairman of a Republican subcommittee, which revised the shipping board measure, introduced it. Committee progress was discussed, and Mr. Mondell is said to have indicated a willingness to support consideration of the subsidy next week.

Speaker Gillett invited a number of House majority leaders and members prominent in support of the subsidy to an informal dinner. There, it is understood, the possibility of passage next week, was discussed.

Activities of every leader indicated marked change of front on the merchant marine bill since President Harding's letter to Chairman Campbell. Mr. Mondell told President Harding the House majority leadership was opposed to consideration at this session. Mr. Campbell was understood to be one of those leaders.

Speculation on the possible action of the Rules Committee Monday was rife at the Capitol. There was a general impression the attitude of Chairman Campbell would have telling weight. Five of the eight majority members are from inland States where leaders feared the subsidy would prove a delicate campaign issue, if pressed by opponents before it had been given a chance to make good in operation. Opposition of the four Democratic members is conceded.

The merchant Marine Committee began consideration of the bill at once. Democratic members have a myriad of amendments they want considered. Actual reading of the bill will consume about one day's work. If the minority members do not show signs of filibustering they will be given every opportunity for debate. Mr. Edmonds thought the bill would be reported by Friday or Saturday.

A rule that would please friends of the subsidy bill would be one limiting general debate to four or five hours on a side and attempting to restrict the nature of amendments to be considered in order. A number of the proponents of the measure would regard the threatened amendment to provide no compensation for ships carrying liquor as extremely embarrassing. They would like the rule to provide such proposed changes out of order.

Reports that a poll of the House had indicated passage of the bill by about thirty votes, traced to their source, were characterized as inaccurate because of the number of members of Congress who pointed out, however, that a number of Middle Western members have refused to commit themselves until they see the bill, a result of the canvass taken by its friends as an indication those members are prepared to support the measure for the Administration's sake. If they do not find in it provisions of dubious political possibilities in their districts.

How to Make Pineapple Jam

Use Fresh Pineapple and Boil Only 1 Minute

By Ann Proctor

Pineapple Jam, or, as many people call it, "Jellied Pineapple," is an unusually delicious, healthful and inexpensive food. And it's so easy to make by the wonderful CERTO Process which I now use in making all my jams and jellies because it makes a product that looks better, tastes better and costs less. To make Pineapple Jam from fresh pineapple I take two small or one large sized pineapple, peel and remove eyes and core, then chop very fine or put through a food chopper. Measure out 4 level cups of the chopped fruit and juice into a large saucepan; add 8 leveled cups (3 1/2 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Stir hard and constantly and bring to a vigorous boil over hot fire. Boil hard 1 minute with continual stirring. Take from fire, add 1 bottle (scant cup) CERTO and stir in well. Skim and pour quickly into sterilized glasses. Seal at once with hot paraffine according to directions on page 3 of the CERTO Recipe Book which accompanies every bottle of CERTO and gives nearly a hundred different recipes for making jams, jellies and marmalades from all kinds of fruits with only one minute's boiling. For free extra copies of the CERTO Book of Recipes address Pectin Sales Co., Inc., 184 East Avenue, Rochester, N. Y. CERTO Process jams and jellies have fine keeping qualities.

If your grocer and druggist does not have CERTO, please call Miss Nielsen at Main 3500 to learn where to obtain it.—Advertisement.

Illustrated Talk From McCumber on Tariff

Senator Williams Adds to Show Which Delights Galleries.

Special to Indiana Daily Times and Philadelphia Public Ledger.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The whimsical way of Senator Williams of Mississippi, with a cuckoo clock, contributed the outstanding incident of the first of several exhibitions of imported articles in the Senate. The exhibit, accompanied by an attack upon importers and the metropolitan press, was designed to demonstrate the ability of importers to pay the duties levied in the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill.

For more than two hours, Senator McCumber of North Dakota, chairman of the Finance Committee, denounced the Republican newspapers of the East which have been opposing the tariff bill and charged importers with making extortionate profits. His speech was preceded by an invitation to newspaper correspondents to examine an array of articles in the Finance Committee rooms.

GOODING ELUCIDATES ON MENACE INVOLVED.

Senator Gooding of Idaho was present to elucidate on the menace of the cheap importations to American industry and labor. The articles, ranging from pistols to prunes, were so cheap, he said, "that any poor man could easily buy them."

Then the first consignment was carried off to the Senate where Senator McCumber, in a speech whose delivery was announced early in the day, entered upon his attack of the metropolitan press who opposed the tariff bill, he said, "because their prosperity depends upon importers who are making fortunes."

Soon after he had started, Senator Williams, undertaking with several other Senators an examination of the exhibit, began tinkering with the cuckoo clock. The clock was standing a foot high on the edge of the desk next to Senator McCumber on which were arranged the importations, running from a flat iron to straw hat.

The Mississippi's curiosity was unrestrained. While Senator McCumber delivered his speech, Senator Williams, a pipe in his mouth, diligently pulled the winding chains and turned the hands of the clock. The crowds in the galleries, engrossed in Senator Williams' activities, burst into laughter as the clock crashed to the floor.

"ANOTHER FALL IN PRICES," HE SAYS.

Humorously dismissing the incident as "another fall in prices," Senator McCumber proceeded to take up the articles before him one by one, stating the excessive difference between the cost and selling price, to demonstrate that huge profits were made by importers. Some of the headed bags sold in this country to women for $15, he said, were purchased abroad for 10 cents.

Senator McCumber told the Senate that the Republican newspapers of New York, Philadelphia and Boston, which have attacked the tariff bill, did so "at the behest of the importers." Charging those newspapers with "inconsistency" for supporting the Administration, on one hand, and opposing the tariff bill on the other, he said they were "influenced by the source of their revenue." The advertisements of large department stores, importing articles from abroad, he said, had caused these newspapers to oppose the measure.

Then Senator McCumber cited specific cases to demonstrate the huge profits alleged to be made by importers. His illustrations, taking from the exhibit on the desk next to him, showed, he said, the following to be true:

A cuckoo clock—the same one with which Senator Williams was playing—was imported at a cost of 94 cents and sold for $22 or a profit of 2,240 per cent. The proposed duty of 50 per cent ad valorem would reduce the profit only to 2,190 per cent at that price.

A pearl necklace was imported from France for $12.25 and sold for $150 or at a profit of 1,124 per cent. The proposed duty of 40 per cent ad valorem would reduce the profit, he said, only to 1,084 per cent at that price.

Kitchen table knives were imported at a cost of $2.75 a dozen and sold for $27.25. A pair of barber clippers were imported for 13 cents and sold for 83 cents at a profit of 554 per cent. Linen napkins were imported for $12.20 a dozen and sold for $65 a dozen. The proposed duty of 50 per cent ad valorem would still permit a profit of 382 per cent. An electric bulb was imported for 5.3 cents and sold for 30 cents. The proposed duty of 45 per cent ad valorem would permit a profit of 432 per cent.

A watch was imported for $1 and sold for $9.45, or at a profit of 845 per cent. The proposed duty of 130 per cent would still permit a profit of 715 per cent at that price.

A pair of kid gloves were imported for 27.5 cents and sold for $2, or at a profit of 627 per cent. The proposed duty of 70 per cent ad valorem would permit a profit of more than 500 per cent at that price. A pair of small scissors were imported for 15 cents and sold for $2.65. A "good razor" was imported for 21 cents and sold for $7.24; a cane imported for 16.5 cents and sold for $1.50; a carving set imported for $1.86 and sold for $15; a Czech-Slovakian blanket imported for $9.40 and sold for $65, and an electric flatiron imported for 60 cents and sold for $5.50.

These articles, Senator McCumber said, were imported from Europe and sold in American stores. When Democratic Senators asked him to present the names of the stores making these alleged profits Senator McCumber, stating he possessed the names, refused to do so.

Several Democratic members said these facts if true should be turned over to the Department of Justice for prosecution. They said the exhibition was not argument for protection, but a proper subject for prosecutions.

Senator Underwood, Alabama, said the exhibit was not a "true representation" of the prevalent condition. American manufacturers, he said, would have asked for higher protection. The exhibit, he said, forecast the intention of Republicans to have proposed duties increased 50 per cent by the President as authorized in the bill under the elastic administrative provisions. Mr. Gooding said he favored such a course.

Senator Walsh, Montana, quoted figures to show that the production in this country of several of the articles exceeded the importations. The exportations, he added, also exceeded the importations.

Evans Gives Talk on Flag Meaning

"Our flag and what it represents, has done more to inspire hope in all mankind and to bring about the reign of universal liberty and the spirit of universal brotherhood than any other influence, save only that of the church," declared William P. Evans, prosecuting attorney of Marion County, in a speech delivered to about 3,500 persons at Ellenberger park, assembled under the auspices of Irvington post of the American Legion in celebration of Flag Day.

Mr. Evans said the American flag stood for American history, American ideals, American hopes and aspirations. What ever the flag goes, Mr. Evans said, it is recognized as the symbol of intelligence, equality, freedom, unselfish, disinterested service and Christian civilization.

Irvington troops of the Boy Scouts of America attended the ceremonies. Ed Jackson, secretary of State, and a member of the Irvington post, presided. A picked company from Ft. Benjamin Harrison gave an exhibition drill.

TODAY'S BEAUTY HELP

We find you can bring out the beauty of your hair to its very best advantage by washing it with causthox. It makes a very simple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff, dirt and excess oil, leaving a wonderfully clean, wholesome feeling. After its use, you will find that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is never streaked in appearance and is always bright, soft and fluffy; so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. Just use a teaspoonful of causthox, which you can get from any good druggist, dissolve it in a cup of hot water; this makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head.
