HUNDRED SMILES IN SUNDAY SCHOOL OUTING

There are more than a hundred smiles in this picture. Everybody is smiling because the Rev. L. C. Fackler, pastor of the St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran Church, is holding "open house" in the great out-of-doors. This picture was taken at Ellenberger Park at the last outing of the Sunday school of St. Matthew's Church.

By THE VISITOR

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"

To Sunday school—that's the answer.

She has a smile on her face and she knows her Sunday school lesson. Her brother is as happy as his sister.

Going to Sunday school at St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran Church is not considered a dry ordeal, but it is a pleasure.

The Rev. L. C. Fackler, pastor, and

Martin Stahl, superintendent of the Sunday school, have discovered that a great moral lesson may be taught in the great out-of-doors. Knowing that to be true, the pastor and his superintendent several times a year lead the entire Sunday school in automobiles on a Sunday afternoon following the morning lesson.

It is easy under this plan to have the right sort of a good time. At the last outing of the St. Matthew's Sunday school the young people took part in games. The boys had a three-legged race, a relay race and a peanut scramble. The girls had their own games. Ice cream and chocolate bars were served following the games.

While the children are on these pleasant afternoon jaunts, the pastor and the teachers point out the lessons of nature. There is a lesson in the crowded nest of the wren. The fish in the stream easily recalls the lesson contained in the Bible concerning the leaves and the fishes. The children find it great enjoyment to return to the church and the Sunday school room. They easily recall the story of the love of the mother bird for her young. Then the teacher of the class draws the lesson which connects the love of the Lord for all of His children with that of the mother bird.

Several times a year the pastor accompanies the young boys of the church on hikes into the country. For a short time he becomes the "father" of every boy in the party. He talks to them as only a father can.

In this way the Rev. Mr. Fackler has become more than a mere pulpit orator on Sunday. He "preaches" every day and night of the week, but the young people of the church do not call it preaching.

They call him "our best friend."

Peggy Burlesques Olive's Dance With Audacity Given by Liquor

Bobby, like the gentleman he was leaning forward and, taking Olive's extended hands, kissed them fervently. All but Peggy applauded, laughing in exhilaration. Olive's dance was no less heady than the wine.

Flushed and radiant, like a young red rose, her beautifully modeled body relaxing after its abandon, Olive looked as must a youthful queen in her first realization of imperial conquest. In contrast, Peggy seemed a school girl who had ventured out of her classroom among grownups.

Winnie could have wept for her, so obvious was her defeat. But courage she had.

When she pretended to be whirled by her partner, her head snapped back ludicrously, as though it were about to be jerked off her neck. When in the climax she was flung to the floor she rose with comic awkwardness, one hand on an ostentatiously dislocated hip.

The audience roared in appreciation. Peggy went on. She answered the cries for an encore by a burlesque of Olive's Spanish dance.

As she copied the whirlwind climax the apex of burlesque was reached. Throughout her imitation she had managed cleverly to caricature Olive's gestures of wooing into a crude and greedy pursuit.

Her final gesture was to tinge at Bobby, fling her arms brazenly about his neck and plant a resounding smack upon his lips, which she repeated again and again to the yells of laughter.

Sunday school for students under 20 years of age will be in two sessions—one at 9:30 and one at 11 o'clock. The church has purchased and installed in its auditorium a large pipe organ, which will be used in all of its services.

In the south room on the ground floor of the temple there has been established a reading room for the use of the general public, where authorized literature on Christian Science may be read, borrowed or purchased.

Legionnaires From Far and Near Will Take Part in Athletic Meet

Ex-service men from all over the country are sending in their applications for the World War veterans' championship athletic meet to be held during the American Legion national convention at New Orleans, Oct. 10-17-18-19.

The legion national athletic committee, of which James R. Murphy of Iowa is chairman, hopes to make the legion meet a gathering of the greatest number of amateur athletes ever brought together.

In addition to the amateur events former service men who are now making their living in the ring have been signed for the boxing tournament. The headliner on the pro' card will be the Captain Bob Roper-Bob Martin setto. As Roper won the wartime championship of the Army on this side of the water and Martin the same title among the A. I. F. fighters, the line of favoritism is sharply drawn.

Two sets of track and field events will be run off, one set for the men who saw service in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps, and another for the women who were attached to the signal corps as telephone operators, in the medical department as nurses, as yeomen in the Navy or who did military service in 1917 and 1918. The same policy will be followed in the aquatic meet.

Men and women legionnaires and members of the American Legion auxiliary will take part in the tennis and golf tournaments.

Jobs Made for Two in City Assessment Bureau—Armistage Appoints.

Cross section showing how political machinery moves:

John L. Elliott, city civil engineer, told the board of public works in its private office contractors complained their pay for street improvements was delayed because the assessment bureau is slow getting out assessment rolls.

J. F. Rainier, head of the assessment bureau came in and said he knew his department was a little behind, but it was because he did not have enough help in the rush month. He asked to be given two additional clerks for thirty or sixty days. The board approved.

"Who'll we appoint?" they asked. Rainier went outside.

A minute or so later Rainier came back in. So did William H. Armitage, chairman of the Republican county executive committee.

Armitage gave the board the name of Joseph W. Sargent, 2050 Bellefontaine St., and he was appointed.

"Who's the other one?" some body asked.

"Are there two of them?" Armitage inquired. "All right, I'll get you another one."
