

BOARD MEMBER RIDIGUES RULES FOR SANITATION

Elliott Declares Sanitary Commissioners Are Not War Department.

ORDERS ARE DISTRIBUTED

Provide for Sterile Cans, Separation of Corn Husks—Dubbed Foolish.

"We're not running a war department," said Vice President John L. Elliott of the board of sanitary commissioners today in criticizing rules for garbage collection which Commissioner Lucius B. Swift and Truly Nolan, superintendent of sanitation, compiled and have been delivering to thousands of residences.

The rules threaten refusal to collect garbage if housekeepers do not keep corn husks separate, sterilize cans with carbolic acid or lyeol, wash out tin cans before putting them out for collection, etc.

Nolan said 70,000 copies of the rules were printed.

"Don't ever have any more of them printed," said Elliott. "We're not running a war department. That's nothing but a discourtesy. If they hung one of those on my garbage can I'd send it back to the board with a strong letter."

"They sound like an office issuing orders to a private in the Army and the people are not privates in anybody's army."

Should Educate People
"Other cities don't have all this trouble over garbage collection. I think we ought to educate the people as to better garbage handling methods, but when people go to other cities and see how little trouble they have and then come back here and run into all these fool rules and regulations, they get sore, and I don't blame them."

"If we keep on, they'll have to reduce and incinerate the garbage before we take it."

Swift replied he didn't think the notice was an order and the people were not offended by it.

Can't Reduce Husks
Elliott said the present garbage plant cannot reduce corn husks, but when the new one is built, the board should take husks because "the people think they are part of the garbage."

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—President Harding has been petitioned by leaders of Pennsylvania Railroad shopcrafts employees who remained at work despite the strike, not to admit of any settlement which would impair the seniority rights of men who remained loyal to the road.

The delegation told the President about sixty-five per cent of the Pennsylvania men remained in service, and most of the original strikers had gone back to work.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The Interstate Commerce Commission is preparing a report on the condition of the country's locomotives and cars as a result of the railroad strike, in compliance with a request from the Senate.

Senate leaders expect the report to be completed within the next week or ten days. Meantime, the growing seriousness of the situation may, in the opinion of Administration leaders, compel a settlement of the strike before the report is ready, or made public.

Postpone Heads' Meeting
The meeting of the chief shopcrafts executives with Jewell to frame an answer to President Harding's latest peace proposal has been postponed until today. The reason for this delay, Jewell explained, was the late news of trains from the West on which the chiefs are travelling here.

Jewell has received a telegram from David Williams, secretary of the central strike committee of the Greater New York district, reporting an unfavorable vote of the 25,000 members on the President's plan to refer seniority to the rail labor board.

Assurances by wire have been received from Warren B. Stone, leader of the railroad brotherhoods, that the "Big Four" chiefs and telegraphers' union leaders will attend Friday's general conference here.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 10.—If the story of Mrs. Mabel Balardi is true, the solution of the mystery in the death of A. Bise, ranchman of Antelope, again proves "truth stronger than fiction."

Bise, according to Mrs. Balardi, died a terrible death after he had knocked her down with a club and her pack of eighteen huge dogs sprang upon him to avenge the attack.

Mrs. Balardi declared she did not call the dogs.

When Bise attacked her, she called "Louie," hoping her appeal would reach the ears of her husband, she said.

Instead, the leader of the ferocious pack, whom she had named "Louie" in honor of her husband, rushed from the kennels. He was followed by the other dogs, and they fell upon Bise at once, practically tearing him to pieces.

The authorities profess to be satisfied with Mrs. Balardi's story, but the couple are still in custody.

In spite of the woman's pleas, Sheriff Ellis Jones has declared the huge dogs must die.

STATE OPERATION OF MINES IS NOT PRODUCING COAL

Eight Successive Days of Military Occupation of Area Is Completed Today.

NO FUEL IS SHIPPED

Quiet Night at Front—Only Two Shots Are Fired Along Lines.

By United Press
ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 10.—The plan for mining coal under State supervision was no nearer success today, the eighth day of the occupation of this territory by State troops.

Forty-one men were on the job and four cars of coal had been loaded, but not one pound has been shipped.

Despite numerous reports that trouble was imminent, last night was one of the quietest spent by the guardsmen since their arrival. Only two shots were heard throughout the night and no one could account for either.

Four Cars Ready
Special efforts to speed up production at the mines of the Rowland-Powers Consolidated Collieries Company, taken over by State troops last week, have been made. As a result, two more cars were loaded, making a total of four now ready for shipment, and R. Rowland, manager of the company, said five more cars would be loaded Thursday.

The burst of activity followed a conference between Maj. Gen. Robert H. Tyndall, in charge of troops, and James A. Cooper, receiver in bankruptcy of the company. General Tyndall frankly told proper efforts to produce coal had not been made in the last week.

Only thirty-eight men were at work Wednesday. This force was increased by three in the evening.

Following the parade and mass meeting of about 2,500 striking miners and railroad shopmen at Terre Haute to demand removal of the troops and the impeachment of Governor McCray, rumors were thick about camp that an attack would be made during the night.

Watchful Waiting Policy
The meeting was an orderly one in every respect. A mass of speakers at the military occupation and "General Tyndall law" were received with applause by the crowd. All the speakers urged a policy of watchful waiting and said the strike was as good as won.

In the parade was a banner which caused a ripple of laughter along the line of march.

The Governor has called the troops to guard that bankrupt hole but rifle and bayonet will never dig the coal."

The marchers did not hesitate to show their disapproval of President Harding and Governor McCray.

MANY OUT OF COAL
Utilities Must Shut Down if Original Figures Were Correct.

If the estimates made by utilities two weeks ago were correct and if these have not been revised, get coal in the meantime, sixty-eight public service utilities scattered throughout the State were out of coal today.

According to a check made of questionnaires received by the public service commission, the utilities have reached their utilities in the greater number of instances, as no shut-downs have occurred so far.
