UTTERS INJUNCTION PLEA

Interstate Commerce Must Be Free From Hindrance for Public Welfare.

By United Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty in his closing plea for a permanent injunction against striking railroad shopmen declared in Federal Court that "the Government does not seek to question the right to strike, but we do question the right of striking back."

"The enforcement of this injunction will not deprive any man of his lawful right."

"This action is the most charitable proceeding known to law. It prevents sabotage and safeguards the sacred rights of the individual."

Life of Government at Stake

"The life of the United States government depends on industrial peace and industrial peace depends on interstate commerce and the transportation of the mails."

"In cases of aggravated and unlawful interference with interstate commerce the Government has, but four ways to act."

"First, as in this case, it can call on all persons responsible for the interference to cease to interfere. That failing, as in this case, it must decide promptly whether it can resort to civil proceedings and ask for a restraining order."

"Second, it can step aside and disregard its duty there by contributing to the continuation of the interference. It can let those who wave and bear the dagger proceed with their criminal acts and then prosecute and punish those who are guilty. This would result in years of litigation and encourage law violations."

Would Mow Down Citizens

"Third, it could call upon the military and in its legal right, mow down—nobody knows how many—American citizens."

"Fourth, it could adopt an inoperable complacency and let mob rule reign."

"I suggest to the court that if this injunction is granted, it will mark a milestone in future disputes involving the movement of interstate commerce."

Judge Wilkerson continued the temporary restraining order until 11 o'clock Saturday, in order he said, to give full consideration to the arguments in the case, before passing finally on the plea of the Government.

The battle ended when Daugherty presented to the court a copy of the injunction he desired. The injunction was practically the same as the restraining order. There were but two minor changes.

One change was that the Government did not want to enjoin any meetings except those aiding a conspiracy.

The second charge released money of the unions for sick benefit and the relief of strikers' families. The money must not be used for the promotion of the strike, however.

STARS SEEK ENTRANCE Movie Fans Due for Thrilling Season

By WALTER D. HICKMAN.
Mary Pickford, Charles Ray and George Arliss are knocking at the doors of the movie theaters of the country with new pictures.

The movie fan generally gets a thrill when Mary announces a new movie, but when Charles Ray and Mr. Arliss speak at the same time the result may be a mild panic.

Mary Pickford has just completed a new "Tess of the Storm Country," a miniature squatton's village by the sea.

Ray has confined his latest efforts to filming a big comedy success of the stage, "A Tailor Made Man."

Mr. Arliss has gone into the heavier sort again in "The Man Who Played God."

It is taken from a play by Jules Eckert Goodman and based on a story by Gouverneur Morris.

And while all of these productions have been under way Douglas Fairbanks has been filming his Yankee conception of "Robin Hood" and King Arthur's Court.

It looks like a gay movie season.

Stroheim Busy Again

After Erich von Stroheim directed and acted the leading role in "Foolish Wives," he has been silent but busy. The reason three months preparation for his next movie extravaganza "Merry Go Round." It is tipped off that this picture will concern the now defunct Imperial Court of Vienna.

TURNS DOWN CLAIMS

Williams County Board Refuses to Pay for Mine War Victims' Burial.

By United Press
HERRIN, Ill., Sept. 22.—The Williamson County board of supervisors has turned down the first claim growing out of the mine war. It was the undertakers' claim for $2,000 for removal of burial of the victims.

The refusal to pay the costs of burial is taken to establish the attitude of the county board that it will refuse to meet all such claims, thus denying responsibility for the outbreak and resultant deaths.
