

FIND THEIR NEW PLACE CONDEMNED

Man Charged With Having Made False Pretense.

O. F. Ring, real estate broker, with offices at 206 Lombard Bldg., and Golda Crouch, 32, of 116 N. Senate Ave., appeared before Judge Wilmett in city court today to answer to charges of having made false pretenses about property located at 1606 N. Delaware St. Their case was continued until Nov. 29.

According to testimony at the preliminary arraignment, Ring sold household furniture at the Delaware address to Mrs. Crouch, who conducted a rooming house until she was notified that the property had been condemned some months ago and was to be dismantled in the process of straightening the street. Mrs. Crouch, it is alleged, told Ring that he would have to dispose of the property for her and in turn sold it to Clinton Sidewell and wife of Elwood, with the understanding that the property was permanent.

The Sidewells later learned the property had been condemned and appealed to James M. Ogden, city attorney, who advised that suit be instituted against both Ring and Mrs. Crouch.

FAIRVIEW CHOSEN NEW BUTLER SITE

Committee Definitely Decides on Tract at $200,000.

Butler College probably will be opened at Fairview Park in two years, members of the board of trustees of the institution announced today. The trustees decided to carry out the recommendations of the removal committee announced yesterday and purchase the property from the Indianapolis Street Railway Company for $200,000.

Hilton U. Brown, president of the board, will appoint a committee of five to complete negotiations and a plan for the financing of the project. A campaign to raise $1,500,000, of which $500,000 will be an endowment fund, will be launched soon. A contribution of $50,000 by Arthur V. Brown, president of the Union Trust Company, and vice chairman of the site committee, was made some time ago and will be the nucleus of the building fund. Efforts to raise this money will be made among the alumni and from the public.

Officials believe that with the removal of the college from Irvington, the people of Indianapolis will lose the existing feeling of segregation and will support the institution as the representative school of Indianapolis. Included among the proposed improvements of the park land are a stadium, an artificial lake, improved streets and necessary college buildings. The new site contains 246 acres, as compared with twenty-seven acres hemmed in by railroad in Irvington.

PASTOR SAYS GIRLS HAVE RIGHT TO BE SPINSTERS

By United News
EAST ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 22.—The Rev. Frederick George Willey doesn't blame girls at all for not getting married—many of them, he said, prefer to remain single rather than go through life with a fraction of a man.

Some of his thoughts on marriage follow:
At the present rate in 100 years more marriages will terminate in the divorce court than in death.

In New York society divorce is beginning to rank with marriage as a social festivity.

The rule governing the selection of mates must be reversed from short courtships and long engagements to long courtships and short engagements.

It is simply talking nonsense to say the business of every woman is marriage and the woman who does not marry is a social failure.

Some causes of divorce are marriages by impulse and without sober judgment, runaway marriages, marriages without enough money, marriages to money and marriages to reform men.

'UNFASTEN MY JAWS—DON'T LIKE 'EM OPEN'

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—The man who, when told that his mouth was open, replied that he left it open on purpose, is one up on Frederick Gunn, who found his mouth open and couldn't close it.

Gunn, seated in his home, was reading a funny story in a newspaper when he began yawning. After yawning a prodigious yawn that was coincident with the climax of the story, the reader was amazed to find that his jaws remained open.

Literally taking the air and violating all rules as to the proper method of inhaling, Gunn hastened to Mount Sinai Hospital. The doctors there, noticing his silence, asked him what was the trouble, but the yawn victim could only wave his hands and point to his mouth. When they still were unable to understand the nature of Gunn's trouble, they gave him a pencil and paper, believing him to be dumb.

As soon as the man wrote, "Unfasten my jaws, I don't like them open," the doctors got busy and reset the dislocated joints.

Coal 'Trust' Gets in Bad; 15 Boys Charged With Theft

Another coal "trust" is in hot water with the Government. Fifteen colored boys aged 9 to 14, who have been retailing coal to regular patrons in the neighborhood of Sixteenth and Mill Sts., will be tried on charges of delinquency by Judge Frank J. Lahr of the juvenile court Thursday at 9 a. m. They are charged with stealing coal from cars in the Big Four yards at Eighteenth and Mill Sts.

Charles Downey, police officer assigned to the court, made the affidavits, after investigating complaints filed by railroad officials. He also filed charges of contributing to delinquency against nine adults whom he said bought coal.

"The boys worked industriously every evening after school throwing the coal off the cars and then retailed it. They had regular customers and had an 'union' rate, 25 cents per bushel basket," Downey said. "One boy had contracted with a customer to supply her a ton. Payments were collected Saturday night by some of the gang and others collected on delivery."

The practice is of old standing, Downey said. Earnest efforts will be made to break it up, officials say. The fifteen boys were James Whitley, 11, and Clifford Whitley, 13, both of 424 W. Sixteenth St.; Frank, 11, Lawrence, 13, and Richard Vaughn, 10, all of 435 W. Sixteenth St.; Robert, 9, and John Redd, 13, 420 W. Sixteenth St.; Harold Davis, 14, 459 W. Eighteenth St.; Freeman Herron, 10, 1616 Mill St.; Louis Dunn, 13, 439 W. Sixteenth St.; Harrison James, 14, 1754 Boulevard Pl.; Hubert Gray, 13, 1508 Mill St.; Edgar Horton, 13, 1413 Mill St.; Robert Cross, 14, 416 W. Mill St.; and Elmore Dillard, 10, 414 W. Sixteenth St.

CURE RICKETS BY ARC LIGHTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—It is now well established infantile rickets both can be prevented and cured by means of sunlight, or by light from various artificial sources, according to three physicians working in the laboratories of the Department of Pathology of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University. These physicians have proved conclusively by a long series of experiments on rats that such is the case. They have demonstrated, moreover, the exact dosage of each variety of curative light that it is necessary to employ to prevent the manifestations of the disease or to cure it when once established.

The physicians who have contributed this latest chapter to medical science are Dr. Alfred F. Hess, Dr. Lester J. Unger and Dr. Alvin M. Pappenheimer. The artificial lights used in the experiments were the rays emanating from the mercury vapor lamp and those given off by the carbon arc lamp.

The importance of the discovery that sunlight and artificial light will prevent or cure rickets lies in the fact that this disease, the result of faulty or insufficient diet, has always been the curse of the children of the poor. Following the World War, there was a vast increase in the number of rachitic children in Russia, Austria, Hungary, Germany and, to a less extent, in other afflicted European countries. Red Cross workers and the European representatives of American relief organizations have called attention repeatedly to the rapidly increasing numbers of children afflicted with rickets.

Funeral services were held Nov. 6 at Bremen. He is survived by his father, Charles H. Carmach, a sister and five brothers.

HARDING LINES UP WITH 'DIE HARDS'

President Issues Challenge to 'Fight It Out.'

By United News
WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—President Harding's first word to Congress following the victories of the progressives in the recent elections is a challenge to fight it out.

He has gone before Congress and practically demanded that the ship subsidy bill be enacted as a measure essential to the welfare of the country—in peace and in war.

Victory for "Die-Hards"

His message is a clear victory for "die-hard" contingent among his advisors. Since the election, President Harding's counselors have been divided into two groups. One group took the position that the elections showed a trend toward progressivism throughout the country which should be met half way by the White House. The second group insisted that the victories of certain progressives should not be taken as indicating any fundamental reversal of the overwhelming verdict which Harding received in 1920 and that he should not abandon his carefully laid out course of action.

The latter group—the stalwarts in the Republican organization—won. President Harding has accepted their advice. This is the explanation of the positive tone he took in arguing for the subsidy on Tuesday.

Declares War on Progressives

Thus, at the outset of most critical period of his Administration, President Harding practically declared war on the powerful group of progressives who will hold the balance of power in the next Congress.

Hostility was apparent down on the floor in front of the President as he read his address. During the brief moments of applause the farm bloc Senators—Capper, Norris, Ladd and Brookhart—sat in a little group together, close down in front, with folded arms. La Follette sat across the aisle, his jaw out and his mouth curled down in a hard set line.

EDISON CORRECT SAYS PROFESSOR

By United News
PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 22.—Thomas Edison, when he discourses on the subject of education, reminds Prof. Henry Van Dyke of Princeton University and former ambassador to The Netherlands, of a "freshman from a prep school where modesty is not in the curriculum."

Van Dyke drew this analogy in stating that he disagreed with the electrical wizard when the latter stated, "college men are afraid to work."

The professor was asked what he thought of Edison's utterance on culture. "Not much," was the reply; "that is not Mr. Edison's stronghold. On colleges he is right. They are not what they should be, but he is dead wrong in thinking that he could make things so. The object of a college education is not to enable a man to make a living, but to teach him how to enlarge his mental and moral life and to be more of a man."

"The trouble with Mr. Edison's idea of education is that he merely wants to get out of college men, and the colleges, at least most of them, want something better—men who can use their minds intelligently and sympathetically with the larger purposes of mankind."

Professor Van Dyke produced figures designed to refute Edison's statement that college men shun toil. He declared that last year in Princeton University 390 students earned part of their way in thirty-five different ways.

"That does not bear out Mr. Edison's statement," he said.

MEMBERS OF THIS CHURCH TOTE GUNS

By United News
CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The "church militant" means the new Mount Mariah African Baptist Church of S. Dearborn St., where the congregation comes armed, members of its colored flock avowed in Englewood Police Court.

The Rev. T. L. Polk is its "fighting parson."

"Why, your honor," the Rev. Polk told Judge Eller, "I've got to fight my way to the pulpit every time I officiate. You see, judge, the members of my congregation all comes armed."

"It's all his reverence's fault, your honor," countered Deacon Joseph McCann. "He hangs out with the worst sort o' sinners, gin hounds and gamblers. He invites them to come to holy services and he'd rather have them than us respectable folks."

"My business is to save sinners, not saints," said the Rev. Polk. "Besides, the sinners pay me better. Why, I used to take in $100 every time I passed the plate, and then it got less and less, until finally it dwindled down to a dollar a collection. No wonder I had to go out in the highways and byways."

All this was in connection with the arraignment of Edward Mack for drawing a revolver at services.
