CORN FOR EAST RELIEF

Indiana Farmers Asked to Give 100,000 Bushels.

Indiana farmers who have an abundance of corn will be asked to open their cribs to the Near East Relief, G. I. Christie of Purdue University, chairman of a committee of agricultural heads which will press the appeal during February, said today. The Indiana quota is 100,000 bushels. The grain will have free transportation to the Bible lands to feed hungry children. Don Tullis, prominent in Y. M. C. A. work, will aid in directing the appeal.

Chestnuts Pledge Aid
Members of the John Chestnut Club today were pledged to assist in obtaining an auditorium for School 70, Central Ave. and Forty-Sixth St., when the school is rebuilt. A committee of eleven was appointed to appear before the school board.

Good Manners

All appointments should be kept promptly.
Of course, apologies are in order in the event of tardiness, but this ought to be avoided by all possible means.
Having made an engagement, courtesy requires the assumption, for that reason, at any rate, that the other party's time is worth as much as one's own.

How You Can Help Your Complexion

THE very first thing that is observed by the other person when he looks at you is your face. You are either radiant or passive; alive, keen, alert or negative.
You are full of vivacity, or listless. Your eyes may be the windows of your soul, but you can brighten those windows.
Your hair, nose, mouth, chin and your entire face are expressions of the care you take.
Your nose is expressive of the way you breathe. It is impossible to breathe deeply and have small nostrils. It is impossible to breathe deeply and be lacking in energy.
Your mouth should emit the sweet.

JOHNSON WILL PROBATED

By United Press
MUNCIE, Ind., Feb. 1.—Albert L. Johnson, Muncie capitalist, who died last month in Florida, left his entire estate, valued at more than $1,000,000, to his widow, with the exception of a bequest to the Baptist Church. The will was drawn thirty years ago and never was changed.

Marriage a la Mode

The Thuringian bride always carries bread and salt in her pocket; the bridegroom, grain.
This is supposed to promote wealth and good fortune.
After the wedding feast comes the "wreath dance," during which the bride's wreath, emblem of her maidenhood, is taken off and each guest tries to secure a portion of it, as it portends good luck and marriage within the year.

Brakeman Falls 70 Feet

By Times Special
RICHMOND, Ind., Feb. 1.—William Irvin, 25, brakeman on a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train, fell seventy feet off a railroad bridge across Whitewater River here into three feet of water without injury.
"You fell a long way," remarked a physician.
"I know I did, and I grabbed for something to hold for a long time before I landed feet first in the water."

Martha Lee's Advice

Old Query—He Loves Me; He Loves Me Not

THAT streak of perversity that makes us like people who are indifferent to us and not care about people who idolize us causes quite a bit of trouble.
"T would be much more convenient, for instance, if young girls could make themselves respond to the appeals of the men who love them, instead of pursuing the men who care not. But perhaps the world would be monotonous then."

Pursues Difficult

Miss Martha Lee: I am 21. I have gone with a fellow for about two years. At one time I cared for him. Then I met another fellow and went with him for three months. I am madly in love with him. When he is with me he acts as though he cares for me. And then when he has appointments, he does not keep them.
The first man still loves me. The other one says he does, but I don't believe he does. Should I return to the first one?
HEART BROKEN E. J. B.

I don't believe, either, that this second man cares for you, or he would be so careless of your feelings. I imagine he is not at all admirable.
I wonder how you would react if the first man should become indifferent and the second one should become ardent. I have an idea that your love for the first would return.
If I were you I should make no decision now. I don't suppose you would decline the second man's invitations, even though he is so rude. But if I were you I should accept engagements with the first man, making it clear, of course, that you are just friends, until you know your heart.

Made a Slave

Dear Martha Lee: I was first married at the age of 16. I lost my first husband when I was 21. Six years later I married a widower with three children. I had two. Now we have a baby girl.
My husband promised to be a good father to my children, but he is not. He treats me like a slave. He is downright selfish. I do all my housework and take care of the children, although he is able to pay for it.

We have a car, but I am denied the privilege of riding in it.
I made a good salary before my marriage. I cannot bear the idea of taking my little girl away from her daddy. Please advise me.
J. N. C.

Your problem is hard to solve, because any solution seems to lead to unhappiness for some one. Before you consider breaking up your home, try to win back your husband's consideration, if not his love. Remind him of the promises he made before your marriage.

Be so good to his children that he will have no excuse for not being good to yours. Keep your home pretty and pleasant and yourself the same. If all this is of no avail, tell him that you are going away, with your three children. That may make him realize he has been mistreating you.
Do all you can to keep from breaking up your home. But have the courage to take your little girl away if that is the only way you can bring contentment to your family.

PEGGIE HOPKINS: You should marry this man, to give your baby a name.

Good Sense

Dear Martha Lee: I have been engaged for almost a year. We are to be married in a short time. My fiancé lives in another city and my girl friends tell me I am foolish for not going with other men. I do not care to go with any one else, as I love this man dearly. Please advise me.
PEPPEXED.

Of course you should not go with other men if you do not care to. I state that startling developments in-

am sure your fiancé would be happier if you did not.

Better to Wait

BROKEN-HEARTED: You should give up the man and not think of marrying for several years. A girl of 17 has no business marrying, least of all a man of 35. If you should give in to this man's wishes now, you could expect to be dictated to for the rest of your life. In a year's time you will be glad.

Spurned by Man

Dear Miss Lee: I am 17 and love a man who is 25. He does not care for me. I tried in every way to gain his love, but I could not. He was very nice until some one told him a lie about me. I called him up, but he forbade me to and said he never wanted to see me again. Tell me what to do.
M. D.

The man probably thinks of you as a little girl—a foolish one because you keep "running after" him. Perhaps he believed the story about you just because you had acted so foolishly.
Don't try to win this man's love. Instead, be a friend of boys and girls your own age. And profit by what you have learned in this case.

DUD: As you and your girl friend do not know the boy, it is not necessary for you to take gifts. Your efforts will take them.
