COUNTY COUNCIL MAJORITY BALKS AT FESLER CALL

James E. Edwards Asserts Five Members Will Refuse to Attend.

The county council will not meet Thursday, James E. Brown, fourth district councilman, announced today. Edwards said five of the seven councilmen are pledged not to attend the meeting called by Leo K. Fesler, county auditor, because they are opposed to "railroading" huge appropriations through on twenty-four-hour notice.

"We just received notice Tuesday that we were expected to do," Edwards said. "We have heard appropriations totaling $600,000 may be put to us to pass. We don't know. Cassius Hogle, president of the council, is out of town and won't be back until April 16."

Important Matters Up
Matters scheduled to come before the council are understood to be sale of the old workhouse grounds, appropriations for a colored orphan's home, a home for minor wards of juvenile court, and $154,112.02 out of the general fund for additional county government expenses.

"We want to know what the auditor wants and then have some time to investigate," Edwards said. "This old idea of passing appropriations in big lump sums just because it always was done that way won't go any more."

The members lined up with Edwards are Charles O. Dodson, John E. Shearer and Cassius L. Hogle, Republicans, and Daniel B. Dunham, Democrat. The remaining two, George N. Montgomery and Frank E. Brown, are in sympathy with the auditor's plans, Edwards said.

Edwards Denies "Politics"
Accused of playing politics, Edwards replied:

"No, I am not in politics. I never was. This is the first office I have ever held, and I am not out for any other. But I want to see taxes cut down, and we intend to hold them down. That is all there is to our move."

"We are not fighting Fesler or anybody else. But we'll tell the whole world we can't stand out for methods of keeping us in the dark about what money we are expected to spend for the people."

Fesler announced the meeting will be held as scheduled, provided a quorum is present.

Blackberries grow over a wide range of territory. Among them are found some excellent native varieties, but the cultivated sorts that have been developed are far superior.

Both blackberries and dewberries are adapted for growing in home gardens as they follow raspberries and strawberries and provide a continuous supply of fresh fruit for the table. About fifteen hills of each or a combined row ninety feet in length will yield about enough berries for the ordinary family.

No diseases are found among livestock, but the number of spring pigs has been materially reduced by severe March weather. Farm labor is scarce and wages high, Bryant announced.

Making the Garden Pay

NO TROUBLE TO GROW BLACKBERRIES

Blackberries are started by planting the suckers or young plants that come up from the extended roots of the old plants, or pieces of roots from old plants may simply be buried at a depth of two or three inches where the hills are wanted. The planting of suckers is best for the home garden.
The canes formed one year bear the fruit the following season and then should be removed. The strong growing canes should be pinched back during the summer so that they form branches and do not become too high.
Blackberries that grow wild in patches support one another, but in the garden, where the hills are spaced about three or four feet apart, the young tender canes are liable to be broken off at the base by the wind unless they are tied to supports. A good way to support the blackberry plants is to drive a long stake about four feet high in the row beside each hill, then stretch about three strands of galvanized wire on the stakes and tie the canes to the wires.
Dewberries are similar to blackberries in most respects, except that the canes creep along the ground and form new plants by rooting at their tips. Set the plants in the early spring three feet apart in the row and allow the canes to lie on the ground the first season. Early the following spring drive a row of stakes and stretch wires upon them, forming a trellis to which the canes may be tied.

Dewberries are pruned very much the same as other berries by cutting out the canes after fruiting and clipping back the new growth. If the canes grow longer than five or six feet, it means that five or six canes are formed in each hill and the weaker ones. Dewberries give better results in the South than blackberries.
In cold regions, dewberry canes "winter-kill" badly unless they are protected. One method of protecting the plants is to loosen the wires from the stakes and lay the wires and canes upon the ground, then cover with earth or with straw or both. In the early spring the covering is carefully removed and the wires fastened back in place without taking the canes off them.
Logan blackberries are adapted to growing on the Pacific Coast but do not thrive in the South. East. The Loganberry is of the trailing type and resembles the dewberry in its habits of growth. It is a very strong grower, sometimes producing canes twenty feet long. The canes should be grown on the ground the first season, and tied up like dewberries.

Capitals of Europe Shocked Over Death of Monsignor Budkevich Before Soviet Firing Squad—Act Deplored at Washington.

By United Press
ROME, April 4.—News of the execution of Monsignor Budkevich, Roman Catholic prelate, by a Russian firing squad, caused a tremendous sensation at the Vatican today. Up to the last minute Pope Pius was of the belief that the vicar general's life would be spared.

It had been understood in Vatican circles that the death penalty was to be postponed and later be commuted to imprisonment in exile.
Pope Pius spared no effort to save Monsignor Budkevich's life. It had been expected Russian authorities would heed the Vatican's appeal in gratitude for what the latter did for starving Russians in the famine days.

INDIGNATION IS AROUSED
Capitals of Europe Shocked by Execution of Monsignor Budkevich.
By United Press
LONDON, April 4.—The execution of Monsignor Budkevich, prelate of the Roman Catholic Church in Russia, has caused a storm of indignation in European capitals and will, in all probability, impede the efforts of Russia's communist government to secure official recognition by European nations.

Officials of the various European governments have not been so shocked since the six former Greek cabinet ministers were put to death by the revolutionary government in Athens several months ago.

It has been learned that the British cabinet, before the execution became known, discussed what steps to take in event Budkevich was actually put to death.
Officials of the Government of Bonar Law make no secret of the fact that they expect a popular demand for the expulsion of the Russian trade delegation to London which has been the unofficial representatives of the Moscow government for some months.

WASHINGTON DEPLORES ACT
State Officials Decline to Express Formal Opinion.
By United Press
WASHINGTON, April 4.—Execution of Monsignor Budkevich, vicar general of the Roman Catholic Church in Russia, is keenly deplored by officials and churchmen here, who had hoped that the last minute appeal recently dispatched to the Soviet authorities by Secretary of State Hughes would move Moscow to leniency.

Department officials, while obviously regretting the action of the Soviets in carrying out the execution, declined to express any formal opinion. A statement may be issued later by the papal delegate.

$350 VALUE IS PLACED ON LAND
Appraisal of Property in Lake County Approved.

Appraisal at $350 an acre of 282 acres of submerged Lake County land, lying in the bed of Lake George, was approved at a meeting today attended by Governor McCray, Ora Davies, State treasurer, and George M. Cheney, State land clerk. Robert Bracken, State auditor, was absent on account of sickness. Sale of the land to a steel corporation for use as an industrial center will be made about May 4, said C. A. Westberg of East Chicago, head of the realty company through which the transaction is to be made.

Cheney, voting for Bracken, opposed the appraisal on grounds that the land at present is appraised for taxation at $900 an acre. Bracken said the entire tract should have been appraised at $350,000, or about $1,240 an acre. Before sale is completed, Bracken must, by law, advertise the tract for sale at open auction. Proposed sale must be advertised in newspapers for a period of three weeks.

Edward M. White, assistant attorney general, was present at the meeting. The Governor and Davies favored the deal.

COMMUNITY CLUBS SUPPORT SCHOOL BUILDING PROGRAM

Board Is Told Taxpayers Favor Modern Facilities for Children.

In providing modern, fireproof, adequate school buildings to replace tumbledown shacks, and portables now in use, school commissioners will have support of city civic organizations, it was evident today.
This was indicated Tuesday night at a special meeting of the board to consider plans for new buildings and additions at four public schools. The meeting was attended by representatives from the Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade, Real Estate Board, Federation of Community Civic Clubs and parent teachers associations of the four schools under consideration.

School building activity has been at a standstill in Indianapolis for two years. The last building program was halted by refusal of the State tax board to approve bond issues for erection of four buildings.
"I don't believe the people of Indianapolis will object to expenditure of money for school buildings," E. O. Sneath, president of the Federation of Community Civic Clubs, said.

The same sentiment was expressed by John F. White, president of the Southeastern Civic Improvement Club. The only dissenting note was sounded by G. A. Millet, a member of the sub-committee of the education committee of the Chamber of Commerce. This committee recently recommended that three members of the school board resign.

Edwin H. Emrick, representing the Parent Teacher Association of School No. 76, urged the board to erect permanent, modern structures.
Buildings Considered
Buildings considered at the meeting and their estimated costs were: No. 23, Thirtieth and Missouri Sts., eight class room addition and heating plant, $192,295; No. 30, Miley Ave., north of Washington St., ten class rooms, four vocational training rooms and auditorium, $218,245; No. 76, College Ave. and Thirtieth St., sixteen classrooms, four vocational training rooms and auditorium, $222,620.96.

CHRIST'S SPIRIT FOUND IN BOOKS

Literary Men Best Preachers, Dr. Newton Says.

The spirit of Christ can be found in worth-while modern literature, even in books where His name is not mentioned, Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, New York, asserted today at the congress of the Disciples of Christ at the Central Christian Church.

Writers such as Tolstol, John Massfield and Ibsen are the best preachers of Christ, he said.
"Modern poetry shows an aching need of Christ in modern life," he said. "Modern artists go back to Judea to find Him, just as we all must do if we are to find Him. These poets handle the same things that preachers do every Sabbath."

Officers elected by the Congress: H. L. Willet, Chicago, president; A. B. Philpott, Indianapolis, first vice president; Levi Bateman, Ohio, second vice president; C. H. Winters, Indianapolis; W. A. Shullebeyer, Iowa; A. W. Fortune, Kentucky; W. G. Johnson, Missouri; C. J. Sebastian, Ohio; Mrs. E. L. Powell, Kentucky; and Walter M. White, Tennessee, executive committee.
