Rare Old Comedy Made More Rare by Hampden

By WALTER D. HICKMAN

DELICIOUS FUN was dished up on the Murat stage last night by Walter Hampden and his associates in Philip Massinger's ancient but rare comedy, "A New Way to Pay Old Debts."

In this comedy of England of other days, Mr. Hampden has the opportunity to play Sir Giles Overreach, a character rich in both comedy and dramatic opportunities.

Sir Giles probably deserves the George Cohan title of "The Meanest Man in the World."

The unlawful schemes of Sir Giles to fatten his purse and his ambitions are but the back-grounds of much quaint and learned humor.

There are numerous plotters, healthy plotters, who teach Sir Giles a costly lesson.

Those who are the teachers include Wellborn, nephew to Sir Giles; Lord Lovell (William Sauter); Allworth, stepson of Lady Allworth; (Charles Brookway); Justice Greedy (splendidly conceived by P. J. Kelly); Lady Allworth (elegantly read by Mary Hall); Margaret, daughter to Sir Giles (pleasantly played by Elsie Herndon Kearns) and Marra (Edwin Cushman).

One might call this comedy a sort of a taming of a male shrew, if such a thing could be. It is not the woman who is tamed this time, as in the Shakespeare play, but a tyrant of a man.

It is in the final moments of the play, when Sir Giles is broken and nearly mad, that Hampden rises to great dramatic heights. I think his loud and noisy ravings is in keeping with the character. Again I relished the work of Ernest Rowan who made such a splendid impression in "The Ring of Truth." Last night he was cast as Wellborn.

BULGIN DECLARES TESTAMENT COULD NOT BE IMAGINED

Divinity of Christ Defended by Evangelist—Klan Mentioned.

Jesus Christ was as the gospels describe Him, for it is not within the power of man to invent such a character, E. J. Bulgín, evangelist, declared Wednesday night in a sermon at Cadle Tabernacle before 8,000 persons. Masons and members of the Eastern Star were special guests.

"Christ was either of virgin birth or a product of sin. Take your choice," he said. "Either Christ was of divine birth or Mary was a fallen woman."

Jewish Mind Not Dramatic

"The Jewish mind is poetic, but it never has been dramatic. It could not have invented such a character. But Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, four ignorant Jewish fishermen, must have made up the story with strange unanimity of thought, or the story is true. The New Testament writers would, if they had made up the story, never have left a loophole whereby Mary could have been considered a fallen woman.

The evangelist spoke of the unostentatious appearance and departure of Christ. He insisted if the story had been a product of the imagination these things would not have been written as they were.

Could Not Have Imagined It

"Matthew, Mark, Luke and John did not imagine the story of Christ, because man does not create that which he does not understand. Every problem of the universe is solved at the cross of Jesus Christ. Could these men have created such a philosophy?"

He pointed out that Christ himself never wrote except in the sands and that he created an empire and a religion without the use of the pen, the sword or of money.

"He taught His kingdom must be founded on love of God and love of your enemies," Dr. Bulgín said.

In the course of his talk the evangelist said people had been asking him questions.

"I had not been here two days before somebody asked me whether I was a Democrat or a Republican," he said. "My father was a Republican and my mother a Democrat. I may be a member of the Ku-Klux Klan, but it is none of your business."

Bulgín Bolts

By E. J. BULGÍN,
Evangelist at Cadle Tabernacle.

The Jewish mind never has been dramatic and four Jewish fishermen never could have created a character that put the work of Homer, Virgil and Demosthenes to shame.

If Christ was not of virgin birth then Mary was a fallen woman.

Jesus appeared unostentatiously—not as kings and rulers—and as unostentatiously He passed on.

Matthew, Mark, Luke and John did not imagine the story of Christ because man does not invent anything he cannot understand.

Christ taught that His kingdom must be founded on the love of God and the love of your enemies.

Jesus founded an empire and a religion without pen or sword or money, while others with all these things have failed.

You cannot undermine a country quicker than by teaching free love and disregard for the sanctity of the marriage vow.

Make THE Backyard Pay

Flowers Planted About the Home Express the Character of People Within.

By W. R. BEATTIE,
Extension Horticulturist, United
State Department of Agriculture.

FLOWERS are a mark of refinement and culture, regardless of where they appear. The woodland beds of violets, the snowy banks of laurel, the bluebonnet of the plains and a thousand others are Nature's expression of refinement.

Flowers about the home, like the clothing worn by the inmates, bespeak the very soul of the people who dwell within. Reasonable simplicity in planting flowers and shrubs about the home is a mark of good breeding and artistic refinement.

Expensive planting of shrubbery and flowers are not essential; in fact, are undesirable in most cases. The finest effects can generally be produced by using plants that are either native to the region or those that may be easily grown from seeds or cuttings.

To Beautify Home

To make home surroundings beautiful, first secure a smooth, clean carpet of grass on the lawn; second, provide suitable shade trees where the available space is sufficient; third, plant a reasonable variety of shrubbery or other plants around the house so as to have something in bloom the greater part of the time.

Another factor in home adornment is the use of annual and perennial foliage and blooming plants to fill in the shrubbery and provide harmonious color effects. In the main, the scheme should be one of border effects, the center or main body of the lawn being kept free of any plantings.

The most universal shrubs are berries, thunbergii or Thunberg's barberry, not the common outlaw barberry that causes wheat rust, but a very ornamental dwarf shrub or hedge plant that bears small red seed pods that remain on the plants all winter; spiraea or bridalwreath, Viburnum Americanum or high-bush cranberry, cornus alba, which is a dwarf shrub of the dogwood group, and several varieties of dwarf junipers, which are evergreen.

Care in Selection

There is considerable range in varieties among these. The local florists can suggest those that are especially adapted to the locality. The great danger lies in the selection of too many different kinds and of overdoing the planting.

Splendid effects can be secured with annual flowers, also those known as perennial which bloom the second season. Scarlet sage or salvia, sweet peas, geraniums, cannas, asters, dahlias, old-fashioned hollyhocks, petunias, annual phlox, hardy phlox, cornflower or bachelor's button and a host of others are adapted for producing immediate or quick results.

There are a number of hardy climbers for porches and over arbors, including several varieties of climbing roses, wisteria, clematis and others. Everblooming roses of the bush type are always appropriate, but do best when planted in a separate bed from the shrubbery or the annual plants.

DON'T FUSS WITH MUSTARD PLASTERS!

Musterole Works Without the Blister—Easier Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia). 35c and 65c, jars and tubes.
