

ROBBER RANSACKS TWO HOMES AND ESCAPES WITH $51

Washington Blvd. Houses
Entered While Families
Are Away.

Two homes on Washington Blvd. were entered by a burglar Tuesday night, police reports showed today. Dr. J. R. Newcomb, 4402 Washington Blvd., believes he interrupted the burglar when he arrived home at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday. The burglar also entered the residence of C. C. Tindler, 4466 Washington Blvd.

When Dr. Newcomb arrived home he thought he heard some one in the house. He telephoned police. Dr. Newcomb's family is out of the city.

A glass panel was broken from the rear door. The kitchen door was unlocked. Dressers upstairs had been ransacked. Dr. Newcomb said his wife had hidden most of the silverware and that he was sure no money had been left in the house. Several valuable pieces of silverware in the dining room had been touched.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Tindler left home at 7 p. m. and returned two hours later. Mrs. Tindler said she had failed to lock the rear door, through which the burglar had entered. The house had been ransacked. Forty-six dollars were missing from Mrs. Tindler's purse. About $5 was taken from a child's bank. The burglar left the house through the front door.

An open window furnished an easy way for a burglar to enter the home of George Miller, 1733 N. Meridian St. detectives were told today. The thief carried away a plain gold ring, a garnet ring and a wrist watch, each valued at $10. A gold neck chain, a one-dollar gold piece mounted in a stickpin, an opal pin, a Masonic charm, two beauty pins and a jewelry box trimmed in green velvet, all valued at $70.

FLOODS RAGE IN OKLAHOMA TOWNS

Arkansas River Overflows—
Thousands Homeless.

By United Press
TULSA, Okla., June 13.—Thousands were made homeless today by Arkansas River flood waters which raged unchecked through this section of Oklahoma.

The entire river bottom area between here and Sand Springs, a distance of seven miles, was inundated. Three thousand refugees whose homes were flooded were being cared for by relief agencies.

The municipal water works were forced to shut down here today on account of the flood waters, and there was danger of a spread of disease. At Jenks, south of here, water covered three-fourths of the town, according to advices. Residents were said to be fleeing in boats.

Skeleton Gives Glimpse of Prehistoric Indiana

Germany may boast her prehistoric Neanderthal man; England had her builders of Stonehenge, and all Europe turns to the earlier civilization of the Cro-Magnon, or Reindeer man.

Historians have magnified the significance of Europe's early man in the thread of prehistoric events and correspondingly have winked on America's first inhabitants.

Curiously, seekers of the faint connections with the yesteryear of American history have turned to Indiana for some of the most valued archaeological specimens. Indiana's mounds have offered treasured links to the historical fact seeker.

In the State museum at the Statehouse are the bones of one of this hemisphere's earliest men, a chieftain, perhaps, of a nomadic tribe four or five thousand years our predecessors.

Found in Lawrence County
Imagine a man of eight-foot stature, followed by a band of tribesmen, for his inferior in size, yet all towering above the average man of today. Peculiarities of his powerful figure have led to many conjectures. William H. Hershman, curator of the museum, believes he preceded the early Indian by possibly several centuries. The big fellow was found in Guthrie Township, Lawrence County, in a square mound, buried in a vault formed of thin limestone slabs. His teeth are perfect and his skull indicates a man of rare intellect, considering his day. That he belonged to a nomadic tribe is indicated by the superior development of his lower limbs. That he was a chieftain is shown in the smallness of his arms and shoulders. His immense size made him a logical leader. His preferential burial showed the reverence of his followers.

Skull of Stone Age
Another interesting fact is that his left upper arm had been fractured and a growth had healed the break where surgery was lacking.

Beside his gigantic skeleton is the skull of one of another tribe, possibly one of the true stone age. He was found in Tippecanoe County. His facial contour indicated less intelligence than that of his larger companion. On the right side his teeth are worn obliquely, showing that he had exercised great force in chewing or in doing work of a similar nature. Hershman said the fact that early American man at this stage had not learned to temper metal is self-evident proof this fellow used his teeth to sharpen arrowheads, others differ, saying the teeth were worn by eating flesh or by stripping flesh and hair from the skins of animals in preparation of arrow fletching.

The larger of the two specimens was exhumed by Richard Guernsey of Bedford.

RETAIL GROCERS SEE ADVERTISING AS BUSINESS AID

State Association Reviews
Progress of Year in Convention Here.

Newspaper advertising aids the retail grocer as no other publicity can do, Charles W. Meyers told Indiana Retail Grocers' convention at the Claypool today. Meyers spoke on "Why the Retail Grocers Should Advertise."

Other subjects were uniform legislation needs, the sugar question, the metric system of weights and measures, transportation conditions and adoption by food manufacturers of a reasonable sale price.

The Rev. J. F. Ranier of Indianapolis welcomed delegates Tuesday in the absence of Mayor Shank. J. G. Humphrey of Evansville, past president, responded. President J. C. Peterson spoke on the work of the association and announced that the membership last year increased 100 per cent. John L. Ulmer, of Toledo, past president of the National Association of Retail Grocers, told of legislative accomplishments of that body. S. C. Hadden, president of the Allied Motor Commerce of Indiana, talked on motor truck transportation.

At 4:30 delegates inspected the Taggart Baking Company plant.

At 11:30 today delegates visited the Van Camp packing plant, where lunch was served. The annual banquet was held in the Riley room of the Claypool Tuesday night. George E. Green, of Chicago, was toastmaster. Addresses were given by Charles Watkins of Muncie, and D. K. Stewart of Columbus, Ohio.

Prowler Arrested
Vagrancy charges were placed against Albert Nansen, 21, of 42 N. Belmont Ave., when police said he was found prowling around in the rear of D. R. Sturgeon's grocery store, 2021 W. Washington St., early today. Sergeant Sheehan's squad of night riders arrested him.

Three Noted Artists to Appear in Recital

By WALTER D. HICKMAN
CONCERT for the benefit of the Methodist Hospital fund will be given tonight at Caleb Mills Hall under the auspices of the Robert Park Epworth League.

The three artists are Helen Leaning, prima donna; Vladimir Lenska, Russian violinist, and Lisz, Belgian pianist. Lenska brings with him on the concert platform a violin said to be worth $50,000. The instrument was made by Gaspard Duiffoprugger in 1516. It has been played by such masters as Paganini, Rappoldi, Ole Bull, Sarasate and Joachim.

Lenska states that he purchased the rare violin from Madame Norman Nerude Von Buslow while on one of his European tours.

Miss Leaning has been honored by being selected as the artist to open the Chicago concert artists' series at the Playhouse.

Lisz, although a Belgian by birth, is now a naturalized American. He is known as a composer as well as a pianist and accompanist.

Indications are that a large audience will greet the three artists at Caleb Mills Hall.

The attractions on view today include "Smilin' Through" at the Murat, "Lawful Larceny" at English's, Hoosier Frolic at the Lyric, Dan Fitch minstrels at the Palace; vaudeville and movies at the Rialto, "You Can't Fool Your Wife" at the Circle, "Alice Adams" at the Apollo, "Sisters" at Mister Smith's, "The Gentleman From America" at the Isis and "The Last Moment" at the Ohio.
